

Academy of Music, on Barrington Street, foot of Spring Garden Road, is a very handsome edifice, well suited for its purpose. It is open nearly all the year round to Opera Companies, Dramatic Companies, Lectures and Concerts, Local and Foreign celebrities.

Town Clock, on Citadel Hill, is worthy of mention. Many generations have heard its clanging notes rung out on the mid-night air when returning to their homes from various scenes of festivity. The clock is kept in repair by the military authorities, and its time can always be depended upon.

Garrison Chapel, Halifax, N. S.

Garrison Chapel, on the corner of Cogswell and Brunswick Streets, is a plain and substantial wooden structure. It was erected for the convenience of the garrison, and on Sunday mornings the . . . troops march to and from service in uniform, accompanied by a full military band. This is one of the sights which alone is worth a visit to Halifax.

Dalhousie University was founded by the Earl of Dalhousie, in 1821. The new building was erected in 1887 and is situated in the south western part of the city fronting on Morris, College and Robie Streets. This University is one of the finest educational institutions in Canada.

The Post Office Building, on Hollis Street, is built of granite and freestone. It is also occupied by the Customs Department. This is one of the finest structures in the Maritime Provinces.
