

CHARLES W. HENDEL, Jr.

---

AGE: .....

NATIONALITY: American

PRESENT POSITION: Associate Professor of Philosophy, Princeton University

ACADEMIC EXPERIENCE: 1913, Litt. B. (Princeton); all first group in every subject in four years.

1913-1914, abroad in travel
1915-1916, University Fellow, Graduate School, Princeton
1916, Ph.D. Princeton; thesis on David Hume's Religious Philosophy
1918-1919, Instructor of Philosophy, Williams College
1919-1929, Assistant Professor, Associate Professor of Philosophy, Princeton University.

GENERAL EXPERIENCE: Well known in Princeton community
Organized and is Chairman of Princeton Committee on Public Safety.
1917 to Armistice - American Army.

PUBLICATIONS: "Studies In The Philosophy of David Hume"
"Hume: Selections"

Forthcoming: "Rousseau: Selections"

In preparation: "Rousseau: An Essay on Contemporary American Idealism".

RECOMMENDED BY:

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN: " The most promising of the undergraduates who came under my knowledge in Philosophy for over a period of 20 years of teaching. He has a brilliant mind and a very rich background of philosophical knowledge..... Successful in his teaching..... has taken an active part in the..... affairs of the University..... Has an excellent literary style".

L.P. EISENHART,
Dean of the Faculty. "Has always been deeply interested in proposing and helping to carry out plans for the improvement of the scholastic standing of the University. Has taken a great interest in his students."

R.B.C. JOHNSON,
Chairman of the Department of Philosophy, Princeton. " Has published books which have won him high praise from distinguished scholars. Has almost completed the manuscript of another large volume..... He has been under the influence of the best we could give him at Princeton and has also studied in France and Germany..... Was the outstanding student of Professor Kemp-Smith of Edinburgh and of Professor Bowman of Glasgow."