under full load at all times. Under these conditions machinery is more efficient than when working under light loads.

There are thousands of factories which are to-day operated by steam power, under conditions which render them worthless, as far as dividend paying ability is concerned.
 If electric power were installed, especially if a near-by water power should be utilized, these plants would at once become desirable properties. The owners of such properties should investigate the subject.

Those who are interested in modernizing old plants, or in seeking the newest and best methods of power transmission, may consult the Westinghouse Company for the purpose of solving any problem bearing upon individual or special cases, who make no charge for such information.
