Legal Decisions.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his name or another's or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay up all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

"ONLY WAITING."

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the resper Have the last sheet gathered home, For the summer time is faded, And the autumn winds have come.

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

Only waiting till the shadows Are a little longer grown, Only waiting till the glimmer Of the day's last beam is shown;

Only waiting till the angels Open wide the mystic gate, At whose feet I long have lingered, Weary, poor and desolate.

MISER JOHN'S STORY.

"I'll forego on him, of course I will!" he softly chuckled as he rubbed his hands together.

"Heard me call me an old miser, and say I'm hard-hearted. It's a straight matter of business. I lend money on a mortgage; if the money isn't repaid I'm entitled to the security."

"It was 'Old John White,' as every man, woman and child in the town called him. When they didn't refer to him by that name it was to speak of him as 'Miser John,' 'Sticky White,' or 'Mean John.'"

"I had been with you for half a century, but never before this night have you seen me."

"'And—why to-night?' asked Miser John in a trembling voice. 'Because your life ends with the year! When the bells ring out the old and ring in the new you will be no more on earth.'

"'I've been with you all these long years, John White! You have been a usurer. You have let avarice triumph in your heart. Selfishness has chased all pity from your soul. The widow, the orphan, and the poor and unfortunate have appealed to you in vain.'"

"'Men have learned to hate you and children to shun you,' continued the voice. 'You have gold hidden away, but you have no friends. If your soul was to pass from earth to-night there is not one human being in all this world who would volunteer to toll your years upon the nearest church-bell. Point me to one who is your friend. Tell me the name of one you have befriended. If you have ever done one kind act towards humanity speak of it that I may have it recorded on the books of the angel in heaven.'"

"'I have had the horse, and watered the cattle, and hunted three hours for a twenty-cent pig, and chopped half a cord of elm for the house, and carried forty buckets of water to the horses, and shelled three bushels of corn by hand, and shovelled a road through ten feet of snow, and milked the cows and carried the milk to the depot, and doctored the old mare again in the evening, he goes to bed to get up again in the morning four hours before daylight and commences the whole thing over again.'—Atchison Globe.

Farm and Garden.

Keeping Vegetables Fresh.—The value of vegetables depends very largely upon their freshness.

Small Flocks Best.—One may keep ten or twelve fowls with profit who could not double or treble this number successfully, because with a larger number all the difficulties which arise, such as want of cleanliness, the presence of vermin, impure air and risk of infection, increase in a much larger ratio than does the number in the flock.

Roads.—Good roads not only save horse flesh but vehicles. Take what are ordinarily called "good roads" and "bad roads," and a vehicle used on the first only will last twice as long, at least, as one used on the latter.

When the sextons stood in the churches to ring the requiem of the dying year, and then to peal the doctored bells to welcome in the new, men came to them and said:

"When that is done you must toll the death of Miser John. He died an hour ago."—Detroit Free Press.

Fun That Farmers Have.

It is a frequent saying that in winter a farmer has nothing to do but enjoy himself, that when the blizzards send in their cards, he can draw his chair up to the stove, put his feet in the oven, and spend the day reading the Globe and the Church Herald, and other moral works.

The breed is well adapted to make the most of short commons or the best of abundance—hardy, active, prolific, going all to milk when milking, and filling on flesh when dry—a breed every farmer and dairyman who owns one is proud of, filling the eye and filling the pail.

The Cattle of Ayrshire.—The Ayrshires are to us exceedingly attractive on account of their unbroken color, the white spots and flecks contrasting beautifully with dark red or brown of the body color, the color, as a rule, being intensified along the edges of the white, and yet, strange to say, there is a craze for solid colors among breeders.

"Harper's Monthly" for August says C. B. Lewis (M. Quad) is perhaps the most unique and genuine humorist this country has produced. He is natural, witty and spontaneously funny, and of universal appeal, as is witnessed by the wide popularity of the Detroit Free Press. As a family paper, the Free Press cannot be excelled.

The ACADIAN speaks for itself. It is a necessity to every resident in this section who would keep himself posted on local affairs. Subscriptions under this offer will be accepted only a limited length of time. SUBSCRIBE AT ONCE!

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alum or phosphate powders.
