Lefty, Russell, the $12,000 beauty, didn't last long in the morning game against the games of the Eccentric and Standard Engineers at Celtic Park on Sunday. To Melvin W. Sheppard, the most remarkable middle-distance runner in the annals of modern athletics, and Dan Ahearne, the great jumper, fell the honors of the new marks. Sheppard clipped one-fifth of a second off Emilio Lunghi's figures of a mile, while Ahearne added three-quarters of an inch to his own record of 51 feet 61-4 inches for the running hop, step and jump. Lunghi made his record at Celtic Park on Oct. 10, 1909, while Ahearne established his previous record on May 25 of this year.

Nicholls put the visitors in the lead by knocking out a homer, which they increased by two in the seventh, and with McGinley pitching in the ninth, they rammed out four safeties for three runs, cinching the game.

It was a péculiar game, the Orioles only having men left on bases in two innings, while the Leafs died in seven out of the nine. The Oroiles, however, deserved to win for the way they stung the ball, even if the Leafs did outhit them; but, then, there was no doubt about the safeness of the visitors' cracks, while over half of the locals' hits were Texas leaguers. Captain Foulkes Wins Tennis Championship From Robert Baird Disappointment was the prevailing note at the national championships at St. Matthew's courts yesterday. And this, not at the quality of tennis, which was excellent, but at the unfavorable weather, and, chiefly, at the fact that weather, and, chiefly, at the fact that the Toronto and Ontario champion. Robert Baird, after beating out the largest field of all the experts gathered together from Winnipeg to St. John, succumbed in a match which went the limit to the present holder. Capt. Foulkes of Ottawa. The doubles team from the Capital, however, went down in straight sets before Allen and Sherwell, who thus become the Canadian doubles champions—a popular victory. Allen, it might be mentioned, was with Harold Hackett, the winner of the American all-comers national doubles in 1899 and they were the runners-up in 1900.

Harold Hackett, the winner of the American alli-comers national doubles in 1899, and they were the runners-up in 1900.

The shower which fell just as the singles match was about to begin, by softening the court, helped Foulkes' cut ground strokes to come off frequently, and puzzled Baird, who is accustomed to clay courts and a fastrising ball. However, after the former had 2—0 Baird assumed the aggressive and took six straight sames, 18 aces to 8. The second set was characterized by the resolute defence Foulkes offered, his great getting abilities and accuracy of return, and towards the end, a lot of clever net work with cross-court and line volleys. In this set, Foulkes 6—2, the winner scored only 10 aces to Baird's 15, but put only one bail each in the net and out of court. The third set was the most beautiful as well as the turning-point of the match. Foulkes assumed the aggressive, showing great generalship, getting to the net frequently, and, tho not smashing much, volleying splendidly, his speed, direction and timing being admirable. He had Baird in difficulties frequently, made the latter play his game, and beat him at it. He scored 18 aces to Baird's 10, with mistakes about even, but scored when needed, winning at 6—2. It was now or never for Baird, and he opened strongly with a lead of 3—1. His everhead volleying now was the best he showed, but Foulkes proved a wonderful getter, refusing to be beaten, and was returning most of them safely, making it 3 all and 4 all. Baird continued persistent smashing, and took the next two and the set at 6—4. Foulkes, when at 4—5 and 30—40, serving a double famil. Aces were: Baird 16 Foulkes 7; two sets all.

It was during the critical set that the prettiest net play was seen. The pace slowed down in an effort after, accuracy, and the struggle for the het was keen. Foulkes' generalship was more apparent than ever, and his patience in waiting stroke after stroke for the exact moment to make a kill was admirable, whereas Baird often netted the ball in trying to kill off cross-courts, then Baird double faulted and Foulkes passed him again, 3—2.

From this on the latter's ground-driving and his volleys ran him out the winner, 6—2, the aces being even, but Baird's mistakes trebling the other's, Keen as was the disappointment, the applause for the winner was general, and all appreciated the champion's remark at the prize-giving, that Baird was the best player and sportsman he had ever met.

The 'spectators were immediately treated to a fine exhibition of ladies' tennis in the match between Miss Moyes and Miss Fairbairn. The driving was hard and of a good length, both showing great ability in getting, returning and lobbing, and often in volleying and net play. After Miss Moyes had wen the first set, 6—4, still playing strongly, Miss Fairbairn weakened, and the former took the set, 6—6, thus becoming champion. Mrs. Hannam, the holder, is absent on a visit to England.
