Frank MacRae of London, formerly of Bothwell, is the inventor of a water wheel which promises to revolutionize power energy. It is claimed that the wheel is capable of unlimited power in a current of an ordinary stream, no abnormal fall being a requisite. The inventor has been working on his invention for four years, and during that time has constructed four models all on the same principle but differing in detail.

A WARNING

The farmer has so often been the victim of the faker that it would seem almost unnecessary to warn him against the latest simple expedient adopted by the fraternity to relieve him of his hard-earned cash. That the warning is not unneeded, however, is proved by the fact that the trick has been successfully worked in several instances lately.

The modus operandi is as follows: Two well-dressed men drive up to the farm in a fine-looking auto and suggest that they be commissioned to take a photo of the farmhouse which is to appear in some farmers' publication or county directory, and several copies will be supplied to the farmer at a charge which varies from $14 upwards to as much as the victim seems willing to pay. In one case which was brought to notice of the Farmer's Magazine, an unmounted proof was afterwards sent, but in most cases nothing further is heard of the get-rich-quick gentlemen after they have collected what they can get.

People who think the newspapers print poor stuff should see what they don't print.

CARUSO, FAMOUS TENOR, DEAD

Naples, Italy, Aug. 2.—Enrico Caruso, world-famous tenor, died here today. A despatch to London from Naples announces that Caruso reached Naples on Sunday night when a specially decided that an operation for abscess between the liver and diaphragm was necessary. Caruso failed to rally the operation.

Until a week ago the tenor was on his way to recovery from the long illness which began in New York last winter. The breakdown in his health followed a series of mishaps and culminated on December 11th last in Brooklyn when he broke a blood vessel while singing at the Academy of Music. He sang, however, after that, his last public appearance being on Christmas Eve at the Metropolitan. Later he was stricken with pleurisy.

Enrico Caruso, for more than 25 years a celebrity in the world of song, the tenor with "the golden voice," idolized by millions in America, had an artistic career as well known as that of any famous statesman or military leader. He was born in Naples, Italy, February 25, 1873, the son of Marcellus Caruso, a mechanic, who detested music but was persuaded to permit his son, when 11 years old, to sing in the churches of his native city. An unpromising pupil, for three years he studied under Guglielmo Vergine, pledging his teacher that when ready for a professional career he should pay him one-quarter of his earnings for the following five years.

He made his debut in "L'Amico Francesco" at the Nuovo Theatre, Naples, in 1894, later toured Italy and Sicily and was engaged for military seasons at La Scala, Milan. Subsequently he sang in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Warsaw, Rome, Lisbon, Paris, London and leading cities of Germany. When he came to the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in November, 1903, the critics did not go into ecstasies over him.

Although no official statement of his earnings was ever made public, it is known that Caruso, at the height of his Metropolitan career, was receiving an average of $3,000 for each performance. On special occasions, such as his 1920 season in Havana, he was paid $10,000 a night.

The list of Italian and French operas in which the noted tenor's name figures since he first sang in New York revealed an amazing versatility. In 16 years he sang no less than 549 times, in one season, 1907-08, making 51 appearances, a great test of endurance for any voice. He was unsparing, if not reckless, of his vocal powers.

The famous singer was the guest of honor at a silver jubilee celebration on the 25th anniversary of his operatic debut in November, 1919, at the Metropolitan which he received an illuminating parchment from 35 families holding boxes in the $7,000,000 "Golden Horseshoe," a flag from the City of New York, several medals and numerous gifts from his fellow artists.

Mr. and Mrs. Caruso resided in New York City during the opera season. They had a summer home on Long Island and another residence, Villa alle Piche, at Florence, Italy.
