

SISTER SUES BROTHER IN COUNTY COURT ACTION

Elizabeth Irwin Brings Action Against Listowel Man.

Two cases have been entered for the special non-jury session of the county court, at which Judge Talbot Macbeth will preside, and which will be held at the court house on Thursday morning. Elizabeth Irwin of London Township is suing Joseph F. Wilson, a constable of Listowel, for $200. She claims that when her sister, Isabelle Swales, was dying, it was agreed between the sister's husband and the plaintiff, that the former was to pay the plaintiff sums of money for nursing and other expenses she incurred in caring for her. The defendant says he is a brother of the plaintiff, and that the money was not collected through an agreement between the plaintiff and Mr. Swales, but through an agreement between him and Mr. Swales. He claims that the plaintiff pretended to be executor of the deceased's last will and testament, when she had not a status in any court as such. He claims that the money was directed to be paid to him, as he had spent more than the amount mentioned for funeral expenses.

Meredith & Meredith, for the plaintiff, and Meredith & Fisher for the defendant.

D. McLean, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, is suing S. S. Edgworth and Charles Routledge of the Universal Motor Sales for $250 damages. He claims that he asked the defendants to exchange a battery in his car. They did so, and without notifying him delivered the car to his garage. There was no heat in the garage, and water was left in the radiator and froze, causing the cylinder block to split. The repair of it cost him $153.18. He was also forced to have his motor adjusted and lost the use of his car for two months.

The defendants deny any negligence, and say that they returned the car as was the custom on previous occasions, as directed by the plaintiff.

Meredith & Meredith for the plaintiff; Meredith & Fisher for the defendant.

Tourists See "Carling Street First"

Two Take Up Quarters at County Jail, While Mexican's Slogan Is "Kitchen or Bust"—He Will Not Be Forced to "Bust."

"See Carling street first," seems to be the slogan of the globe-trotters who include London on their itinerary. Three of these wanderers came to see the interior decorations of the ancient edifice where justice is dispensed during the night. One of them was permitted to continue on his way, but the other two were given an opportunity to make a further study of the antique. Police officers were instructed to guide them through the portals at Governor Carter's stronghold. They will be given a bird's-eye view of the site on which Governor Simcoe planned to build the capital of Upper Canada.

He Was First. First on the list of distinguished visitors was a Frenchman, who hailed from the race course in the east end of the Grand Trunk with the thoroughness of a tourist. He was not allowed to further pursue his investigation of the scene and invited him to spend the night at the Carling street hotel, where he was at least assured of being given a good night's sleep.

To Magistrate A. H. Graydon this morning the tourists explained that the members of his race were intending to visit the Carling street hotel, where he was at least assured of being given a good night's sleep.
