Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

Some day all things seem going wrong, and life is not a grand sweet song. A man has work piled up so high that just to view it makes him sigh; he's busy right down to his boots, needs every minute as it scots; and while his nerves are all unstrung, there comes a man with rubber tongue, who holds him with a clammy hand, and says: "I sell Alaska land. O, buy yourself a happy home! I have some lemon groves near Nome, or I can sell you wooded tracts, and mountains mines and cataracts, and polar bears and salmon streams, and coal land claims and other dreams. Alaska, fair and picturesque! Why wear your life out at your desk, when you can seek that magic land, and gather booty with each hand?" Why do the agents always come when life seems dour and out of plumb, to sell us lands we wouldn't have, and soap and sealing wax and salve? And when we kill them we're run in, the same as thought it were a sin.

Fancy Sale Successful.

The fancy sale held at "Richmond," the residence of Mrs. W. A. Munn, yesterday afternoon was most successful. It was held in aid of the C. of E. Orphanage and was under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Williams, both of whom were present with Mr. T. C. Fitzherbert, Private Secretary, and Mr. J. Chalmers, A.D.C. The band of the C.L.B. discoursed some excellent selections during the afternoon, and the sale, which was under the direction of the lady managers, drew many patrons to the handsome and well filled stalls. Teas were presided over by the Misses Browning (2), Mesdames W. Monroe, Gosling, Jno. Harvey and other lady friends of the Orphanage. The total receipts amounted to $220, $50 of which were taken at the entrance. The fine weather prevailing enhanced the pleasure which all who attended extracted from the sale. We heartily enjoyed at the sale. We heartily enjoyed at the sale.

Heart's Content Extension vs. Bay de Verde Branch

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—We have just read a letter from Mr. W. A. Munn in reference to the extension of the Railway into Bay de Verde District. If he had simply advocated the Railway to be brought to the thrifty and hard-working people of that District we would not have taken any exception to his remarks, but his endeavour to disparage the extension along the rough shore of Trinity Bay South has stirred the indignation of everyone. From his first paragraph he appears to know more of the Government's plans re the proposed route than some members of the Executive, i.e., if they can be credited with telling the truth; but then we remember Mr. Willie was abroad a while ago, perhaps he was reading the contract and knows how to interpret the contract, for he says the wording of it can be easily construed to mean its extension to Old Perlican in one direction and Heart's Content in another direction. We have often heard it said that some lawyers can make white black, and black white, and that they will do and say anything to suit their own.

Selfish Purposes.

He tries to emphasize what he writes by referring to what he calls the incontrovertible arguments of Rev. Mr. Lench, presumably thinking that his name (Mr. L's) will cast some halo about his letter. There were many things in his letter which could be gainsaid, particularly when he speaks of the population, pointing out that there are five times more people living on the North Shore than on the corresponding shore of Trinity Bay. If these gentlemen had taken a little trouble and looked up the Census Returns for 1901 they would have found the population of that District 8,827 and the population of the District through which the proposed line would be built in this District, or from Head Cove to Broad Cove, was 6,959, a difference of 2,868. According to the contract the Government was to build the Heart's Content Branch from Broad Cove to Grates Cove, so by its intentions that route would take in a population of 8,370. Mark the difference, gentle reader, five times greater, and yet these writers will tell you in one letter Bay de Verde has a population of 12,000, and in another, 15,000—what mammoth exaggerations. If they try to prove their contentions by births during the ten years they will likely find that the propagation of the race in this District has kept pace at the same ratio, and I question if our emigration has been half as great as theirs. The newly appointed Magistrate has devalued of that District retaining its population, and can count many vacant homes. I think the Rev. Mr. Lench should have made himself better acquainted with the route of the Ethie before saying she makes regular calls to places she never enters. Heart's Content, Scilly Cove and Hart's Harbor are her only scheduled ports of call, on this shore and apart from Old Perlican does not Bay de Verde, Northern Bay and Western Bay receive similar visits and like benefits of her services. He also thinks Green's Harbor, New Harbor, Dildo and other places should.

Wait a Little Longer

for the Railway; for their population not as great and are not of as much importance in trade, etc., as Freshwater, Salmon Cove and other places which are now only a very short distance from Carbonear? Missionaries and others who travel from Heart's Content along the proposed line of Railway do not find the distance so great, nor the country so uninhabited as he writes. Heart's Delight, Heart's Desire and other places are on this line and they are thrifty and industrious, too. After the Railway reaches Heart's Content

Advocated Free Trade.

Special to Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, To-Day.
The Democratic leaders are prepared for an attempt by the Republicans to oppose the Reciprocity Bill in order to embarrass the Democratic majority in the passage of the bill by proposing an amendment to the free list that the Democratic committee prepared as their first party tariff measure. An effort will be made to wind up the open debate on the agreement to-morrow night. Mr. George, Jr., of New York, in a maiden speech proclaimed himself a free trader, and endorsed the Canadian agreement as tending towards freer trade. He believed that the States would eventually have absolute free trade with the world.

will not the people of New Perlican want it to be brought to their door, as they will be as far from it as Freshwater is from Catalina. Their population is just as large. Is not the thriving town of Scilly Cove with its population as great as Western Bay (North, South, and Riverhead) but of as much importance? Their industry is known far and wide and their trade is as great as any people anywhere considering population. If Rev. Mr. Lench and Mr. Munn think these and all other people along this shore are going to let them bring pressure upon the Government to change the proposed route in favour of others whose interest they have at heart, they will find it will not be done without protest, or if they think their representatives can't look after their interests, and are not enough in earnest in this matter, and they wish to plead for them why by all means do it, but do it honourably without trying to belittle others, and

Remember the Admonition:

"Look not every man on his own things but every man also on the things of others." Mr. Munn is delighted to corroborate all Rev. Mr. Lench wrote, and says this thing and that thing is perfectly correct. Were twin brothers ever more alike? Why did these writers show some enthusiasm in this matter ere this? Why did they not petition the Legislature if they were so desirous to have the Railway brought to that District? But not so, they were at ease while Trinity Bay South, for years, as can be proven by back files of the dailies, was keeping up an agitation and pleading for the extension of the Railway along this rough seaboard so that freight and traffic could be carried on in comfort and our many miles of virgin soil opened up. But as soon as they hear of the survey of the line they appear as one awakened from a great slumber and all at once want to overtake those who worked and would not scruple to appear to have Trinity Bay South deprived of its just right and title, but we will not part with our birthright nor surrender to anyone the right by contract of the Railway along our shore to Grates Cove. Mr. Munn seems concerned about the timber belt along this shore and says the residents and mill owners are protesting against the Railway being built, etc. I think this is the greatest absurdity of all. He must have been indulging in a depressed state of mind and could not think clearly, for if the Railway is built along this sea-coast to give every place the benefit of it, as I understand the Minister of Justice said, was the intention of the Government, it will not come in contact with the wooded country anywhere, and I venture to say the Messrs. Reid will find it to be one of the easiest and most paying lines they ever built. It will also open up miles of good agricultural land and bestow a boon and give an impetus to all our people. We have the land, fertile and rich, able to support hundreds of people and it simply needs the Railway to open it up and

Give the Convenience

which it affords. When the late Rev. Mr. Kenell, one of a Commission, was sent to look up the best land of the country several years ago, his testimonial was that ours was the best he had seen outside the Codroy Valley, and this is only one of many who admire our lands. If Mr. Munn will name these mill-owners he refers to, I will send him the names of others who have no fear of that kind, but are yearning more than ever for the appearing and snort of the iron horse. Give us the Railway, Sir Edward, as you promised at Old Perlican last election. We all remember your words now. Your contract implied its extension in our direction, we have every confidence that you will carry out its meaning to the letter, don't be balked and coerced to do otherwise but stabilize our confidence and merit our appreciation. We will now return to his remarks on the partridge berry industry. Many know last season, he and others of his like, did grab all the partridge berries he could lay hands on. Very many know he is interested in this industry; perhaps it is a source of wealth to him. But I can tell him it was trouble and loss to the outport business man, whose anger is stirred every time mention is made of the berry. It's not all blessings that follow the memory of last year's transaction.

Yours truly,
