NEW SCHOOL FOR DUNDAS.

Board Will Submit By-law to Raise $25,000.

All the Schools Are at Present Filled to Capacity.

Chairman Burton Resigns, Having Gone to Montreal.

Dundas, Sept. 17.—The matter greatest interest before the Board of Education, at its September meeting last evening, was the old question of overcrowded state of the schools At a previous meeting a special comwas appointed to look into the question and report. This committee's report was submitted to the board by its chairman, J. J. Steel. It stated that in the three rooms of the High school there were now 104 pupils in attendance and in ten rooms in the Public School there was an attendance of 474. To provide room now necessary and for the still in-creasing attendance which is certain owcreasing attendance which is certain owing to growing prosperity of the town two courses were open to the board. One was to enlarge the present buildings at a probable cost of $15,000 or $16,000, or to erect new buildings on a separate site at a probable-cost of $25,000. Owing to the fact that many advantages would result from providing new buildings for High School purposes, the committee recommended that new buildings be provided. At present the government grant and the county grant are $707 each, and the school buildings and equipment have been given about a third-class rating. By providing a new High school building it was expected that a first-class rating would be received which would materially increase both these grants, the increase being sufboth these grants, the increase being sufficient to materially aid in paying the interest on the investment. Besides this ficient to materially aid in paying the interest on the investment. Besides this it was thought that about $1,000 would be saved the townspeople who were now sending pupils to the Hamilton schools. The report was discussed at considerable length and a motion passed, practically unanimous, endorsing the committee's recommendation and appointing Trustees Steele, Douglas and Davidson a committee to wait upon the council at its next meeting and request the raising of the $25,000 by debentures, the building to be erected on grounds other than those now occupied for school purposes,

A number of accounts were presented for payment. Those certified ts were ordered to be paid, the others to be paid when certified. Two of these accounts, one from J. M. Peter B. Burton wrote tendering his resignation as Chairman of the Board owing to his removal to Montreal. He also resigned as trustee for Canal Ward. His resignation as chairman was accepted with regrets. In sending his resignation he urged the board to go on with the prosposed new High school building and when the vote on issuing debentures for the same was taken he would be up from Montreal to cast his vote for it.

COTTON SUPPLY.

To ascertain the prospective supply on Aug. 31, 1908, and the possibility of the predicted "cotton famine." I have applied these figures to the season of 1907-8, estithese figures to the season of 1807-8, estimating the American crop for that season at 12,500,000 bales of 500 pounds each, and the crops of other countries the same as last year. The present indications are that they will be larger. While I have estimated the American crop at 12,500,000 bales, I think it quite possible it may be 13,500,000 or more, and, in that case, with the manifest contraction in trade, I shall not be surprised to see cotton sell at eight cents a pound to see cotton sell at eight cents a pound or lower. It is because I venture the suggestion of this possibility at a time when nearly everyone is bullish that I ask those who receive this card, to preserve it, that if I am wrong it may be a matter of record.—Theodore H. Price, New York.

cream is a nourishing article of diet, and many delicate children with small appetites digest it easily and thrive upon it. It can be given a tablespoonful at a time in a baby's bottle. Older children can have it added to their porridge, and it may be used to spread upon bread. With the addition of a little golden syzup it is generally enjoyed by children, and it often tempts them to eat heartily when they otherwise would not do so.

LIFE AND WORK OF BURBANK

Luther Burbank has been called a wizard, but the term is misleading, writes George Wharton James in the Circle. There is no wizardly in his achievement. Yet to accompany him to his acctus patch and there see the great, heavy leaved desert plant, so covered with fierce thorns that even to stand near it makes one squirm, and then to follow step by step, where in different sections, he shows the cactus slowly losing its thorns, urtil you stand before a group late. It has been suffered to be suffered to the suddentity dives headed to be suffered to you the fruit of this same cactus—the prickly pear of the Indian—but wholly free from thorns and changed from the tasteless, fibrous: seedy fruit to a richly flavored, juicy, delicious table luxury.

In his garden not far from the cactus patch is his wonderful crimson rhubab. Here is the popular ple plant, with stalks two inches thick, and growing all the time, winter and summer, so that the ubiquitous pie may be made fresh from the garden all they are any summer so that the ubiquitous pie may be made fresh from the garden all they continued the summer of the summer wonderfully diverse, and the whole foliage and biossoms bewilder us by their strange diversity.

Some of these popples are vast in size. Seven of them placed side by side vertically are as tall as a tall man, eight as high as a ziant, and one could hide completely behind a dozen of them. In color they are a mass of crimson and black and white, with many intermediate blendings, and unlike the ordinary poppy, which blossoms only for two or three weeks, these are perennials and flower all the time. The amaryllis also shews the marvellous life power of his work. In a few years he has developed it from a small flower with a few inches of breadth to nearly a food in diameter, with every shade of orlinaton, plast or scarlet and many, astenishing combination with every shade of orlinaton, plast or scarlet and many, astenishing combination of the contract of the ordinary mind to see the gradual transformation of a small butb to one four times its size and five or more times its weight and with its power of multiplication increased eight to ten fold. To watch the development or creation of a new stem is eausily magical. The old amaryllis stem could never have held these large new flowers, so a stocky, strong, low stem was created.

Furbank has taken the IIIy and worked wonders with it. I have stood side by side with him looking at a bed of illies upon which he had worked for twent-six years. "You are looking with me upon flowers that the eye of man has never seen before." And then one by one he tenderly touched a score or more of them, calling attention to their wonderful colorings, differences in size, leafage, etc.

heir wonderful colorings, differences in size, leafage, etc.
His achievements with the daisy are more fascinating than a fairy tale. From England, Japan, Germany, Australia—everywhere that daistes grew—he got seeds of the best varieties, not a few but hundreds, thousands. These were carefully planted and watched. These were carefully planted and watched, of their dealt was not come denew daisy, larger, more beautiful more hardy and that would flower in every climate perennially.

These were carefully planted and watched. They were all going to be alian, but out of their death was to come a new daisy, larger, more beautiful more hardy and that would flower in every climate perennially. The result was his Shasta daisy, one of the most beautiful flowers ever reen—of clear brillant white, greet size, the centre of pury yellow resting upon slender yet strong stems. Ten thousand seeds required for this one experiment? Yes, and often our five hundred thousand beto dealing that has differentiated in the seedly learned that was a starter of the seedly learned that seeds were on a starter Millions and millions of daisies were not to be obtained from inadequate methods. To most people Burbank appears shy and reserved, almost to diffidence and timidity. He is shrinking in a sense, but let questions be put to him about his work or his thought and his answers are as clear, sharp and de-cisive as those of any man I ever know. There is no aggressiveness and chrity that show he has thought long and deeply and seme to all his conclusions for himself, yet he has the spirit of a boy.
