Sudden Death of Gottlieb Brener.

Mr. Gottlieb Brener died rather suddenly Saturday evening at the residence of his son, Otto E. Brener, 233 Horton street. Though in his usual health, he was taken very ill shortly after dinner. A doctor was called in and left him about 5 p.m., saying he would be all right in a couple of hours. Decassed suffered another attack and died with little warning at 8 o'clock. Heart disease was the cause. Mr. Brener was born in Germany, and came to this country some years ago to live with his sons, Messrs, Arthur and Otto Brener, the well-known cigar manufacturers. He was 74 years of age.

Rev. J. A. Murray, of St. Andrew's, and Rev. W. J. Clark, of Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, yesterday morning exchanged pulpits. In the evening Mr. Clark, alluding to the recent early closing vote, remarked that those who favored the early closing had every reason to be encouraged. One point had been brought out by the contest with significant clearness, namely, that the bar traffic was utterly indefensible. Not one person had wentured to take the platform to say a word in its behalf. No argument had been presented in its favor. Even the published letters against early closing were principally receipts of the city, they should not cavil at a matter like this.

Ald. Jeffery said the lease was the greatest thing for London in the last generation, and there should be no straws put in the way.

Ald. Leonard said if the G. T. R. were only compelled to run one train a week, paying $20,000 a year for the lease, why should the new lessees, paying $28,000 and a percentage be forced to do more?

Ald. Judd informed the council that Mr. Ivey said his clients would be willing at all times, where the number of paysengers would assure a profit, to run excursion trains.

would assure a profit, to run excursion trains.

Ald Hannah suggested that a proviso be inserted calling upon the company to run an excursion train at any time when 500 people petitioned for it.

Ald Jones thought it desirable to have more excursion trains stipulated—if not at 30 cents, then the price should be named.

Mr. Ivey, speaking for the lessees, said they did not desire to go further than stated. They assumed the liability of accident for every passenger that went over the road for the paltry sum of 30 cents. For their own interests they would make the excursion traffic as great a success as possible. (Hear, hear.) His clients said there was no such rate on the continent of America as 30 cents for 48 miles. At first they absolutely refused to entertaint, but when he showed them the immense patronage the rate induced they conceded it. They certainly expected to run in the same groove as the G. T. R. as regarded the excursions.

This carried conviction with it, and the clause passed.

The inhabitants of the Marian Islands, which were discovered as late as 1551, had no idea of fire or its uses. ALICE FRYFOGLE'S DEATH.

ALICE FRYFOGLE'S DEATH.

Dr. Niemeier Denies That He Made a Mistake in the Medicine V. hich He Injected in Her Neck.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review says: The death of Miss Fryfogle, of South Easthope, created quite a sensation in that neighborhood. The deceased was 22 years of age and had a wide circle of acquaintances. The Tavistock correspondent of the Sentinel-Review has made further investigation and makes this report:

"On Tuesday towards evening Mrs. Hoffman and her sister, Miss Fryfogle, were treated for gotire by Dr. Niemeier in his office in Tavistock. The young ladies had been under treatment by Dr. Niemeier for several months for this disease. The patients had progressed favorably under this treatment and were nearly recovered. The same medicine was injected into the necks of the patients on the last occasion as had previously been used, so that there was no mistake made by Dr. Niemeier. Miss Fryfogle died on the morning of Thursday, 22th of December, while Mrs. Hoffman, who received double the dose of the same medicine, is recovering.

The inference that the Shakespeare correspondent of the Stratford Herald draws, who received double the dose of the same medicine, is recovering.

The inference that the Shakespeare correspondent of the Stratford Herald draws, the inference that the Shakespeare correct, and in all probability a libel suit will be the cutcome of the correspondence that has appeared in that paper.

Miss Fryfogle, it is rumored, while undergoing treatment from Dr. Niemeier for goitre, was being treated by Dr. Whiteman, of Shakespeare, for heart disease. And yet, while undergoing treatment, she had not taken the care of her health that the circumstances called for. On Monday evening, Dec. 26, she attended, it is said, a dance at Tavistock, and this and the subsequent exposure while under medical treatment may have had considerable to do with her sad and lamented death.
