A RICH MUSICAL TREAT AT THE GEM

Glorious Singers in High Class Programme - Musical Comedy Also and Excellent Pictures

Music lovers who attended the Gem last night were thrilled by two glorious singers, Jordan and Smith, man and woman, who were billed as offering high class musical numbers and who surely lived up to expectations. They are soprano and tenor, each possessor of a voice of richness and power and each singing with art that delighted all. The young woman's best number was Tosti's "Good Bye," which she sang with wealth of expression. The tenor's solo was "When Irish Eyes are Smiling." He sings with marked ease and grace of expression. Among the duets sung was the prison scene from "La Traviata," and it was very finely rendered. The artists received a great reception and were given several curtain calls.

Sloan and Hamilton, in "Mrs. Peck and Henry" provided a lot of good fun, and sang two amusing songs. The scheme of their act is good, and they have a making dialogue which make-up and actions make funnier. The act was much enjoyed.

The picture feature is "The Velvet Paw," a World-Brady release dealing with lobbying tactics in getting legislation passed. "The Velvet Paw" strikes a high note and registers with accuracy. It describes one of the most important legislative acts passed within recent years by the U. S. Congress, and the manner in which it is graphically told, scene after scene, compels attention, holds the interest, makes the heart beat quicker—its suspense is gripping, words cannot describe it fully without inventing new superlatives. House Peters and Gail Kane play the leads in fine style. Among the scenes are some in the halls of congress.

The Gem will continue this programme until including Friday night, with all changed on Saturday.
