Plan to Complete Northern Guatemala Railway.

New York, Nov. 11.—A despatch to The Times from New Orleans says: The most important railroad deal undertaken in Central America in recent years is now being negotiated. New York, New Orleans and Canadian capitalists are interested in it, together with President Cabrera and the Government of Guatemala. In the deal are also interested Sir William Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific and Minor Keith of the United Fruit Company. Behind these three men are the interests they represent, while with President Cabrera is associated a number of German capitalists.

The enterprise involves the completion of the Guatemala Northern Railroad through to the Pacific coast, and the establishment of terminals which will undertake to handle cargoes from Europe and America to Asia and to the west coasts of North and South America. The railroad will endeavor to capture the trans-isthmian traffic now handled by the railroad from Colon to Panama.

Ecoties in the Klondike.
One can't better realize what are luxuries of the table in the valley of the Yukon by reading Mrs. Sullivan's book, "A Woman Who Went to Alaska." It was on the way down the river from Dawson that her party came upon the first vegetable gardens.

"The river banks were lined with canoes; many natives stood looking at us from the shore, and while stevedores handled the wood many passengers visited the town. It was not long before they came back with handfuls of turnips, just pulled from the ground, which, had these been the most luscious fruit, could not have been eaten with more relish."

"I tried to buy one from a young man, but he had evidently been long away from such luxuries, for he refused to sell. Afterward his gallantry got the better of him, and he politely offered me one-half of the turnip, which I took with thanks."

"As my brother peeled the precious thing I asked him how long it was since he had eaten one. 'Two years,' he promptly replied."

"Knowing that he was especially fond of such things, I ate a small slice and gave him the remainder."

BANNOCKBURN FIELD

SCENE OF BATTLE THAT GAVE SCOTLAND HER INDEPENDENCE.

A Black (Coal) Country on a Small Scale—An Annual Event of Importance—Field Itself Is Distinguished From Other Fields by a Huge Flagstaff—Famous Bored Stone, the One Solitary Relic of 1314—Bruce's Brass.

Bannockburn, the scene of the battle that gave Scotland her independence nearly five centuries ago, has still an indirect association with the profession of arms. It is a busy, thriving little place, where tweeds and carpets are made, but its most notable industry is the weaving of tartans for the Highland regiments. It is a black country on a small scale, and there is plenty of coal to supply Stirling and all the factories round. An annual event of importance is the horse and cattle fair, held on the third Tuesday in June, when dealers and drovers and farmers assemble, not far, probably, from the spot where Bruce broke his battleaxe in cleaving the skull of De Bohun. Visitors to Bannockburn spend little time in the town, and push on to the battlefield, on which the one conspicuous object that distinguishes it from other fields is a huge flagstaff. It is 120 feet high, and was erected in 1870 by the Dumbarton and Stirling Oddfellows. Near it is the famous Bored Stone, the one solitary relic of 1314, enclosed in an iron grating. This large block of granite is sunk in the earth, and there is a hole in it in which, according to tradition, the Bruce's standard was fixed on the day of battle. The hill or rising ground here is known as Bruce's Brae, and on it the Royal pavilion was erected.

Near at hand is the hamlet of St. Ninians, and at a second village, Newhouse, two large stones are pointed out as marking the scene of the fight between the forces of Bruce's nephew and Sir Robert Clive. The Bannock, from which the historic field is named, is a small burn or streamlet running down to the Forth. Originally the field was known as the New-park; and Barbour, writing 50 years after the battle, mentions a park with trees through which the English had to pass before they could attack. Vestiges of the park still remain, and the stumps of the trees beneath which Edward's men advanced exist to this day. An adjacent farmhouse is called the Park, and a mill on the south side of the burn, Park mill, is about opposite the spot where the centre of the Scottish army was drawn up. On the left was the morass, now known as Milton Bog, part of it a mill pond, where the fatal pits were dug and covered over with green turf. A mile away, at the Bloody Fold, a body of the English, led by a man who had made a desperate stand before finally quitting the "stricken field." A rumor that Bannockburn might be sold to a builder gave rise to a report that Mr. Andrew Carnegie had been asked to buy the ground and present it to the Scottish people.

Stirling County is rich in battle grounds. South-east of Bannockburn lies Sauchieburn, a sinister name in Caledonian history. There in 1458 King James III. was defeated by his rebellious subjects. The wounded monarch managed to make his way to a mill, and there he was afterwards found to have been stabbed to death by the hand of a mysterious assassin, who was never discovered. Beaton's mill, the scene of this royal tragedy, lies in a hollow on the Edinburgh road beyond St. Ninians.

Olive Oil as a Medicine.

Olive oil is the choicest and most palatable of all foods. It contains the largest amount of nutriment of any other food, being nearly 100 per cent., while the best grains and legumes contain less than 90 per cent., animal meat from 22 to 29 per cent., fruits and vegetables contain less still. One ounce of olive oil per diem facilitates intestinal digestion, encourages the action of the bowels and aids digestion in a remarkable way. The vegetarian diet is generally too poor in fats. A teaspoonful of olive oil given three times a day to an anemic child is a wonderful help toward health. For the scrofulous child it builds up tissue. Pure olive oil improves with age and may be kept for any length of time in a dark place and in an even temperature (the ice box), to retain that very fruity flavor, but if it is exposed it is very easily contaminated. It quickly takes up all foreign odors. Its manufacture must be under the best sanitary conditions.

Thoughts Have Life.

There is much of truth in this exquisite verse of Elia Wheeler Wilcox, who is a disciple of telepathy: Thoughts do not need the wings of words To fly to any goal; Like subtle lightning, not like birds, They speed from goal to goal.

Hide in your heart a better thought; Still has power to blight; Think love, and though you speak it not It gives the world more light.
