7-CHARADE.

While hovering round the brink of time My mind it chanced to wander; I sat me down, and I tried to think, My thoughts they did meander.

To once upon a time, when I, with A gay and TOTAL lady, A stroll did take for friendship sake Under the maples snady.

These strolls quite frequent soon became,

I felt happy like a dove ; At last, dear friends, I realized That with her I was in love.

Her name to you I dare not tell; r ag

"ADVOCATE."

•• ADVOCATE, **
Many new strawberries are sent out every year. Many of them are seldom heard of after a short ife of but a few years at most. Too often the standard kinds, and is, therefore, not in a position to judge of the merits of his own seedlings. hence the cause of so many worthless varieties being placed on the market. The ADVOCATE is a new fortaining 115 of the leading kinds, and contains so many good points, that it is well worth giving an extended trial. If it does as well in the future as the bead of the list as being a berry best uited to the farmer's wants for family when but one variety is grown.
These plants have not been offered for sale by any nursery firm, and will not be offered for sale will then be one dollar per dozen.

			arties gay.
Of fu	n we	had a	plenty.

At last the fleecy snow came down, We went out for a sleigh ride; Before we had gone a mile, alas! I asked her to be my bride.

Said she, "I'm young, and so are you, To think of such things now; But two years hence I'll jump the fence, And then I'll be your frow.

To PRIME this girl was my heart's delight; It was a daily pleasure. To think LAST day she would be mine, My dear, my only treasure.

Two years have come and gone, alas! She can be mine. No! Never! She can be mine. No! Never! She played me false. She's married now, And I'll be single, ever.
