MR. CLEMENTS ACTIVE.

In the House of Commons during discussion of the vote of $4,000 for improvement at the mouth of the Thames, Mr. Clements, of Kent, urged the building of a wharf in the vicinity of Tecumseh Park, also a wharf at Rond Eau, on the inner harbor. Further, he advocated the establishment of proper life-saving equipment at the Rond Eau piers.

Mr. Hyman was not impressed with the importance of the wharf asked for at Rond Eau Village. But Mr. Clements insisted his plea for that structure by observing that it was more important than the wharf at Shrewsbury, although he acknowledged that the usefulness of the latter had been enhanced by the light which the Public Works Department had placed there at his (Mr. Clements) suggestion.—Ridgeway Dominion.

POSITION OF TEACHERS.

Mr. Calvin N. Kendall, Superintendent of Schools for Indianapolis, said recently before the American Institute of Instruction, that the wages for women teachers in half the cities of the United States were less than those of servant girls, when it was considered that the latter paid nothing for board, room and laundry. Moreover, they had no social position to maintain, as did the teachers, and the requirements of dress were far less expensive. In many cities the minimum wages of teachers were less than those of the laborers on the streets. The wages of skilled labor were from 25 to 100 per cent. higher than teachers' wages. It seemed incredible, he said, that the pay should be so inadequate for those in whose hands rested the training for citizenship. Mr. Kendall deprecated any attempt to systematically organize teachers for higher pay. There should be discussion, however, publicity of the facts, and agitation. Teachers should use their efforts to secure necessary legislation which might bring about better conditions. It must be remembered that country teachers look forward to a city position as a betterment in standing and in salary. When the city salaries are so low it can be readily imagined to what plane the rural ones have descended.—Toronto News.

The waters are again claiming a deplorable list of victims. Careless habits acquired on Toronto Bay, where every accident brings a score of rescuers, are carried to the remote waters of the Province, where the capsizing of a canoe means death. The old cautions cannot be repeated too often.—Toronto Globe.

SENSE AND NONSENSE.

Illinois claims to have a school-girl who for twelve years has never missed a day at school, never failed in her lessons, never talked back to the teacher, and never fell short of high mark in her examinations. If she maintains that perfection till she reaches womanhood, her husband is to be pitted.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Secret

Formula of Mi-o-na Made Public. A Cure For Stomach Troubles.

Our leading druggists are very anxious to have Mi-o-na, a remedy which they sell as a cure for stomach troubles, tested rigidly in every case of heart-burn, acute dyspepsia, wind on the stomach, loss of appetite, annoying dreams, sleeplessness, general weakness and debility, or where the digestive organs do not act as they should.

Mi-o-na is composed of bismuth subgallate, by all odds the very best medicine known for intestinal diseases. It combines with the free sulphur compounds in the bowels forming a black substance which is passed off from the body without harm. It also has a soothing effect upon the nerve endings in the stomach.

With this combined cerium oxalate, a standard remedy in the treatment of all irritations of the stomach, and digestive organs. Sodium bicarbonate is then added to overcome the excessive acidity usually present in stomach troubles, and a vomica for its general tonic and nerve-strengthening powers.

This combination of reliable remedies makes Mi-o-na a positive cure for all stomach troubles, and, perhaps the only one that can be sold under a guarantee that it costs nothing unless it cures.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets is sold for 50 cents.
If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your stomach troubles. We will send you a booklet which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ithaca, N. Y.

It is the things that we want the least that we cry for the most.

ATTITUDES IN SLEEP.

The Odd Postures in Which Animals and Fish Seek Repose—Hedgehog Like Chestnut Bur.

Fish have a density so nearly that of water that they can rest quietly on sand or gravel without apparent effort. Are they asleep? Probably, though they do not shut their eyes. At the beginning of evening, for instance, the gudgeon chooses a sandy spot, between stones and remains there, facing the current, its body resting on the lower lobe of the tail and on its pectoral and ventral fins. It is possible that it assumes the same position in winter and remains in it until spring, hibernating. The barbel and bream sleep in companies, like the gudgeon, but on a muddy bottom. The pike sleeps in summer near the bank, at the surface, where the sunlight can reach it. The carp keeps near the bottom. The eel hides in holes that it makes nearer the bank.

The observation of sea fish is more difficult, as may be imagined. It is now agreed that herrings, mackerel and other so-called migratory fish pass the winter at the bottom in the kind of lethargy. Do they adopt the gudgeon's position? Perhaps, though Fleville Je Peley has seen thousands of mackerel half buried in the mud, holding their tails vertically above it. Barchans sleep sitting with the head in the air. The toad sleeps by day in holes or under rocks and retires underground for the winter. He burrows backward, his hind feet and the end of his body serving to dig the hole, while he pushes with his fore feet. The marsupials are generally forced by the shape of their bodies to sleep sitting. The phalanger fox sleeps in a crouching posture, the head between the fore feet. The lemur also crouch, with the long, bushy tail around the hind feet. With the chimpanzees and other apes the hair on the upper arm and the forearm grows in opposite directions. This serves to protect the animal more effectively from the rain when he sleeps crouching in the thick woods or in the brush with his arms folded and pressed against the body. The orang takes his siesta with bent back, head hanging on his chest and sometimes holding to a branch by one of his extended arms, but generally with both arms hanging by his sides.

Penguins and pelicans also rest in a sitting posture. A whole flock takes refuge under a protective rock. The beak resting on the breast or with neck bent, to allow it to rest on the back. The hare does not sleep with open eyes, as has been wrongly asserted, for its pupils are hermetically closed during sleep.

The crocodile and the cayman repose on the ground on the entire ventral surface. Lizards sleep with their eyes shut and their mouths open. Turkeys naturally take the same position, the hind varieties in dry grass or in a shallow burrow, the marine ones at the surface of the sea, on which they float. This is the moment chosen for catching them.

Most of the ruminants lie on the flank. Camels stretch out with neck extended. Deer lie near each other in winter. The horse stretches out his legs. Cats and hares also sometimes stretch themselves.

The carnivores—the cat family, the bear, dog, wolf, fox, etc.—curl up or place the head stretched out on the paws. Several rodents, like the rat, sleep rolled up into a ball. The hedgehog, which passes the whole day hidden among stones or brush or in the trunk of a hollow tree, also rolls up with its head and paws under its belly so that it looks like a huge chestnut bur.
