

(who was chief about A. D. 1699.) He came to North America in 1773 with his wife and family and several of his relatives, and settled in Tryon County, in the Mohawk Valley. When the Revolutionary war broke out he and his family adhered to the Loyalist side. He was too old to take up arms, but he came to Canada and died in Montreal before the movement of the Loyalists to the upper country, and was buried under the old parish church within the space which is now partly Notre Dame street and Place D'Armes Square. He and his wife had five sons and four daughters. Archibald was the eldest son. He married in Scotland Miss Fraser, daughter of Fraser of Balvain, and came to North America before his father and the rest of the family. He was a merchant in New York. When the Revolutionary war broke out he got the command of a company in the first battalion of the King's Royal Regiment of New York, served through the war, and when the regiment was disbanded settled on the lands allotted to him—lots 1 and 2 in the 1st and 2nd concessions of Osnabruck. He and his wife had two sons and five daughters: JOHN, who was senior partner of the firm of Macdonell, Holmes & Co., of Montreal, and JAMES, who was a captain in the army and died in Jamaica. MARY, who married Donald Æneas Macdonell, who was sheriff of the Eastern District and afterwards warden of the Provincial Penitentiary. He was son of Miles Macdonell, who was son of John Macdonell, Scotus. John was a captain and Miles an ensign in the first battalion of the Royal Yorkers. HARRIET, who married Colonel Duncan Macdonell, Greenfield. ELLEN, who married Charles P. Treadwell, sheriff of the counties of Prescott and Russell. ANNE, who married Colonel the Honorable Alexander Fraser. MADELINE, who married Mr. McCann, a merchant. (For the other children of John Macdonell, of Lick, see Note 13.)

FRASER.

The first of the name in Scotland is understood to have settled there in the reign of Malcolm Canmore, and although
