"If They're Neat They're Cranky."

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"If they are neat and particular they're usually cranky, and if they are pleasant and easy going they're pretty sure to be slack." This dictum was uttered by a friend of mine during a conversation on—surely you can guess what.

The maid question, of course.

She had just acquired a new maid and was meticulously neat and particular about her kitchen, conscientious in her cleaning, very dainty and careful about the table service. My friend had been delighted with her treasure at first, as the maid who had departed had been distinctly slack.

The Other Side Of Her Qualities.

And then she discovered that the new maid did not like children, was nervous and irritable if the meals were ever delayed, and thrown entirely out of her stride if unexpected company appeared (as they sometimes will do unless you deliberately establish a reputation for inhospitality).

The result of this discovery was her dictum. I think it is a very wise conclusion, don't you?

And I think maids are by no means the only ones to whom it applies.

I Do Not Like Being Run By Clock-Work.

When I went to a certain place I used to visit two friends who both lived in that town. At one home everything was always in the pink of order, meals were daintily served, and always on time, the house seemed run by clockwork. I liked the order and the repose, but I did not like the clockwork. For, alas, the guests were supposed to be run in the same way. And I do not take kindly to clockwork.

In the other home, things were run in a haphazard fashion. Meals did not always appear on time, the service was often casual, the house frequently in more or less disorder. But mine hostess was just as easy going with her guests as she was with her house. They had perfect freedom, she did not offer them punctilious attentions nor expect them in return. If one wished to telephone at the last minute that one was unexpectedly detained and could not be at home for a meal she understood perfectly.

The Reverse Of The Medal.

Its just the old situation of "les défauts des qualités." The other side of neatness and particularly is exactingness with others; the other side of easygoingness is slackness. There may be people who are exacting with themselves and easy going with others but that is a height of self culture that one should not expect from ordinary mortals.

I think the best thing is to decide which faults you mind least, and which virtues you enjoy most, and select your maids, your friends, etc., accordingly.

We have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in our home for a number of years and use no other Liniment but MINARD'S, and we can recommend it highly for sprains, bruises, pains or tightness of the chest, soreness of the throat, headache or anything of that sort. We will not be without it one single day, for we get a new bottle before the other is all used. I can recommend it highly to anyone.

THE WAR LORD.

WALT MASON

The War Lord talks no more of art, or paints his own punk pictures; no more he makes the painters a mart with far fetched praise or strictures.

The War Lord talks no more of song, or points out poets' folly, or shows where Schiller got in wrong, where Goethe jumped his trolley. The War Lord hasn't talked for moons of music, as a master, nor shown how Handel's labored tunes were simply a disaster. The arts are having quite a rest, that once he tore to tatters; the War Lord in his bright vest, must tend to other matters. His men are weary of his war, they're sulking and they're striking; ignoble peace they're yearning for, and this keeps William hiking. His sub cam-pan is falling flat, so flat the press bewails it; the War Lord, in his soldiered hat, must find out just what ails it. The Russians seem disposed to flirt, and won't stand hitched a minute; the War Lord, in his pewee shirt, quits a rest, that once he tore to tatters; the War Lord, in his bright

vest, must tend to other matters. His men are weary of his war, they're sulking and they're striking; ignoble

peace they're yearning for, and this keeps William hiking. His sub cam-

Man and Wife Frozen to Death.

The Minister of Justice has received the following message from Magistrate Scott, who is at present in Herring Neck: "In the storm Monday, a man named Sheppard and his wife left their home at Manuel's Cove, evidently to go to a relative's home some miles away. They were missed Tuesday and yesterday their dead bodies were found on the ice. Will hold an enquiry on my return to Twillingate."

Mother! Give Child "Syrup of Figs" if Tongue is Coated.

If cross, feverish, sick, bilious, clean little liver and bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver, and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen to M. I. See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle.

Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

More Letters Recovered.

The mail bag containing letters and papers for the 8th Regiment lost on the ill-fated Florizel has been recovered. The letters are in fair condition. The papers are, however, reduced to pulp and cannot be disposed of in the usual manner. Yesterday the letters were carefully separated and dried by the officials of the Dead Letter Department and this morning were being disposed of in the regular way. All letters whose addresses are legible will be forwarded immediately while the others will be treated according to the regulations of the D. L. O. Everything possible is being done to ensure the safe and secret treatment of all correspondence.

Two registered letters have been recovered and the senders have been notified. Another bag containing papers which have been reduced to pulp and an empty parcel hamper have also been found.

In Loving Memory.

OF W. F. BUTLER, DROWNED FROM THE FLORIZEL.

Again, the treacherous sea gives back its dead, for manhood's strength and wisdom. His, what has it sent instead? His loving hearts and arms outstretched, there only come frozen corpses; stricken, and blind, dead and dumb.

And he, for whom we waited each sad day, that would that he were now, as when he went away. For brothers, who lay their hand in thine, receive no 'clasp,' and make no answering sign.

And sisters will shed, above his head, Recount each kindly act, recalling childhood's years, Nor will he deem it strange that she who came to him as bride, is not the first, as aye, to hasten to his side.

His knew not in his slumber deep that she— First fruits of that dread, "Harvest of the Sea." Awaits him, where the stars their vigils keep, O'er the lone mound where she has lain asleep.

And one whose thoughts are not of storms or space But only prays for time to look upon his face, He cannot now return her fond caress, Nor hear her cry that she is fatherless.

His only one, and yet, to him it was denied, That he should keep her, ever at his side, And as he gladly journey, year by year, That in a sunny clime, where days grew clear, Within a father's care she should her strength renew.

And days sped glad o'er their heads, and skies were blue, "Father of the fatherless" be thou now her stay, And of all who have lost a father, love to-day.

Church, and Tower, and Hall, we see them as they stand, They are his monuments of skill and brain and hand, Each arch and angle, lined into its place That add unto the structure, symmetry and grace.

Detail upon detail, just as his fingers planned, we shall, in time advances, behold the building stand, And he, cut short from life, from friends, from home, Has suffered death's cold pangs out of the raging foam.

God's will be done, we say, and try to think 'tis best, For God has called our loved one from his work to rest.

LYDIA CHANCEY.

St. Patrick's Celebration

AT HOLYROOD.
The Star of the Sea Association held their monthly meeting on Sunday last and it was decided to celebrate the Feast of the great Saint with the usual ceremonies and festivities on Monday next, the 18th inst. The members will parade to the church, assist at Mass, receive Holy Communion for a body and be treated with a panegyric on Ireland's Apostle.

On Monday evening next, in the Star Hall, Miss Flynn, the talented organist, and her amateur troupe will produce the concert which has been in course of preparation for some weeks. The programme is interspersed with songs breathing Irish atmosphere and crowned with the charming operetta, promising well for all previous performances. The dance, at which Mr. Grancy will direct his popular notes, and a supper will follow the concert, so that a good old Irish night is in store for all the patrons of Miss Flynn and her amateur troupe.

Mr. Jones' Lecture.
Wednesday evening in the Assembly Room of the Springdale St. Commercial School, a patriotic lecture on "The trials and triumphs of our Armies in Mesopotamia," beautifully illustrated by the Scholastic new moving picture machine, was delivered by Mr. H. Jones, Esq., to the Commercial Evening Classes, numbering over 100 pupils even at the end of the third term. About 50 visitors also attended including Capt. E. Dawe who proposed a vote of thanks to the learned lecturer for the intellectual treat he had given, that would long be remembered and do much good; and both Mr. and Mrs. Jones complimented the Principal of the School, Mr. F. G. Butler and the teachers, Mr. Bowa (Accountancy and English), Miss Hardisty (Stenography), Mr. Barnes (English and Arithmetic), Miss Crumlin (Typewriting), Mr. Butler (Debate) and Miss Freeman (Telegraphy), for the splendid appearance of the classes that all had seen at work in entering, showing that a great deal was being accomplished at the institution to help forward the educational advancement of the city.
