

One or another of the three ministers in the Department sits on every major Cabinet committee, ensuring coherence in the country's external relations and underlining the significance of the government-wide mandate. Canadian business representatives who have been accustomed to dealing with officials of the former Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce on trade promotion matters will find that the Department of External Affairs is equipped to protect and promote their interests.