ATHLETICSCity League Champions Apply
Kalsomine Brush to Ramblers

Although it was practically conceded in local sporting circles that the Ramblers were due for a bumping Saturday in that alleged championship affair, it was hardly expected that the clever McClarys would apply the kalsomine in the cruel fashion they did. The score of 11 to 2 tells the tale far more eloquently than a week's thumping on a typewriter could do, and there remains but a little summing up to finish with.

In the first place the Ramblers did not do themselves or their supporters justice. The boys from the other end safe on a field's choice which didn't work, and Ball hit, filling the sacks once more. O'Rourke and Pook both flew out.

Ramblers' Only Chance.

It was only in the first of the seventh that the East Enders had any semblance of a look-in, and a close decision which left some room for doubt in the minds of the average unprejudiced spectator then hobbled them of a run.

Delaney flew out to Phillips. Shannon hit and stole second. Gillies flew out, and it was distinctly up to Pete Penwarden, who was next up, to do something. Pete biffed to O'Rourke along the third base line, and was safe on a low throw, while Shannon romped over third and started for home. Apparently ball and runner reached the sack at the same time, but Umpire Smith decided against the latter.

The East End boys went off in easy fashion in the last two rounds, while four safe drives, three errors, and three stolen bases netted the Champions of the city an additional quarter of run in the seventh and ninth innings, combined.

In summing up, it seems only meet to say that the East Enders were apparently outclassed at every stage of the game, although such a statement cannot in justice be made objectively. It will be remembered that the McClarys have traveled to St. Thomas on a couple of occasions and been made to look like a lot of school kids, while the Stars, who by the way, were not fast enough for the Champions, turned the trick on the Saints on at least two occasions this season.

WORLD'S RECORDS
GO AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 21.—Two world's records and two Canadian records were broken at the federation championship meeting at the M. A. A. grounds this afternoon. Rose broke the 16-pound shot putting world's record by three-quarters of an inch, and McGrath shattered the world's figures for throwing the 16-pound hammer with 178 feet 1 inch, which was 8 inches ahead of the record. The Canadian records broken were the pole high vault, in which W. Hapenny, of the M. A. A., made 11 feet 5 1/2 inches, being 5 1/2 inches over the Canadian record of 11 feet, and the three-mile run, which J. J. Daly, of the New York Irish-Americans, did in 15 minutes and 15 seconds, being 18 seconds better than the previous Canadian record. The races were all well contested, the medals going to the New York and Irish-American clubs. The Canadian 120-yard hurdle race was also equalled. There was a very large attendance, and both weather and track conditions were ideal.

BACK IN O. R. F. U.

Tigers and Argonauts Again Placed With the Old Association.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—The Tigers and Argonauts are back in the O. R. F. U. The newly-born Inter-Provincial Union is practically a thing of the past. The affidavits of the five Montreal players proved unsatisfactory to the C. A. A. U., and the latter asked for further affidavits to cover points in question, chief among which was their intentions regarding remaining in good standing.

This move, made to prevent men reinstated from availing themselves of their restoration to grace as a means of playing football, only to drop back into the old order of things at the end of the Rugby season, did not meet with the approval of the easterners. Yesterday they notified the western clubs that they had gone as far as they would, and that they absolutely refused to send on the affidavits demanded. The Argonauts and Tigers had promised the O. R. F. U. to let it know definitely last night, and on the strength of the communication from the Montreal club they decided to return to their first love. No affidavits of any description had been received from Ottawa.

The question of grouping the intermediate and junior teams in the O. R. F. U. was held over for the winter before being able to walk.

The following senior schedule was drawn up after considerable discussion:

Oct. 5.—Hamilton at Victoria, Argonauts at Peterboro.

Oct. 12.—Peterboro at Victorias.

Oct. 19.—Hamilton at Argonauts, Victorias at Peterboro.

Oct. 26.—Peterboro at Hamilton.

Oct. 31.—Victorias at Argonauts, Hamilton at Peterboro.

Nov. 2.—Peterboro at Argonauts, Victorias at Hamilton.

Nov. 9.—Argonauts at Hamilton.

Nov. 16.—Argonauts at Victorias.

Those present were: Vice-President W. J. Slee, in the chair; Secretary J. B. Hay; W. A. Hewitt, Argonauts; W. H. Seymour, Hamilton; P. W. McDonough, Peterboro, and A. Hamilton, Victorias.

NEBRICH WAS EASY

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Alfred Shrubbs had no difficulty in defeating Nebraska, of Buffalo, in their four-mile professional race at the Island Saturday afternoon. 1: A. was Nebraska's first essay in the class. A crowd of old countrymen witnessed the event.

The Englishman won by about a quarter of a mile, in 20:15. His times were: 1 mile, 4:45; 2 miles, 10:10; 3 miles, 15:15.

OFF ON LONG JAUNT

Portland, Me., Sept. 21.—Edward Payson Weston, the old-time pedestrian, announces that he will start Oct. 29 from Portland, Maine, for a walk to Chicago, reckoning that he will accomplish the task in 25 days at actual walking. The route will take him through Boston, Providence, Troy, Utica, Rochester, Buffalo, Toledo and Cleveland.

Electric Light Meet Tomorrow Night

The success of the big electric light athletic meet to be held at Queen's Park tomorrow night seems assured. The Irish-Canadian Club people have left nothing undone to make the affair the best this city has ever witnessed, and a great crowd should be on hand to see the sport.

The track will be well lit up with incandescent lights and the athletes will be seen almost as plainly as in daylight. The special 3-mile race between Dick Quatt, one-time collegiate champion of the United States, and the erratic Longboat will be the feature of the meet, although a great deal of interest is also evinced in the sprints in which such men as Bobby Kerr, Jack Sweeney and other fast ones are entered.

FRECKLED BOB: SCULPTOR'S MODEL

New York, Sept. 21.—Robert Fitzsimmons, once champion heavyweight fighter of the world, is to be reproduced in marble as the most perfect modern fighter and his statue will stand beside those of the ancients for the instruction of future generations. Fitzsimmons has been picked by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, as the best specimen of muscular development, and the hero of 400 hard-fought battles will sit every day this fall while the artist makes a statue of him.

Fitz is in the city and Mr. Borglum said this afternoon that he had just completed arrangements for sittings with the old man of the ring.

"Fitzsimmons has the most remarkable figure for fighting about the belt that I have ever seen," said the artist. "He is one of the best specimens of manhood in the world, and is by far the most perfect representative of the fighting man that this age has produced. "Above the waist he has the ideal build of a fighter. This is what has enabled him to conquer so many men stronger and bigger than himself. In this respect he is the best representative of the ring now alive."

"Why did you pick him rather than Jeffries, or some of the men who have whipped him?" was asked.

"Because Jeffries and these others are merely fighters. They are big men and many of them are undoubtedly stronger than Fitzsimmons, but they lack that extraordinary build that, in my opinion, makes Fitzsimmons the most perfect exponent of prize fighting."

HOME RUN LUMLEY
HAD LEG BROKEN

Star Batsman of the Brooklyn Club Badly Injured at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22.—During the eighth inning of yesterday's game between Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, Harry Lumley, right fielder of the Brooklyn team, the Dodgers' star batter, broke his right leg while sliding into the fatal second base, where three other famous players have met with similar accidents. Lumley had made a single and tried to steal second base. He had a good start, and when near the bag found that he could not make the play without a long slide. He was going at terrific speed, and he slipped into the bag. In doing so his leg doubled under him and the bone snapped.

Lumley was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. He will be out of the game for the remainder of the season, and it will be far into the winter before he will be able to walk.

George Van Haltern, for years a member of the New York team, and now captain and manager of the Tacoma team of the Pacific Coast League was the first player to break his leg at second base. The accident happened about four years ago, and ended the career of the veteran in the big league.

The following year "Lefty" Davis of the Pittsburgh team met with a similar accident at the same base. It caused his retirement for the remainder of the season, and for two seasons following he was relegated to the minors.

This year, however, he was back in the National League with Cincinnati.

The next man injured at the second bag was Otis Clymer of the Pirates, who was out of the game part of last season and who had a great deal of trouble with his injured leg when the season opened. He is now with Washington.

THE TURF.

BASEBALL
BOXING
BOWLINGCHARLES BALL, OF MAITLAND ST.,
WINS ADVERTISER'S FIRST PRIZEBut One Coupon Contained the Correct Number of Runs Made by Both Teams.

Of the 478 coupons received in the baseball guessing contest which began in The Advertiser last Tuesday evening and ended Saturday noon but one was found to contain the correct number of runs scored by the Rambler and McClary teams at Tecumseh Park Saturday afternoon.

The winning coupon was sent in by Mr. Chas. H. Ball, 229 Maitland street. Nothing approaching a complete, perfect score was received, and but one contestant correctly guessed the number of errors scored by the Ramblers.

At first sight the task of picking twelve winners out of over 400 contestants would seem to be a stupendous one. The task, as a matter of fact, proved rather light.

The coupons were first sorted over and divided into four piles, labeled: "Good," "Fair," "Possible," and "Bad."

Those which looked most likely went in pile No. 1, and so on down until those having neither correct hits, runs or errors of either team were weeded out. Most of the guesses were so far out of the way that it was not long until the pile from which the winners were picked had dwindled down to perhaps twenty coupons.

Then came the puzzle. Some of the contestants had guessed within two of the runs scored, and had correctly numbered the hits recorded by one team. Others had also guessed within two runs of the result, and had guessed the errors on one side or the other.

In other words where one contestant had an advantage in one place he was defeated equally as bad in another, making the result an apparent tie, as per examples.

McClarys..... 11 9 5
Ramblers..... 1 2 10

McClarys..... 10 8 4
Ramblers..... 0 3 11

The correct score was:
Runs. Hits. Errors
McClarys..... 11 11 2
Ramblers..... 0 1 12

For convenience a table of points was devised, allowing so many points for each correct guess in the three columns. Owing to the fact that a number of the contestants had guessed within one, two or three runs of the actual result, and had also correctly numbered the hits or errors scored by one team or the other, it was found unnecessary to look further than the coupons containing guesses within three runs of the result.

The table used was as follows:

Correct runs of both teams..... 100
Correct runs of one team, and within one of the other..... 50
Correct runs of one team, and within two of the other..... 40
Correct runs of both teams..... 30
Correct hits of one team..... 25
Correct errors of both teams..... 30
Correct errors of one team..... 15

It was further found necessary to apply the following rule:

Find the difference between the total number of hits predicted and the total number actually made, add to the difference between the total number of errors predicted, and actually made, and subtract from the number of points allowed for correct answers.

The points allotted the winner of the contest, Mr. Ball, numbered 88. His coupon read as follows:

Runs. Hits. Errors
McClarys..... 11 13 0
Ramblers..... 0 2 5

One hundred points were allowed for the perfect run scores. The difference between the total hits guessed by Mr. Ball and those made in the game numbered 3. There was a difference of 9 errors, and 13 from a hundred leaves 88.

The winner of the second prize, $2, was Mr. A. L. Evans, of 570 Horton street, who guessed as follows:

Runs. Hits. Errors
McClarys..... 9 13 1
Ramblers..... 0 2 5

But one guess was received which correctly anticipated the number of errors scored by the Ramblers; many of the guesses calling for a clean slate on both sides.

The bulk of the contestants naturally favored the McClarys, but not a few were found willing to back up the east end boys.

One party went so far as to predict a shutout for the city league champions, while still another gave the McClarys a grand total of 14 errors.

One coupon read:

Runs. Hits. Errors
McClarys..... 15 19 10
Ramblers..... 0 2 5

All in all the competition has been a great success and the large number of guesses received in the few short days the contest was on shows that baseball arouses as much interest today in London as at any time in the history of the two local leagues.

Checks will be sent to the winners of the seven cash prizes offered, while orders for two tickets each for admission to the Hamilton-McClarys game will be mailed to the remaining five winners.

The winners of the $1 prizes, and those who won two tickets each for next Saturday's ball game at Tecumseh Park, and their respective guesses are as follows:

WINNERS OF $1 PRIZES.

WALTER GIBSON, MCCLARY MFG. CO., 45 POINTS.
McClarys..... 11 13 2

Thinks New Yachting
Rule Is All Wrong

New York, Sept. 22.—J. Rogers Maxwell, owner of the Queen, acknowledged to be the fastest schooner afloat, declared himself opposed to the present yacht measurement rule which Sir Thomas Lipton wants applied to America's cup races. Mr. Maxwell is one of the most prominent yachtsmen in America today, and as he owns and sails the only 90-footer that has been built by Hershoff under the new rule, his objection to it will cause surprise not only in this country and Great Britain, but in every other where yachting is a sport.

"I was skeptical about the change from the water-line and sail-area rule for racing yachts and from the first," said Mr. Maxwell, "and now that I have tried it two years with the Queen I am convinced that all is wrong."

"When the many clubs adopted the new rule and it became general I foresaw that if I wanted to race I would have to have a boat that would be even with those the designers were turning out. The Yankee was doomed to be out of the running under the circumstances, so I decided to build anew. There was the Corona and Edina sailing in the 90-foot class, and as each boat I had owned was larger than the one before I decided to order a 90-footer. I went to Hershoff. The result was the Queen.

"From the very first she showed that she could outfoot the others in the class, and was beaten only nine seconds by the effort in the King's Cup race. Even that defeat she wiped out by capturing the cup easily this year. But with all her victories I must say frankly that she is all wrong—or rather the rule that was responsible for her is all wrong."

"I have heard many say that the Queen might be able to race for the America's Cup, but I am certain that she won't. I would not even make an attempt with her. My idea is that the famous trophy should be sought and defended by the fastest yachts that can be built. If any one thinks that a 90-footer that can carry 16,000 square feet of canvas, as the Reliance did, isn't strong, they would change their opinion after one experience on her, heeled to her best speed."

Flashes have been discovered in Guatemala with two pairs of eyes. One pair does duty above water and the other below, the fish thus being able to see equally well in each element.

Great Sport at the Toronto Games

Toronto, Sept. 21.—The results of the Baptist athletic games held today were as follows:
