THE COWBOY AND THE LADY

Good Advance Sale for Tonight's Attraction at the Opera House.

That local theatre-goers are appreciating Mr. Harkins' endeavors to give them all that is best in the theatrical field is evident by the large sale of seats for tonight's performance of The Cowboy and the Lady at the Opera House.

Mr. Harkins has in the past, as everyone knows, given the best plays that have ever been produced here, and he knows what St. John audiences like as well as they do themselves.

Therefore in presenting The Cowboy and the Lady he is certain in the knowledge that it will please everybody from the gallery to the dress circle.

The comedy is very strong and is certain to cause plenty of laughter; the story is a strong one, consistently told, the plot is very interesting, and the characters are of the possible and not the impossible kind.

The scenes are laid in Colorado, and while the atmosphere is western, many of the characters are eastern. All the favorites of the company will be seen in splendid advantage.

Miss Davis and Frank Carroll will supply pleasing specialties, and those who attend can assure themselves of a good performance.

Thanksgiving evening the bill will be The Gentleman Burglar, and judging by the sale of seats another S.R.O. audience will be present.

BISHOP CASEY ON PATRIOTISM

His Lordship's Eloquent Sermon in the Cathedral Yesterday Morning.

At the 9 o'clock mass yesterday morning in the cathedral His Lordship Bishop Casey, before preaching on the gospel of the day, spoke for some time on patriotism.

In part he said:—"The centennial which we celebrate yesterday naturally raises in the minds of the children of Great Britain and her colonies thoughts and sentiments of patriotism.

We might be justified right here in instituting the inquiry what patriotism is. Man is social in his nature. He owes his life to a family, nor can the development of his faculties and the enjoyment of his life be otherwise than through his family in connection with the larger social circle around him.

This larger circle constitutes what is for him the state, or his country.

Thus by nature he depends on the country for the enjoyment of life, for the development of the powers and resources, and for security in their possession.

The law of justice founded in nature obliges him to his country in return. Hence arises the duty of patriotism. It is founded in nature, and has its sanction in justice.

His Lordship then stated that no country could exist without a proper form of government, and said that no matter what form the government might take, the regard we owe to its authority is not affected, since this authority comes from the author of nature.

His Lordship further stated that once the government be lawfully constituted it is entitled to exercise its authority from Most High. He quoted, "There is no power but from God." Hence the solemnity of protest.

Bishop Casey stated that it was a fact that the memory of the penal laws still grates the nerves and inflames the soul of many Irishmen and their descendants, and asked the question, "Are we therefore justified in withholding the utmost loyalty to the flag that floats over us, and our fullest amount of joy or sympathy in the weal or woe of our country?"

His Lordship said that the answer to this question must be sought from sound Catholic principles, and he said that he was possessed by all legitimate rulers comes from God, yet its exercise is entrusted to purely human beings.

He said that he was not nothing to prevent them from legislating at times according to human error and iniquity. He said that the Bishop Casey quoted from the Scripture, "We must obey God rather than men," and said that in the midst of universal persecution the Prince of the Apostles declared the Christian duty, "Love the brotherhood; fear God; honor the King." "Disobey the King," said His Lordship, "can be made in regard to legislation manifestly unjust. In all matters of just and equitable administration the ruler is entitled to our reverence and obedience."

In concluding Bishop Casey said "Fear the things that are past, be it our duty to rejoice in the peace, prosperity and security which the one country." His Lordship quoted Leo XVII, who said "Everyone knows the power and resources of the British nation and the civilizing influence which the spread of liberty, accompanied by the commercial prosperity, even to the most remote regions."

Mann, is in Ottawa today on departmental business, promises that the Canadian Northern Railway will carry at least twenty million bushels of the grain crop of western Canada to market this season. Before long this line, he adds, will be hauling one hundred million bushels each season. The extension of the Canadian Northern main line has now reached a point within thirty miles of Edmonton.

TOMORROW'S CONCERTS. Great Interest Being Taken in the Visit of the Irish Guards' Band. Seats are selling rapidly for the Irish Guards band concert in the Queen's rink to-morrow afternoon and evening and it is probable that the greatest success achieved by the band last week will be more than duplicated. The rink will be made warm and comfortable for all by means of the electric heaters, and the best of order will be maintained. The band will render the following programme at the concert to-morrow: Selection—F. Paganini, Leonovello. Overture—Beethoven, A. Rossini—Streppe. Cornet solo—Softly awakes my heart—Saint Saens—Sergeant Hunt. Song—Schubert—Donald MacGregor. Grand overture in "C"—In Memoriam—Sullivan. Selections—Mikado—Sullivan. Reminiscences of Grig. Patrol of the Mountain Gnomes—Ellenborg. Song—Selected—Donald MacGregor. (a) Beau Wedding—Mendelssohn. (b) Belle of St. Malo—Rimmer. Selection—John—Lassell. God Save the King. The Carleton Cornet Band will concert the visiting bandmen to the Queen's rink to-morrow evening.

TONIGHT AT THE YORK. The Pauline Hammond Co. will present the powerful melodrama dealing with western life, "The Man from Frisco." This play is new to the St. John theatre going public and will be given in full and thrilling dramatic presentation without doubt more than please the taste of the patrons of this theatre. Miss Hammond, the leading lady of the company, is an actress of no mean merit, in fact her new rôle of "The Man from Frisco" has been called the most clever "star" play ever seen in the city. She carries a beautiful supply of costumes. The supporting company is the best that the management could obtain. The vast majority of them actors and actresses who have won distinction in their particular lines. The vaudeville between the acts is a feature by itself. No long waits; one continuous performance. Ladies' bargain night—tonight.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT. SACKVILLE, Oct. 21.—The A.A.A. of St. John held their annual promenade concert in the University residence Friday night, and it proved a great success. The weather might have been better but the attendance was good. A very enjoyable programme was prepared and easily sold during the last two topics. A pleasant evening was spent and the funds of the association placed in better condition.
