Congratulated By Lansdowne

Buller Wins Praise From the War Office.

The Unlucky Dorsets Earn the Commander's Commendation

—How Allemann's Pass Was Forced—The Heights Gallantly Stormed—British Prisoners Suffer From Cold

—Tons of Supplies Reaching the Boers Via Delagoa Bay.

London, June 15.—The war office has made public a dispatch from Gen. Buller, accepting the congratulations of the secretary of state for war, Lord Lansdowne, in which he says: "The Dorsets who have been unlucky had a chance at Almonds Nek, and showed themselves to be as good as any others."

"About 150 yards at each end of Laings Nek tunnel are blown in, and it will require several days to remove the debris. The line, otherwise, is uninjured, and open to the reversing stations, and also to Sandespruit."

Gen. Buller says Gen. Clery encountered no opposition in his march from Ingogo to Laings Nek, which he now occupies. Gen. Dartnell marched through Laings Nek June 13, on his way to Charlestown.

The press dispatches say Charlestown was partially destroyed previous to its evacuation by the Boers, but that no damage was done at Volksrust.

BULLER'S ADVANCE.
Gen. Buller will be unable to advance further until he gets supplies. He will probably wait until the tunnel has been cleared.

Nearly every farm house his troops passed flew a white flag. The British took nothing without paying for it, and a brisk business was done in milk, eggs, bread and chickens by thrifty housewives, who were pleased to get so much English money. One woman, whose husband and two sons have been fighting, said: "You British are unlike our people. They took my horses in exchange for sheep, and made me make butter, which they never paid me for. I am sending to have my men come home at once."

Usually the first question a Boer woman puts is: "Will my husband be shot if he is captured?" One young man was pulled from under the bed and he went on his knees, begging the British patrol not to shoot him.

AT ALLEMAN'S NEK.
The correspondents' accounts of the fighting at Allemann's Nek, if accurate, must be taken as confirmation of the reports of the extreme demoralization of the Boers. The Standard's correspondent describes the Nek as a position of immense natural strength. Hills of great height rise almost abruptly from the road, which winds round precipitous rocky slopes. The position might have been held with ease by 500 determined men against 10,000. The natural protection of the pass is continued on either side by ascending ranges of hills, cleft by sudden precipices and deep ravines. There was only one way for the column to go up. There was only one thing to do. It had to force the pass and storm the heights commanding it.

The assault was delivered, position after position was carried, and the Nek and commanding heights were in possession of the British with exceptionally small losses. It was one of the finest and most dashing engagements of the Natal campaign.

The same correspondent, under date of June 13, records that the Boers, numbering some thousands, succeeded in getting away with their guns. They retired to Ermelo. The white flag is flying everywhere. The women are all in tears, ignorant of whether their husbands and brothers are dead or alive.

The Canadians.

DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES

London, June 14.—The Morning Standard correspondent at Koonstad, cabling yesterday, says that at Yester Nek the Canadians were ordered to advance toward the enemy's front, and to take cover and to hold the enemy within long-range fire. The Canadians advanced under a heavy shell fire from three guns over a dead level plain, and gained the foot of a slight ridge before the main range held by the Boers, and took cover behind a stone wall. All the time they were pouring a steady well-aimed fusillade at the enemy, and finding themselves outflanked, the Boers left during the night.

According to the Standard's correspondent, the Canadians figured prominently in forcing Botha to evacuate his position near Pretoria.

Capt. Baker, of C. Company, who has been in the hospital in South Africa, has returned to duty.

TWO MISSING.

The war office issues the following list of casualties:

Missing at Koonstad June 5—Ptes. F. Perry and J. F. Bollen, of the Canadian Mounted Infantry.

SICK.
Ottawa, June 14.—Sir Alfred Milner

Decay of The Teeth

Arises from various causes, but principally it may be attributed to early neglect or the indiscriminate use of tooth powders and pastes which give a momentary whiteness to the teeth while they corrode the enamel.

The timely use of that delicate, aromatic tooth wash, ODONTINE (C. & L.) will speedily arrest the progress of decay, harden the gums and impart a delightful fragrance to the breath.

Odontine (C. & L.) whitens and preserves the teeth and the enamel, removes tartar, destroys fermentation—the cause of decay—makes the gums rosy and healthy. Only 25 cents.

was splendidly attractive, especially when seen by the warm glow of the red lights. The views of "Bobs" and Queen Victoria were received enthusiastically. The entertainment was concluded by the brigaded bands playing an evening hymn and the National Anthem.

Yesterday afternoon, when the review had been concluded, Col. Aylmer complimented the officers highly upon the splendid appearance of the men. In speaking of the camp afterwards he said that the ground was rather small and that there was consequent crowding. This had been overcome partially by the splendid plan of laying it out that had been adopted by Lieut.-Col. Holmes. He considered that the cleanliness, the hospital and cooking arrangements could not be improved upon. On all sides he had heard praise for the rations this year, notwithstanding the fact that the allowance of bread to each man had been reduced half a pound per day. In commenting upon the size of the camp, Col. Aylmer said that the greatest reason for the comparatively small number attending was because of the prosperity of the country. "Good wages are being paid," and he added, "I suppose that's because of the government we now have." Continuing he said: "When a man can get $1.50 a day working on a farm, you can hardly expect him to come here for 50 cents a day."

Col. Aylmer is not in favor of the existing canteen law, although as a soldier he favors its observance when in orders. He considers that there is a tendency to cause drinking and
