

PIGS IS PIGS

one of the boys put an empty basket in the place of the one he had just filled. There were only a few guinea-pigs left. As he noted their limited number his natural habit of looking on the bright side returned.

“Well, annyhow,” he said cheerfully, “ ’tis not so bad as ut might be. What if thim dago pigs had been elephants!”

THE END