A special meeting of the Town Council was held in the Town Hall to-night to deal with the night soil question—not a very delectable matter, but it occupied a long time, and then was shelved for a week; $2265 has been paid for the work, and to-night there were only two tenders, one for $800 and the other $1350. This reduction in the price for the work led the councillors to fear that it might not be done satisfactorily, and for this reason they thought it necessary to enquire into the standing of boodsmen before letting the contract. Five tenders, ranging from $250 to $350, were received for the scavenger work of the town, but council decided to inaugurate a scavenger department under their own control, purchase a horse and appoint a man on salary. The mayor thought by this innovation at least $100 could be saved to the Works Department, and the Sanitary Inspector had been dissatisfied with the old system for years. The matter was referred back to the committee to present to council in a more definite form. Tenders for painting the Weston-road bridge were extended to July 5, and a compromise with the Street Railway Company was arranged, whereby the tracks are to be raised to the satisfaction of Councillors Linton and Gilbert, and in no place to exceed six inches above the present grade, for which the company is not to be asked to make any further change for three years.
