Radio Patriotism In Wales Annoys Scotch Listeners

Peaceful Aberdeen Homes Are Thrown Into Turmoil as Odd Words are Heard on Nightly Wave Lengths.

London, June 7.—(By Mail).—The Aberdonians are out of temper and the objects of their annoyance are the Grampian Mountains, notes "The London Daily News."

The Grampian Mountains rear their bleak heads in between Aberdeen and Glasgow and continually get in the way of the wireless waves broadcast from the western city.

When an artist sings over the wireless from Glasgow the Aberdeen broadcasters catch that "Annie Laurie" has become benighted on Cairngorm and that "Loch Lomond" is wandering forlornly on the steep, steep sides of Ben Crathie.

For some time Aberdeen has been pondering over it. Broadcasters in the granite city, among them the native Highlanders, would not conform to modern requirements, tuned up with the far distant stations and made shift with the Glasgow stuff.

But one night Cardiff, excited by an attack of national fervor, projected particularly energetic wave length, and into the peaceful, dour Aberdeen homes there burst a queer jargon.

"Was heen wlad fy thadur?" "Yn awyry y mi?" This was followed by the same words, and other strange atmospheric disturbances of a like nature.

The patriotic Aberdonians took action at once and called a business meeting of broadcasters in the city. "That noise ye heard last night," said Elder McIlwain, who presided, "was a natural electrical disturbance. It was the people of Wales singing that their ain banks and braes are the bonniest in the world." (up roar.)

"All that blather," continued the elder, "was just their way of saying 'There's no place like Wales.'" (laughter.)

If they wanted to avoid disaster of this sort in the future, said the elder, they had four courses open to them: To move the Grampians nearer Cape Wrath.

To lift Glasgow over the Grampians. To move Aberdeen, or To have a broadcasting station in Aberdeen.

One thing he would ask them, said Elder McIlwain, and that was to allow their crystals and valves to associate with low-down Welsh wave lengths. Otherwise, said the elder, they would be "sair forfochen" with their blatherers, and as he was sure none of them wanted that. (Guffaw.)

It was decidedly eventually that the city should ask for a broadcasting station to itself.

THOS. BELL IS NEW TREASURER

Succeeds A. C. Skelton on Health Centre Board—Reports Tell of Work of Clinics.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Health Centre was held yesterday afternoon, with Hon. H. A. McKinnon presiding. Thomas Bell was appointed treasurer, succeeding A. C. Skelton, who had resigned. It was reported that during the month of June 876 patients had been treated at the clinics, 265 of which were new. Great work was being done at the Lady Byng camp.

The clinics held included the Victorian Order of Nurses well baby clinic, at which 109 babies attended; the tuberculosis clinic, which had 410 cases; the preschool age clinic, with five cases; the pre-natal with two cases; the dental clinic with 208 cases which treated 139 children, the eye clinic at which twenty-two children were treated and glasses prescribed for fifteen, and the social hygiene clinic at which nine new cases were received, three discharged and ninety-six carried on.

Dr. Roberts spoke of this summary of the month's work as specially gratifying to him personally and amply repaying any of his effort to establish the Health Centre. Dr. William Warwick commented on the remarkable popularity of the dental clinic with the children. The dentists, he said, were delighted with the work and if it assumed larger proportions it might be necessary to have a full time dentist. In the month there were 205 extractions, thirty fillings, eight treatments and forty-three examinations in the dental clinic.

The purchase of the winter supply of coal for $274.78 was authorized. It was estimated that there would be $1,047.11 on hand to carry on the work and that this would last about four months. A tag day has been arranged for the second Saturday in October, and it is hoped to have a Health Centre benefit ball.

Miss H. T. McKillop told of the opening of the Day Camp for underprivileged children which is established at Seaside Park and of Lady Byng's visit there. Mrs. G. W. Campbell, who is the day manager of the camp and treasurer, said it had been estimated that the total of cash expended for the camp day was sixteen cents which with car fare amounted to twenty-two cents each day. The camp was being run economically but without stint of wholesome food.

From the public had amounted to $440.57 in cash and $800 in gifts in kind. There was still from $150 to $200 needed to finish the season, which was to end at the close of next month.

BRITISH STUDENT HAILED AS THOROUGH GENTLEMAN

Swiss Professor Returns Report of Observations While at Cambridge.

London, July 1.—(By Mail).—As a result of the Anglo-Swiss Universities Conference of August last and negotiations between the Universities of Cambridge and Basle, Dr. F. Zschokke, professor of Zoology in the University of Basle, gave a course of lectures at Cambridge on the history of geographical distribution of the European species during the last term this year.

Professor Zschokke has recently presented a report on his visit to the University of Basle. Professor Zschokke describes the advantages connected with the corporate life of the colleges at Cambridge, and comes to the conclusion that the colleges are living centres of intellectual activity, continually receiving new impulse from the intercourse of representatives of the various sciences living together within the same walls, according to an article in "The London Morning Post."

He finds the British student of a like stature to the continental student, and self-possessed in his department full of youthful freshness and naivety, keenly interested in his studies, and with an eye to the examinations that are to follow, but for science itself and with a due regard to the utility thereof in his future profession. He shows practically none of those after-war evils, restlessness and lack of interest, so prevalent amongst continental students, and he is mentally and physically fit.

The vision of the British student a slave to sport, physically fit, mentally mediocre, so deeply rooted in the Continental mind, comes as a rude shock to the professor's report. Whilst prepared to admit that a few do succumb to sport, he studies champions study and sport as the only foundation for a well-balanced development of body and mind, the ancient universities, with their friendships amongst men of different bents and temperaments, and for co-operation in the solution of actual problems in life.

HIS D. D. STANDS FOR "DEVIL DRIVER," SAYS S. A. OFFICER

Waterville, Me., July 21.—"Devil Driver" and not "Doctor of Divinity" is the translation of the D. Adjutant Fowler has come to Waterville from Haverhill, Mass., to perform all the regular functions of a Salvation Army leader.

School Book Changes

The first consignment of the new arithmetic textbook, the New Brunswick Arithmetic, prepared by Amos C. Bielsa, formerly of Fredericton and now of Moncton, for use in the public schools of the province and recently approved by the Board of Education, arrived at the Province at the Province Government offices. It will take the place of the present arithmetic. The cost to the pupils will be 45 cents, while the former arithmetic cost 90 cents, 30 cents being the price of each of the two parts used.

Two changes in High School books will also go into effect soon, too. Jones, Horning, and Morrow's High School grammar will replace McKillop's English Language. The cost of the new text will be 65 cents, while McKillop's cost $2, will replace the three books employed for grades 9, 10 and 11, costing respectively $1.25, 60 cents and $1.50.

Asir, on Red Sea, Has Advanced But Little in Centuries

Few Have Traveled Overland in Arabia; People Retain Many Customs of Days of Ancient Past.

The Emir of Asir is dead, has been buried in his capital at Sabia and is now duly succeeded by his son. The Western world did not learn of the event until weeks after it happened. The passing of the old ruler of a principality that probably not one person in a hundred could "place" on its proper continent will hardly cause a ripple on the surface of world affairs, but it serves excellently, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society, to show how little we know about the world we live in.

"Asir is on the Arabian shore of the same Red Sea that are the fold the children of Israel traversed," says the bulletin, "and has existed there with little change probably from the time of that interesting event. Phoenicians and Yeminites and Portuguese have coasted alongside its barren, hot sands."

"Asir is in most parts of Arabia, the people of Asir are Mahometans, and fanatical Mahometans at that. 'Infidels' are not welcome, especially are 'Christian dogs' not wanted. But the intolerance of the people of Asir is not reserved for Christians alone. Turks who are fellow Moslems and who were in addition representatives of the 'Caliph, make little headway in Asir. Nominally it was part of the Turkish Empire, as was most of the remainder of Arabia, but the people never acknowledged their independence."

"Along the Red Sea in Asir is a strip of lowlands, twenty to thirty miles wide, known as the 'tehamas,' barren, hot and fever ridden. In appearance it is not unlike the republic of the Coast of Mexico's Lower California. Even in April the thermometer registered as high as 107 degrees in shade in the 'tehamas' and in midsummer it is almost as hot as America's famous Death Valley."

"The inner edge of the 'tehamas' is marked by low mountains, some 2,000 feet high. Further inland are the country's highest peaks, rising to 6,000 and even 8,000 feet. Still further inland the mountains do not acknowledge their independence. They are high plateaus that extend into central Arabia."

"Even the Emir of Asir, nominal lord of the realm, is without authority in much of his wild country. He holds securely only the 'tehamas' and the lower mountains and a portion of the highest region. In much of the highlands the inhabitants do not acknowledge his authority. This is especially true of the nomads on the edge of the great central desert."

"When Italy was at war with Turkey

"The vision of the British student a slave to sport, physically fit, mentally mediocre, so deeply rooted in the Continental mind, comes as a rude shock to the professor's report.
