apology.
Attorney-General Webster replied that but for the duty he owed those who trusted him he would not have noticed the charges made by Sir William. If he were capable of the conduct imputed to him he would be a disgrace to the English bar. He was private counsel for The Times. It was immaterial whether he had been right or wrong in assuming that postion, although it was doubtful whether he had been product.

In response to a further question Attorney General Webster defended his course at great length. Mr. Parnell also addressed the House. Some epithets were bendied across the floor, and the chair was repeatedly forced to call members to order.

Labby May Be Leader.

New York, March 22.—Mr. Smalley cables The Tribune from London: The microscopie investigation into the alleged relations between the ministry and The Times, Pigott, LeCaron and the rest is pursued daily in the House of Commons by the Gladstonians and Parnellites with ever-increasing rest. There are, however, several more important matters pending. Not the least important is the question whether Labouchere is to lead the Liberal party. He leads already, perhaps, the entire Radical left wing of the party, and he and his colleagues are impatient with the more respectable Gladstonians. "It is respectable Gladstonians. "It is respectability which ruins us," he is reported to have said recently. It was not his own respectability and to take the lead into his own hands. "I will not," said Labouchere in the House of Commons, "give the Government an opportunity of getting a single sixpence; so long as they refuse to consult the country we will put every obstacle we can in the way of the transaction of public tusiness." He has been as good or as bad as his word. With a view, as he said cynically, of giving practical effect to his policy, he the same night put down twenty good or as bad as his word. With a view, as he said cynically, of giving practical effect to his policy, he the same night put down twenty notices of motion.

Labouchere's chief allies or agents seem to be Healy and Sir William Harcourt. Gladstone is absent from the House on account of his brother's death, and Sir William succeeds to his authority during his absence which the same of the his brother's death, and Sir William succeeds to his authority during his absence, which is expected to last at least a week, Gladstone having gone to Scotland to attend the funeral. Before he comes back the Liberal party may be irretrievably committed to a policy which presages nothing but disaster. That policy is something more than obstruction. If the threats mean anything, they mean that the minority will not allow the Government to be carried on. No money will be voted if they can prevent it, and no business will be done. It is a policy of paralysis. Should it be supported vens it, and no unsiness will be done. It is a policy of paralysis. Should it be supported by the minority as a whole what Prince Albert once said will have come true. Parliamentary government will be on its trial. What Labouchers and Sir William Harcourt threaten is nothing less than a negation of the parliamentary system. That the country will never stand.

A White Book on Samoan Affairs. BERLIN, March 22.—The Government has issued a white book on Samoan affairs. It shows that on March 9 Prince Bismarck wrote shows that on March 9 Prince Bismarck wrote to Herr Steubel, the newly appointed consul of Germany to Samoa, describing the conduct of Dr. Knappe, his predecessor in the office, as lacking in calmness and coolness and as contrary to the lines of Emperor William's policy, with which Dr. Knappe had been well acquainted. Knappe, Prince Bismarck wrote, apparently lost his head owing to a letter from Herr Branders, Tamasese's Prime Minister, which was published in the last white book and the presence of three men-of-war at Samoa.

Prestr, March 22.—In the Lower House of the Diet to-day Herr Orlean denounced the police for interfereing with the students' demonstrations. Premier von Tisza replying referred to his efforts to consolidate Hungary. He deprecated appeals to the mob and said he would never admit that the majority should submit to the tyranny of the minority. The police had only done their duty.

How Kable Supported His Mother.

FREEDORT, March 22.—Walter H. Kable was arrested here to-day charged with extensive robbery of the mails. He has been employed in the baggage room of the Northwestern depot and it was his duty to transfer the north bound mail from the Northwestern to the Illinois Central trains. Tuesday night inspectors had themselves in the baggage room and caught Kable robbing one of the ponches. He said be committed the crime because he supported a norther. No idea can be formed as to the amount of his peculations. His room was found full of mail matter. How Kable Supported His Mother.

LONDON, March 22.—In the House of Commons to day Sir William Vernon Harcourt, resuming the discussion regarding the Parnell Commission, declared that Attorney-General Webster's identification with the Commission had destroyed the impression that the Government would be impartial and added weight to The Times charges. If the Attorney-General and not adjusted the If the Attorney-General and not advised the Government Parliament should not vote a salary for services he sad not performed. Cincinnati, March 22.—Patrick Trainor, formerly a prosperous contractor, but who became dissipated and lost his business, quarreled with his wife to-day because she had nothing to eat in the house. How to Write Advertisement Advertising is a form of "drumming" or canvassing, with the drummer or can-vasser left out. It lasks the advantage of direct personal address, the adaptation of statement or offer to each case, and the display of samples; but, on the other hand, it is infinitely cheaper than personal canvassing or visitation, in proportion to the number of possible cus tomers reached. Though the agency of the canvasser be omitted, it does follow that his professional methods are unsuited to the substituted service of the advertisement, so far as they can be applied. A drummer or canvasser who is master of his business is careful to observe certain fundamental rules. He never begins operations upon a customerexpectant by soliciting an order, but sarts off by an exhibition and a description of the thing he has to sell, dwelling upon its utility and value, the skill and labor invelved in its production, and the impossibity hitherto of getting anything equal to it at the price now fixed upon it. Criticisms and object tions he does not attempt to meet by direct argument or statement -- a course that he knows would only tend to arouse the contentious faculty in his hearer; but he keeps right on with his explanation and commendation of his commodity, working in his counter-points indirectly and inoffensively. He makes incidental Mr. Redmond's motion to reduce the Attorney-General's salary was rejected, 286 used, or bought or praised the article, avoiding, however, any appearance of supposing that the judgment of his pre-sent auditor could be affected by what others have done, or said, or thought. When he sees that the desired impression has been made, he worke carefully round to the point that he has had in view all along, and gradually unfolds the advantages to the desired customer of giving an order; and not till the latter as conditionally or prospectively committed himself does he enter upon the last stage of inducing an unconditional and immediate purchase. However much his patience and other feelings may have been tried, he preserves a sunny demeanor to the end, knowing from oft-repeated experience, and from observa-tion of human nature, that in a majority of cases the erd will crown the means and salve his momentary wounds.

The procedure above outlined is not capable of full or invariable application to every case or kind of advertising, but it embodies a set of principles some of which will nearly always be found to fit the circumstances of the special in-stance. Where an advertiser is not cramped for space and can put his announcement in the form of ample narra-tion, he is sure to follow the rules, con-sciously or unconsciously, if qualified for the business of advertisement writing, and the more fully and closely he follows them, as laid down above, the more effective will be his advertisement.— Printers' Ink.

To clear Jellies and Soups .- The success of jellies depends greatly on their clearness, and to secure this an experienced cook advises the following process, also applicable to soups: When the jelly or soup is made and the fat all removed, put it into a very clean saucepan, with the whites (lightly whipped to a froth)and shells of two or three eggs for an ordinary quantity of soup, jelly, etc. (two whites and shells for the first quart and a half, and one for each succeeding quart is a fair average), and bring it all well to a boil, whisking it all the time to prevent its burning; then pour it through a napkin (if for soup) or a London, March 22.—Mabel Love, the young Gaiety Theatre actiess who disappeared a few days ago, and was supposed to have eloped with a prominent young nobleman, was found to-day by detectives in Dublin. She was alone and declares that she ran away from home on account of a tiff which she had had with her mother. She will return to London to-night in charge of a distriction of the sound of the from having boiling water run through it, or from being wrung out of scalding water, and last, but not least, neither soup nor jelly should be handled while being run through the bag, as any pres-

Take Life in Earnest.

I meet with a great many persons in the course of a year, whom I admire and like; but I feel daily more and more to need, and as life rises every year more and more before me in this true reality, is to have intercourse with those who life in earnest. It is very painful for me to be always on the surface of things; Referring to Knappe's subsequent proposal to annex Samoa, Prince Bismarck reiterates his view that to seek to effect a change in the political situation in Samoa without the cousent of England and America would not accord with treaty arrangements. Knappe's action reverting to the question of annexation is incomprehensible because his experience and instructions ought to have shown him that his desire to annex Samoa was opposed to the policy conducted by the Chancellor in conformity with the Emperor's intentions. and I feel that literature, science, politics conversations; but I want a sign which one catches as by a sort of intuition, that a man knows what he is about in life, whither tending, in what cause engaged and when I find this, it seems to open ny heart as thoroughly and with as fresh a sympathy, as when I was twenty
