Successful English Whaling.—We copy the following from the London Times:—

In connection with the subject of British whaling, which has lately been regarded with some interest, it may be mentioned that within the last few days one of the few remaining British ships employed in the southern fishery, the Samuel Enderby, has arrived at Deptford, bringing from the fishery 2, 300 barrels of sperm oil, estimated at a value of 21,000. The vessel had been absent three years and five months, so that, allowing for the voyage out and home and probable delays in port, the time actually employed in fishing has been under two years and a half, the produce being, therefore, at the rate of about 950 berrels per annum, which much exceeds the present average return by ships from England or America. Indeed, the carge now brought is stated to be the largest obtained by any British single whaler since July, 1841, with the exception only of the Lady Amhers, belonging to the same owners, which arrived in Fobruary, 1843, with 2,592 barrels. The voyage just concluded is the fifth which the Samuel Enderby has made. She is described as a model of her class, having been built and equipped expressly for the trade, and so as to combine the solid requirements of a whaling ship with the sailing qualities of a yacht. Her commander has the repute of having obtained in seven voyages a larger quantity of oil than any other English or American master.

Lithotomy and Ether.—On Monday, the Bilateral Operation, for stone in the bladder, was performed by Dr. Buchanan, at the infirmary here, for the first time, we believe, in this country. Dr. Buchanan explained to the students the improvements made by Dupuytren upon this operation, rendering it far superior in point of safety and facility of execution. The operation was finished in two minutes, and six stones extracted from the bladder. The patient had been done to him. This is only one of many cases which have occurred at the Infir ces, in a remarkable manner, the capabilities or resources of the Cape for such supplies.—London paper.

Dunyermente—Repairs on our Old Abbey.—We last year noticed that our venerable abbey underwent a thorough survey by Mr. Nixon, government commissioner. We now understand this workmen will very soon begin to give it a complete repair. They have been employed on the Glasgow cathedral which is now finished, and next in hand is our abbey. We thus live in hope of seeing restored to beauty, the edifice in which Malcolm Caumore led Queen Margaret to the altar ere ruthless Edward set it in flames.—Fife Herald.
