MAKING A SHIRT WAIST.

A Simple Matter if Proper Attention Is Given to Details.

The making of the unlined shirt waist or blouse is a very simple matter if proper attention is given to the little details. It is most important that the pattern be laid on according to the thread of the material, especially in wash fabrics. Shirt waists are usually unlined, although those of silk and flannel are sometimes made with a lining.

If the shirt waist closes in the front, the right edge is generally finished by a box plait stitched on each edge. Buttonholes are worked through the center of this plait and buttons sewed to the left side, which is hemmed or finished by a lap. French seams are used, and the gathers are put in at the waist line according to the perforations in the pattern. The belt and pelum that is now used to finish the lower edge do away with any unnecessary fullness below the waist and give a trim appearance and smooth fit over the hips.

The making of the sleeves is usually considered by the amateur as the most difficult part of the waist. First the sleeve lining must be accurately cut and basted, care being taken that the corresponding notches come together, and then tried on to see that the elbow is in the right position. After the seams are stitched and pressed they should be bound with the seam binding. An interlining of crotaline about two inches wide should be placed in the lower edge. In sewing the sleeve in the armhole hold the waist so that the sleeve is toward you and bind with a bias strip of the lining.—Philadelphia Press.

A WIFE'S INFLUENCE.

The Effect of a Woman's Attitude Toward Her Husband.

"It seems to me that comparatively few wives understand the scope of their own influence. They are, as a rule, much more occupied by the influence on themselves of the husband's attitude," says Mary Stewart Cutting in Harper's Bazar. "A woman may be utterly disappointed, cast down, even fearful, because, after a day of toil, through all the tedious, dragging, wearisome details of which she has been upheld by the thought of her husband's home coming at night, he is himself tired, taciturn, oblivious of her. She may excuse him, may pity, she may sympathize, but the fact itself takes away just so much motive power of her own—takes away some necessary exhilaration that is the lubricating oil in those cogwheels of continuous effort. Yet this very woman will not realize the effect of her own attitude on her husband—how much of his motive business power is taken from him for the day because the hours in which he should have been rested and cheered have been filled with complainings and lamenting over situations which were not his to cope with and problems which he cannot work out."

Kingsfishers as Weathercocks.

There is a very quaint old world superstition in connection with the kingsfisher, which I fancy still obtains here and there in remote parts of the countryside. The superstition is this: If a stuffed or dried kingsfisher be suspended by a thread or string from the beam or ceiling of a room its breast will always turn in the direction of the prevailing wind. How the notion first arose and how, in the light of common sense and inquiry, it has been so long perpetuated it is hard to say, but it has long existed and still exists. I have a clear recollection as a youngster of going into a humble cottage in the shires and seeing a stuffed kingsfisher thus suspended as a weather vane.

Japanese Finger Napkins.

The Japanese have a picturesque improvement on finger bowls. At the conclusion of the repast a tiny basket, woven of exquisite straw and in ornamental design, is placed before each guest. This basket contains a filmy, satiny, paper napkin, printed with apple blossoms, chrysanthemums, irises or some other attractive design, and twisted lightly into a flower-like shape. Before being placed in the basket the napkin has been slightly dampened with perfumed water, the scent corresponding with the design, and this napkin the guest uses instead of dipping the hands in water.

Taste WINDSOR TABLE SALT. Does not "bite"—is not bitter. It is pure salt and all salt. Will not cake.

Charles V. Liked Mechanics.

Charles V. of Spain, like Louis XVI. of France, was particularly fond of timepieces and had a decided taste for mechanics. When in Germany he invented a carriage for his own accommodation, and after his abdication he would amuse himself in making little puppets—soldiers performing their exercises, girls dancing with their tambourines and little wooden birds that would fly in and out of the window.

A Reasonable Request.

"Pa, Uncle James has given me his steamer trunk."

"Well, what of it?"

"Now, pa, don't be peevish. Couldn't you give me a trip to Europe to sort of round out Uncle James' present?"

Too Late.

"And you didn't propose to her?"

"No."

"Why?"

"I was leading up to it, but suddenly noted that her voice had a sort of previous engagement ring."

WHY THE SHERIFF MUST GO.

Premier Whitney Gives Reasons For Mr. Gillespie's Dismissal.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—James Gillespie, sheriff of Prince Edward County, at the age of 83, has been removed from office, who has held office for 30 years, and James Gibson, Cherry Valley, P. O., has been appointed in his place.

In making the announcement, Premier Whitney said:

"Mr. Gillespie was notified that in consequence of representations which had been made to the Government as to his conduct, his resignation was required. He, however, asked for an investigation, and was informed, as the letter to him intimated, the decision of the Government had been come to when it was written, and he was merely given the opportunity to resign."

The reasons which guided the Government are that numerous complaints had been received to the effect that he had interfered in elections; had taken the stump in Dominion and provincial elections; had taken part or interfered in the work of registration under the manhood suffrage registration act; had used violent and abusive language; had allowed election returns to be altered; and had been guilty of offensive personal conduct in several respects."

George A. Aylesworth has resigned as clerk of the fourth division court of Addington and Lennox, having been appointed to the immigration staff of the Dominion department of Interior. He is a brother of the Minister of Justice, and is succeeded by Charles Welbanks, Newburgh.

BROKER IN TROUBLE.

Charge of Theft Laid Against W. J. Chambers of Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—William J. Chambers, 10 Bernard avenue, of the firm of W. T. Chambers, mining brokers, was arrested last night by Detective Thorne.

On Dec. 4 last a stock certificate for 100 shares of the Green-Mechan Mining Co. was stolen from the brokerage office of John M. Wallace, 75 Yonge street. On Dec. 11, a man supposed to be M. J. Kelly cashed a cheque at the Standard Bank, made by Smillie & Stanley, brokers, Bay street, for $140. The cheque was marked "100 G. M." The stock certificate, after being misused by the Wallace firm, was next heard of in the office of A. T. Heron, brokers, West King street; from where it found its way to the office of Strathly & Co., Simcoe street, and thence to Smillie & Stanley, who issued a cheque for it.

Chambers, when first arrested, denied everything, but subsequently confessed, and a charge of theft was laid against him.

MCGILL AS WITNESS.

Will Be Called to Give Evidence Against ex-President Cockburn.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Magistrate Denison yesterday said he would not close the case against G. R. B. Cockburn until Crown-Attorney Corley has presented all the evidence he wants to and an adjournment of a week was granted.

In answer to Mr. Arnoldi, Mr. Corley stated that he intended to call Chas. McGill as a witness for the crown.

The magistrate said it wouldn't be fair to call McGill until his own case is disposed of in the assize court and intimated that adjournment would be made until that time comes. Meanwhile, an adjournment until Jan. 28 was made.

The grand jury has returned a true bill against McGill on the false returns charge.

Four bodies, badly mutilated, were found in the woods Sunday night, some distance from the track.

Nearly a Bad Wreck.

Oakville, Jan. 22.—A broken axle derailed three cars with a stone's throw of the high level bridge, just west of Oakville, yesterday afternoon. Had the accident taken place on the bridge the cars would have fallen into the water fifty feet below.

Tried to Cut Throat With Glass.

Brookville, Jan. 22.—For the second time inside of one month, Mrs. L. P. Piercy attempted suicide here. First she drank laudanum and recovered. When arrested by the police on a charge of drunkenness she spied a drinking glass in the cell and breaking it in pieces was hacking her throat with the ragged edges when a constable intervened. The magistrate gave her 23 months in the reformatory.

A HEALTHY OLD AGE

OFTEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE
Help for Women Passing Through Change of Life.

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up women's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of the better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration.

Mrs. Mary J. Dabruz, of 150 Main Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a blessing to me through that delicate period known as the change of life. For six years it disturbed my entire system. I had hot flushes, was extremely nervous, became pale and debilitated, very irregular in the monthly flow, and the frequent palpitation and throbbing of the heart; in fact, my whole system seemed to be in disorder."

"I received no relief from the suffering incident to this period until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; but I date my relief from the time I took the first bottle. I gradually improved, nature took her course painlessly, and in due time I was a well woman."

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

Coronation Braid.

A group of women admiring a shop window were admiring a table centerpiece of great beauty. They pronounced it a most perfect specimen of laid work when one discovered that it was made with coronation braid in the pattern of loose sprays of wheat ears tied with a ribbon, a loop of the braid forming each kernel, with long stitches taken at the point. The ribbon was outlined with the braid couched long. The long space between the rows of braid was filled with cross stitch set closely together, as in shallow work. The whole could be done rapidly, but was as satisfactory as if days had been spent in setting stitches closely together.

This braid can be adapted to other flower forms and leaves in an effective manner. The use of it is a legitimate way of shirking, which the most conscientious needle worker would approve.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WORDS CAN NOT EXPRESS GRATITUDE TO CUTICURA

"Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for Cuticura Remedies. I had been troubled with eczema for five years on my ear and behind ears, and on my neck. I had been doctoring with the best physicians, but found no relief whatever. When informing them that I could not bear the itching I was told by one of our best doctors, 'not to scratch.'"

"Three," Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, costing me one-half of one visit to my physician. After using as directed, with plenty of hot water, I can truthfully state that I found instant relief. When I had used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I found my skin as soft and fine as a baby's. My circle of friends is very large, and I am persuading them to use Cuticura Soap, and give up the kinds they were using. Truly, I feel as my case has proven to them that if Cuticura Ointment is good, Cuticura Soap must be likewise good."

"I hesitate to send you the enclosed picture as it has been lying around in my desk for two years and is very soiled. At the time it was taken my ears were scaly and you will find some remnants of Cuticura Ointment on it, and, to me, it is very precious. I can now say where I looked at it that Cuticura is a blessing, and that is why I have kept it even though it was soiled. Miss Ketta Ayers, 132 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 1 and 15, 1906."

WHISKEY IN TORRENTS.

One Hundred and Twenty Thousand Gallons of "Fire Water" Rushes Down Street.

Men were struggling for life in the Glasgow streets one day late in November, waist deep in a torrent of hot whiskey.

It was during the breakfast hour that a vat collapsed at the Scottish Distilleries Co.'s Loch Katrine distillery, Muirhead street, in the Glasgow district of Glasgow, and between 120,000 and 140,000 gallons of hot liquid were let loose, flooding the distillery yard and the neighboring streets, sweeping workmen and others before it, and killing one man and injuring many others. The distillery is one of the oldest in Scotland, dating back to 1827. Over 100 hands are employed.

Burst Into Street.

The accident originated at the highest point of the building, which is probably about 60 feet in height, and it is believed that it was caused by the bursting of the main pipe which leads into No. 6 wash charger, a huge vessel containing at least 40,000 gallons of hot liquid. This fluid rushed down, and carried away two washbasins, or vats, containing about 3,000 gallons of wash. This tremendous quantity of liquid falling upon the floors of the different flats, swept them into the basement, where the draft for malt refuse house is situated, and burst its way into the narrow street, where there had gathered a number of farm servants with carts for the purpose of taking away loads of draft.

Struggling Waist Deep.

So great was the force of the torrent that men and horses were thrown across the narrow thoroughfare. The police were soon on the scene, and, assisted by the employees of the distillery, strove to get the sufferers removed from the surging mass of liquid, in which they were struggling waist deep. The first two men to be rescued were David Simpson and William O'Hara. They were in the draft house when overtaken by the descending flood. They were completely overwhelmed, and were washed from the basement out into the street, where they were found sunk in the rolling torrent. With the aid of the police, which with the mixture of draft had now almost the consistency of liquid glue. One man bore striking evidence of the force of the flood, being found in a semi-nude condition.

Exciting Escapes.

Only one of the four immense tanks erected together remain. The others collapsed like a house of cards. There were many exciting escapes. The liquid mass struck a bake house situated at the back of the draft house, and caused a panic among the workmen. One man was flung against the wall and stunned. The other men had great difficulty in getting out. Some of the machinery was swept along the floor of the bake house. In the upper story would not jump out of the windows to reach a place of safety, the staircase having been carried away.

QUEEN'S RARE TACT.

Charms King's Subjects—Instances of Her Majesty's Charity.

"The Queen, God bless her," was a toast enthusiastically pledged in all parts of the British Empire on the recent occasion of Her Majesty's birthday.

Her Majesty has endeavored herself to all classes of her husband's subjects by her rare tact and sympathetic consideration for the poor and afflicted.

Her deafness is, I am sorry to learn, giving her much trouble. At the opera the other evening, on a hint from Lady de Grey, some of the stage business of "Le Boheme" was hurriedly rearranged so that Mme. Melba and Signor Zenatello could sing their duets nearer the royal box than usual.

Like her mother, the late Queen of Denmark, Queen Alexandra possesses the gift of personal youth, and no body would think from a recent photograph of Her Majesty and the little Prince Olaf that she was a grandmother.

A story characteristic of the Queen's kindness of heart is being told just now. Her Majesty received an appeal from a discharged prisoner whose family was in great want. With her usual generosity the Queen was anxious to respond to the appeal, but it was represented that by doing so she would "lay herself open to constant future demands from the same source." Queen Alexandra, however, thinking to do good by stealth, sent a bank note anonymously, quite forgetting that the envelope in which the note was inclosed bore the direction "Buckingham Palace," and thus disclosed the source whence this kindly help came.

Another instance of Her Majesty's thoughtfulness may be mentioned. When the royal yacht was recently lying at Port Victoria the Queen evinced much interest in the work of the villagers who gather moss cast up by the sea, for which they find a market. Sea moss is dyed and used instead of the plumage of birds by milliners for the decorations of women's hats.

Her Majesty on hearing that the demand had fallen off, causing distress to the villagers, who were partly dependent on the trade for their livelihood, sent an order for a quantity of moss.

A TALL TIGER.

The Way the Sleek Brute Impressed an Excited Frenchman.

Tigers are impressive creatures, especially when one meets them in the forest. George Maxwell writes of them: "There is little doubt that almost every one has a peculiar sensation of the almost godlike beauty, power, activity and strength of a tiger. A tiger will overawe and make conscious of his inferiority a man who would be unaffected by the bulk of an elephant. The feeling is, however, elusive of description, and I can perhaps best explain it in the words of a most charming French gentleman who was once manager of a great tin mining company in Peru. We had just finished lunch when he entered in a state of tremendous excitement. Walking alone and unarmed along an unfrequented bridge path through the forest, he had walked almost on to a tiger."

"He gave us a most vivid narrative of the encounter—how the tiger had been lying down concealed in some long lalang grass beside the path; how he was within ten yards of it before he saw it; how then it rose and looked at him; how it yawned at him; how it then walked slowly across the path in front of him and then stopped and looked at him, again yawning, and how it then deliberately walked away into the forest, whose depths finally hid it from view."

"Some one asked the Frenchman whether it was a big tiger. He answered: 'Well, messieurs, I cannot say if he is a big tiger. My eyes see that he is big, but I cannot say how big I see him to be, and if I say how big it is perhaps that I tell you a lie. But I can tell you, messieurs, how big I feel him to be, and I can tell you the truth. When he is standing there in front of me I tell you that I feel he is not less than thirty feet high.'—Exchange.

THE ORIGIN OF GALL STONES.

They are simply dried bile, made up of crystalline constituents of that fluid. Very common is this disease among merchants, clergymen, shop-girls and those of sedentary habits. Prevention consists in maintaining correct action of the liver and bowels, which is best accomplished by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No person using this medicine need fear gallstones, nor will they ever be bilious. Sound digestion, good appetite, a clear color will evidence the healthy giving properties of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are the safest and best for general family use. ## Bloomer Trousers.

For the mothers who do their own sewing here is a method of making the bloomer trousers for small boys. One does not like the idea of an elastic in the bottom of the leg, as in order to hold it in place securely it must necessarily be tight enough to interfere with the circulation and to be very uncomfortable, especially in hot weather. Instead, finish the bottom with a band, comfortably loose, and in each seam sew a tape, in the other end of which make a buttonhole. The tapes are made the proper length so when those at the outside leg seams are buttoned to the side buttons of the waist and the others buttoned to the center front button the trousers are held securely in place, with no danger of slipping down, and the little man is comfortable.

Croup can positively be stopped in 20 minutes. No vomiting—nothing to sicken or distress your child. A sweet, pleasant, and safe Syrup, called Dr. Shoop's Croup Cure, does the work and does it quickly. Dr. Shoop's Croup Cure is for Croup alone, remember. It does not claim to cure a dozen ailments. It's for Croup, that's all.
