The escape of "Texas" formed the sole topic of conversation in London today At the noon hour, and before, people flocked to the court house, hoping to see how the desperado had effected his escape. Some, more eager, drove to Springbank and watched the officers as they worked. When the detectives dr back to the city, people looked eagerly into the carriage, and as there was a third party in the back seat with Detectives Nickle and Rider, the shout went up that "Texas" had been taken. Th third party was a reporter.

A porter working for Elliott, Marr & saw "Texas" get over the wall. The witness was on a West London coming into the city, and as he looked over at the jail he saw the escapi prisoner jump down from the wall and go along Thames street. As "Texas" crossed the King street bridge he was seen from the London Rowing Club by Assistant Engineer Kirkpatrick, who was down on the green talking to Caretaker Sparrowhawk.
