CLEMENTSPORT

"THE QUEEN OF THE BASIN"

Many interesting stories are told of the early days of this pretty village, then called "Moose River". One of these was concerning the making of a road that portion of the main road that lies between the bridge near where the old grist mill stood, nearly opposite Mr. Boudreau's blacksmith shop and the old Poly Lemus house. The main road then followed the church road, over the hills (South Mountain) in front of the old church, back of the rectory, across the river, up past Capt. Elias Rawding's house and soon over the hills down the Basin. The village fathers then frequently gathered of a winter evening in what is now "The Rest" i. e. the old Shaw house, then occupied by Mr. Douw Dittmars. There they gathered around the open fire place, where the logs piled high shed a cheerful glow about the room—and over their pipes they discussed night after night the building of the new road along the shore. Whether it would be shorter, longer or the same length, and the discussion always ended by Mr. Douw Dittmars taking the iron pot off the crane, placing it on the hearth, and says "Now I hold the bale of this pot upright, now I let it fall to a level with the top of the pot, is the bale any longer in the horizontal position than in the vertical position? The final result was the road we now use along the level. A Deep Brook wit we are informed, the other day, on seeing the sign "Winnismookin Falls" said "Winnie should not be smoking". Road signs are evidently misleading sometimes.

A noted Indian scientist of Calcutta has answered a long asked question, "What makes the sap circulate in plants and trees?" by advancing the theory, that each cell has a cell beat (something similar to the heart beat in animals) and these beats all synchronize, so that the sap is forced upward. The world is now waiting for some one who can advance a theory how it is that "Two in One" shoe polish (extensively sold) does not injure the leather and yet eats the bottom out of the tin boxes containing it.

All report a splendid time. And on the 16th comes the big garden party at the "Queen of the Basin". All the friends of the old church and who are anxious to see the historic graveyard put in shape and maintained in good order should make a point of being present and doing all they can to make the garden party a greater success than ever before. See notice elsewhere in this issue.

One season in Clementsport means many seasons. Mr. Edden Gray and Miss Gray are at their bungalow for August and Mr. Gray says that for months while in Texas and in the Southern States he was longing for the day he would be in the "Queen of the Basin" again, and the smile with which he greeted us on his arrival Monday, July 31st, showed his longing had been realized.

Mr. Warren D. Chase, of Plantsville, Conn., has been captivated by the charms of the "Queen of the Basin" and has purchased a beautiful piece of land on Shaw Street, from the local Customs House Officer, Mr. H. L. Vroom. We trust he and his family may spend many, many happy Summers with us and finally become a citizen all the year round.

Mr. John Anderson, of Deep Brook, who has been working painting the bridge here, has gone to the Victoria bridge, Bear River, where we are informed he will take charge later. Every success to you Mr. Anderson. Mr. Cecil McInnes is in Mr. Anderson's place here.

Mr. Albert Jones, of Pasadena, Cal., a cousin of Mrs. Watson Jones and of Mrs. Gould, formerly of Annapolis, after an absence of some forty years, is visiting the scenes of former times, and was in Clementsport on August 1st, seeing his friends and relatives.

A regular week of garden parties! On Thursday, August 4th, St. Luke's, Annapolis Royal, held their garden party. Several Clementsport people went up, and in the old historic town took their tea on the church grounds in sight of the Fort ramparts.

On August 3rd the Church of England, Digby, held their annual garden party on the Rectory grounds. Three cars went down from Clementsport and were loud in their praise of what they enjoyed. King's weather and a royal spread.

The Tobin Walford Vaudeville and Photoplay Co. appear here on Friday and Saturday evening in Ely Hall. Turn-out and give them a good reception. The "East Lynne" film will be given Friday evening, August 11th.
