THE BERLIN BOYCOTT.

The great beer boycott at Berlin, which is maintained by the socialists over six months against seven breweries, and is extended against 31 other breweries, among which the largest ones in Germany, according to an end. The funds are raised and sent apart by the socialist party for the furtherance of the boycott was exhausted. The boycotters appealed to the workmen of the Empire for moral and pecuniary aid in carrying the warfare. But judged the latest advices the boycott is now in some state as the Debs' strike was when it was declared to be still in force while in fact every striker was anxious to work. The Berlin boycott has been entirely unsuccessful so far. It was shown lately that the brewing companies whose beer is boycotted die not lose to any extent worth mentioning. There was no marked drop of the shares and stocks of these companies which represent a capital of 42,000,000 marks. The fact is that the shares of three or four of the largest concerns occupied even a better position in the market than before the boycott. It seems, therefore, that the Berlin brewers can stand the attack very well and that the reports about their readiness to surrender to socialists were without foundation.
