At a small photo of the seminary building. After the singing of the national anthem the guests of the alternoon were all enthusiastic in praise of this part of the exercises. Saturday evening brought the usual special feature of entertainment. Prof. Waiter Brad-ley Tripp, of the Emmerson School of Ora-tory, Boston, under the anspices of the A. A. A. M. gave an elocutionary recital in merit and those who did not attend were very unfortunate, although the large hall was full to overflowing and showed how the poo-ple were gathering from far and near. The here provinces were well represented as well as many from different parts of the United States. Summary cop and gown filed into College Hall in solemn and stately procession to the strains of The War March of the Priests, played by Misses Lillian Strong and Faulein Price, to the specially reserved seats in the fractating cluss in bachelor of arts in the train of The War March of the Priests, played by Misses Lillian Strong and Faulein Price, to the specially reserved seats in the front and centre of the hall.
