

CONTENTS.

7

CHAPTER XXIV.

	PAGE
Evils of the Continental Currency — Military Reforms proposed by Washington — Congress Jealous of Military Power — Committee of Three sent to confer with Washington — Losses by Depreciation of the Currency to be made good to the Troops — Arrival of Lafayette — Scheme for a Combined Attack upon New York — Arnold has Debts and Difficulties — His Proposals to the French Minister — Anxious to return to the Army — Mutiny of the Connecticut Troops — Washington writes to Reed for Aid from Pennsylvania — Good Effects of his Letter . . .	205

CHAPTER XXV.

Siege of Charleston continued — British Ships enter the Harbor — British Troops march from Savannah — Tarleton and his Dragoons — His Brush with Colonel Washington — Charleston re-enforced by Woodford — Tarleton's Exploits at Monk's Corner — At Laurens's Ferry — Sir Henry Clinton re-enforced — Charleston capitulates — Affair of Tarleton and Buford on the Waxhaw — Sir Henry Clinton embarks for New York . . .	216
--	-----

CHAPTER XXVI.

Knyphausen marauds the Jerseys — Sacking of Connecticut Farms — Murder of Mrs. Caldwell — Arrival and Movements of Sir Henry Clinton — Springfield burnt — The Jerseys evacuated . . .	225
--	-----

CHAPTER XXVII.

Washington applies to the State Legislature for Aid — Subscriptions of the Ladies of Philadelphia — Gates appointed to command the Southern Department — French Fleet arrives at Newport — Preparation for a Combined Movement against New York — Arnold obtains Command at West Point — Greene resigns the Office of Quartermaster-General . . .	233
---	-----

CHAPTER XXVIII.

North Carolina — Difficulties of its Invasion — Character of the People and Country — Sumter, his Character and Story — Rocky Mount — Hanging Rock — Slow Advance of De Kalb — Gates takes command — Desolate March — Battle of Camden — Flight of Gates — Sumter surprised by Tarleton at the Waxhaws — Washington's Opinion of Militia — His Letter to Gates . . .	241
--	-----

CHAPTER XXIX.

Frenson of Arnold — His Correspondence with the Enemy — His Negotiations with André — Parting Scene with Washington — Midnight Conference on the Banks of the Hudson — Return of André by Land — Circumstances of his Capture . . .	252
---	-----

CHAPTER XXX.

Interview of Washington with the French Officers at Hartford — Plan of Attack disconcerted — Washington's Return — Scenes at Arnold's Head-Quarters in the Highlands — Tidings of André's Capture — Flight of Arnold — Letters from the Traitor — Washington's Precautions — Situation of Mrs. Arnold . . .	267
---	-----