

EGYPTIAN VOTE CAUSES BRITISH KEEN ANXIETY

Situation Grave If Zaghlul Accepts Premiership

CABINET MEETS

Possible That Adly Pasha May Be Nominated For Post

By HERBERT BAILEY.

British United Press. LONDON, June 1.—Considerable importance is attached to the meeting of the Cabinet last night at which the new Egyptian dilemma was discussed. United Press understands that the Cabinet met last evening and seriously reviewed the Egyptian question, which is causing much perplexity to the government.

The situation as outlined to the British United Press by government officials today was full of difficulties owing to the recent victory of former Premier Zaghlul at the polls.

TO ASK ZAGHLUL. The present premier has not yet resigned, but when he does King Fuad will naturally send for Zaghlul to form a government. If he accepts, the situation will become grave, because he is bitterly opposed to all British reservations and demands full complete independence for Egypt. It is possible that Zaghlul, feeling that he is too old to assume the Premiership again himself, may decide to suggest that Adly Pasha should act as premier with himself as the power behind.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS. If this eventuality, the situation would probably be much easier, and it is hoped that under these circumstances Lord Lloyd, the British High Commissioner in Egypt, might be able to work out some semblance of harmony with the Zaghlul party. Meantime all the government can do is to await developments and Lord Lloyd to handle the situation until the time arrives for the Cabinet to make a definite decision as to what is to be the future of Egypt.

EVOLUTION A GAIN UP IN TENNESSEE

State Defends Law in Appeal From Conviction of John T. Scopes

Canadian Press. NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 1.—Tennessee, through counsel, arose in its supreme court to defend its law that no theory denying the Divine creation of man shall be taught in its public schools and universities.

After five attorneys had attacked the state's new famous anti-evolution law from all angles, Edward T. Scopes, as counsel for the State, in the appeal of John Thomas Scopes from a conviction in Rhea County Circuit Court, contended that the state has the power to protect its children from the teachings of evolutionists.

The law was argued because it was, in the eyes of the court, a misdemeanor case in which a defendant appeared as plaintiff in error of appeal from a fine of $100 imposed for teaching the evolutionary theory.

Anticipating the Canada of Tomorrow,

Built on the foundation

our National Heritage

THE Canada of the horse age is dead. Locomotion, as it existed from the dawn of civilization until yesterday, has passed forever.

In Canada, in proportionately greater degree than anywhere else, hydro-electric energy is running our street railway systems—turning the machinery of our workshops—lighting our streets and homes—carrying the human voice over telephone systems from house to house and province to province—building up new industries—pumping our water—performing the chores on our farms—evolving a new civilization.

Tomorrow what marvels will electricity bring into being! The men who harness Canada's mighty waters, the men who apply power to the needs of industry and transportation, the men who devise electrical appliances for the service of mankind—to what new uses will they turn Canada's vast stores of power?

These men foresee a new Canada arising on the foundation of hydro-electric power. They plan today for that greater Canada of tomorrow.

The Northern Electric Company Limited is proud to have its share in development work of such far-reaching national importance.
