God's in His heaven,

All's right with the world.

—Browning.

London, Thursday, Nov. 26, 1896.

In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall guard your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus.—Philippians iv., 6.

And he that supplieth seed to the sower and bread for food shall supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the fruits of your righteousness; ye being enriched in everything unto all liberality, which worketh through us thanksgiving to God.—II. Corinthians ix., 10, 11.

I exhort therefore first of all that supplications, prayers, intercessions, thanksgivings be made for all men; for kings and all that are in high place; that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and gravity. This is good and acceptable in the sight of God, our Saviour.—I. Timothy, ii., 1.

Good times are still getting their bearings. There are here to stay.

Restored confidence in the future is what makes business improve.

Spain sent Gen. Weyler to run Cuba, but Cuba seems to be running Weyler.

He is a poor specimen of humanity who cannot be thankful at least once in 365 days.

It will not be long before aldermanic and school trustee candidates will be using up for the municipal scrims.

This is a fickle world. A few weeks ago, everybody was afraid lest he would be tendered an American dollar. Now everybody is grabbing for it.

Once more Scripture has verification. Mr. McKinley not only got the Presidency, but he is being bombarded with thanksgiving turkeys from every section of the Republic.

Canadian readers of Prof. Drummond's works will regret to hear that he is lying very ill in the south of England. He is unable to leave his bed. There is no chance of his being able to undertake any work for a very long time.

British workmen are strongly averse to working on Sunday and are organizing to make it as difficult as possible for employers to demand work on that Rest Day. The latest expedient is to demand double pay for all work done between 11 p.m. on Saturday and 5 a.m. on Monday.

The Toronto "Telegram" very fittingly says: "The sweeping condemnation of the public schools comes frequently from well-meaning but ill-informed critics, from some who even admit that they do not visit the schools to see what they are like."

At last, all the returns in the United States Presidential election are in, and the total vote is ascertained. The electors who voted for the polls numbered 12,579,638, a gain of 1,500,000 over the vote of 1892. Of this vote McKinley received 7,060,516, Bryan 6,221,552, Palmer 128,570, McKinley's plurality being 838,964.

Duncan Walker, B.A., a well known western educationist, has been appointed inspector of schools for Peterborough town. Mr. Walker is a native of Kent county. After graduation from the Chatham Collegiate Institute in 1883, he spent some years in public school work. Subsequently he completed his education in the provincial university. For some time he has been mathematical master in Brockville High School.

The late Alfred Marriott, of Milfield, Yorkshire, England, left $2,000,000 to the Church of England and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. The testator directs that the money shall be devoted towards the erection of churches in the poorest and most thickly populated districts in the metropolis or in foreign parts, or in endowing and enlarging hospitals or refuges for orphan children. Properly administered, this benevolent man's wealth will be a great benefit to many needy ones.

The Khan has collected the children of his tribe, and is about to give them a home in the form of a neat volume, the work of the Hamilton Spectator Printing Co. The bard of Rushdale is a distinctly Canadian product, a native of the soil, and his works have an original flavor that marks the born poet. Canada has some clever verse-makers, but none are so purely natural as the Khan. He had the good fortune to be reared on a farm, and therefore enjoyed that close communion with nature that only the rural life affords. Though the Khan is a humorist, he has written much in a serious vein. Some of his patriotic selections, notably, "The Men of the Northern Zone," are permanent contributions to Canadian literature. The forthcoming volume will doubtless receive a hearty welcome.

Are the French really determined to go to war at an early date? Their army commanders are looking around for aids to success. Recently a famous Edinburgh bagpipe manufacturer received a communication from Commandant Dumas, Chef Nineteenth Battalion des Chasseurs a Pied, desiring to be supplied with a set of military bagpipes for his battalion. He writes that it proposed to buy several of them later, in imitation of the Highlanders' bands, which he has admired many times.

A Marked Contrast.

Though it has not the population of Ontario by a good many hundreds of thousands, the Province of Quebec will next year spend $5,334,521 in running its provincial affairs—an increase of $18,731. Of the total $5,334,521 has to be paid for interest on the public debt. Once more, Quebec critics of provincial affairs point to the Ontario administration as a model worthy of emulation.

Unity in Cheese and Butter Making.

Hon. John Dryden, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, has sent a letter to the three dairy associations in this Province, in which he makes suggestions vitally important to their welfare. Mr. Dryden, some five years ago, addressing the eighth annual convention of the Creameries' Association in Hamilton, said:

"There cannot be any warfare between the manufacturers of cheese and butter; in fact, they are getting closer together every year and every month of the year, and by and by we shall have them overlapping each other's work, the cheese men making butter and the butter makers making cheese. When this is being accomplished all over the country, there should be a joining together of the two. When the iron is hot, I should like to weld them together. Then we shall have one grand Dairymen's Association."

The Minister has never resiled from this expectation, nor doubted its desirability, and he believes that the time has now come for all these associations to join hands with a common object in view, or at least that all should be incorporated into two associations—one for the East and the other for the West.

The present groundwork for this suggestion is found in the fact that an increasing number of cheese factories are being utilized in winter for the manufacture of butter. Mr. Dryden estimates that 100 creameries have been in operation in 1896 during the summer months. These will no doubt continue to operate throughout the winter. From the best information that the Minister can gather, he estimates that fully 40 cheese factories will also engage in the manufacture of butter during the winter months.

"It is therefore plain," continues Mr. Dryden, "that the same individuals and the same sections of country are equally interested in these two dairy products. Under this state of things, all that relates to both butter and cheese must necessarily be considered by each association, and therefore each must in the future supplement the other to some extent and cover practically the same ground. The discussion of subjects relating to the choice of cattle, the care, management and food necessary to secure the best results, must always be the same in both cases. Each of these associations sends out instructors with the view of bringing the quality of the products towards greater excellence and uniformity. As the work of cheese and butter associations cover the same territory, instructors from each association must necessarily go over the same ground, where one instructor, competent in both cheese and butter-making, would do the work equally well, and thus effect a saving in time and traveling expenses. Taking in the situation as it appears at present, it seems to me eminently proper that there should be a concentration of forces, with the view of greater strength and efficiency."

"The first object gained would be to lessen the cost of management, and thus give an increased amount towards additional instruction and inspection, so necessary to greater uniformity of products. From a careful estimate I have made, I am of opinion that out of the present grant fully $2,000 might be diverted from expenses of management towards this necessary work."

"The second important object gained would be the substitution of one representative body for the three at present in existence, with which would rest the oversight and direction of all matters of common interest. At the present stage of our dairy industry, it seems highly important that the Departments of Agriculture for the Province and Dominion should have one representative authority, which might be easily reached, for consultation and co-operation in carrying forward such measures as will shortly be necessary in the extension of our markets for these products. By establishing proper cold storage facilities in transportation we shall be provided with the aid necessary to reach these markets, but in working out the details of the scheme, there must inevitably be many things demanding consideration and consultation as between the producers and those acting for the government in the matter. It will be almost impossible for the representatives of the Government to deal with three bodies having, it may be, different opinions, and working in some senses towards cross purposes."

Mr. Dryden suggests that the three dairy associations be amalgamated into one, and that this amalgamated association be divided into two parts, having an eastern and a western board.

We confess that we like the alternative proposition, which is that the Eastern and Western Dairymen's Associations shall continue to exist as now. This view, we believe, will be generally held by the dairymen themselves. But there should be little opposition to the Minister's other proposal—that each of these two associations should appoint an executive committee, consisting, say, of four members, two of whom might be specially interested in butter and two in cheese. These two committees would form a central board, whose business it should be to carry forward such work as might be of common interest to both the eastern and western divisions of the association. The representatives of the Dominion Government, in making any arrangements for carrying out the cold storage plans, would necessarily consult with this body.

Mr. Dryden seems to believe that under the new system one secretary could serve the two associations, but we hardly think that possible. To effectively manage the affairs of each organization, a secretary must be on hand to aid the president in the work. We in Western Ontario would most certainly object to the centralization of management in Toronto.

NEW DEVELOPMENT IN TRADES UNIONS.

London Engineering. One of the most curious developments of what may be called the new labor policy has exercised one of the London vestries. The Bermondsey vestry had appointed a committee to consider the question of the unemployed; the report was taken at its meeting last week. It occupied not only the whole meeting as ordinarily understood, but from the time of meeting, 7 o'clock, until 4 o'clock the next morning, being said to have lasted for which is most unusual with a vestry. The chief point in dispute, and the one which divided the vestry into two opposing parties, was whether employment should be given exclusively to the parishioners, or whether all persons out of work should have an equal chance. It was resolved that any body of men elected by the ratepayers should for a moment entertain the notion that a man should be refused work by a vestry simply by reason of the fact that he did not belong to the parishioners. But so excited was the discussion, and the proceedings, that it is evident the parties were not properly represented. In the end, however, it was resolved that a man need not be a member of a union to be taken on, if work could be found.

THREE SIGNIFICANT FACTS.

The Dundas Banner remarks: One story is good until another is told. The Mail has been making bitter attacks on Mr. Tarte for taking liquor to a luncheon at an Indian industrial school. Three facts have since been established; one, that Mr. Tarte did not give the luncheon, being the guest instead of the host; second, that he did not take any liquor to the school; third, that he did not take liquor at all. With the exception of these three little facts, the Mail's story is somewhere near correct.

THANK HIM.

For pasture lands folded with beauty, For plenty that burdened the vale, For the wealth of the teeming abundance. We lift to the Maker our rosy to fall, And thank him for the bounty that he did not take any liquor to the school; third, that he did not take liquor at all. With the exception of these three little facts, the Mail's story is somewhere near correct.

THE LATEST SONG—"THERE ARE OTHERS."

Philadelphia Press. If you ever make a little joke that's really something worth while, Don't that people when they hear it will explode in helpless mirth, Don't think that you're the only wit that ever walked the earth. There are others.

If you ever make a fearful break that covers you with shame, You really need not mind it, though your cheeks begin to flame, You're not the only idiot that ever did the same. There are others.

If she says she'll be a sister, but she can no further go, Don't get so melancholy, with your spirals ten below, She's not the only female in this weary world of woe. There are others.

Are you e'en compelled to listen to a singer who will roar, A song of fondly sweet things and old jokes oft heard before, Till you hope each verse will be the last, and fondly eye the door? But there are others.

A youth with parted locks and lofty collar you will find, With a coat that's tightly buttoned, and a very vacant mind, Alas! he's not the only silly creature of the kind. There are others.

Now, if you do not like this song, and say, it falls flat, And the moonstruck man who wrote it was a maniac, and all that, Why, you're not compelled to sing it, though you're talking through your hat. There are others.
