ULULATUS.

The O.P.B. a society of foreign noblemen has reorganized and secured Mrs. Gooley's parlor for their rendezvous. At a recent meeting Li Har-vee or the Chinese ambassador at Washington was elected president; Count Alveo Binto of Italy, vice-president; Le Duc Supdie Murphi, treasurer; and Signor Pietro Nultmace, secretary. H. R. H. Prince Lasokowsneeze of Poland was present at the meeting but his unfriendly feelings toward the Doo-little glee club last year, were too well known to permit of his being elected to any office. At the next meeting Sir Don Quixote de Bambozzle Yoccez is expected to address the club on the "Baneful effects of buying tobacco."

This column is to be the official organ of the society, and monthly reports will be published. Daily meetings will be held in the spacious parlors of the society.

PATHETIC PLAINT FROM PADDED PANTS.

Farewelt to the little good you bear me! Farewell, a long farewell to dreams of football fame, of vanquished foes, and planding dames! Cruel body cheeks and laugh-provoking falls I hate ye! But for ye the sporting press my glories might proclaim; but now with eye like sloe, and nose all gore, to the hooting fence I wend my way, and with my lone dejected self hold dismal converse!

From GEORGE XIV 36.
