DEMAND FOR NEW CANADIAN PROVINCE

A demand for the creation of a separate province consisting of that portion of British Columbia lying east of the Cascade range of mountains was endorsed by a convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia recently. The reason advanced for the demand is the alleged lack of proper recognition from the coast. The resolution, which was presented by the Revelstoke board of trade, was carried unanimously but action was laid over for one year.

There has been a growing feeling during the last few years that the interior districts, which include the Kootenay and Okanagan groups and contain important agricultural and mining areas, have not received their fair share of government appropriations for roads, bridges and railways. The fact that the capital, Victoria, is on Vancouver Island, several hours' journey by water away from the mainland, is another source of irritation.

The eastern section of the province has only fifteen representatives in a house of forty-seven, while the three coast cities of Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria among them have eleven, including suburban ridings, sixteen, which more than offsets the vote of the eastern part of the province.

Other resolutions passed at the convention urged that the present war tax on lumber be continued by way of a tariff duty in order to protect the lumber industry; that all undesirable aliens be deported; and that machinery not obtainable from Canadian factories should be admitted free of duty.

KEEPING THE RAILWAY PAINTERS AT IT

(Montreal Journal of Commerce.)

The painting department of the government railways has a busy time in keeping track of the changes of the names of the railway cars. For many years the chief railway was known as the Intercolonial, sometimes the compound word, sometimes two distinct words. For purposes of abbreviation the name was considered as two words, and the road was commonly known as the "I. C. R.", these initials being painted on all cars where an abbreviation was convenient. Several years ago the point was raised by somebody that, when the cars went to the United States, as they often did in the course of truck and trade with the Yankees, the initials caused confusion, inasmuch as they stood also for one of the large American lines, the Illinois Central Railway.

In the meantime the hyphen had disappeared from the name in the official records, and the name "Intercolonial" was found on all passenger cars. In conformity with this and to avoid confusion with the American road, the "I. C. R." was effaced wherever the short form was used, and "I. R. C.", meaning Intercolonial Railway of Canada, was substituted.

The painters had a rest for a while. Then attention was drawn to the fact that the Intercolonial was not the only government road; there was the Prince Edward Island Railway also. So to meet this situation the old name of Intercolonial was abandoned, and a new name, "Canadian Government Railways," "C. G. R.", was painted on the rolling stock. This alteration has not yet been fully made; some of the old cars have not yet reached the paint hands. Now several other lines have been included in the government system, and the Ottawa despatches tell us that hereafter the name to be used for all is "Canadian National Railways." So the painters must get busy again.

NEW INTERNATIONAL CHARTER OF LABOR

Hours of Work Shall Not Exceed Eight Daily or 48 Weekly—Saturday Half-Holidays

London, March 8.—The main proposals of the British draft, adopted with minor alterations by the International Labour Commission at Paris as the new International Charter of Labor, are given in a special despatch from the labor correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

The provisions of this draft preclude the employment of children under fifteen years of age in industrial occupations and of children between fifteen and nineteen for more than six hours daily. At least two hours each day must be devoted by these young workers to technical or regular educational classes, and they will not be permitted to work at night, or on Sundays or holidays.

A Saturday half holiday will be introduced into all countries and workers shall be allowed a continuous weekly rest of at least thirty-six hours, while the hours of work shall not exceed eight or forty-eight weekly, and even less than this in dangerous trades.

Provisions Regarding Women

Women shall not be employed at night, and employers shall not give women work to do at home after their regular day's work. Women shall not be employed in especially dangerous trades, which it is impossible to make healthy, nor in mines, above or below ground.

Women shall not be allowed to work for ten weeks altogether before and after childbirth, six weeks of which shall be taken after confinement.

In every country a system of maternity insurance shall be introduced providing for compensation at least equal to sickness insurance benefit payable in the country concerned.

Women shall receive the same pay as men for the same job.

The use of poisonous materials shall be prohibited in all cases where it is possible to procure substitutes for them. Workers shall have the right of free combination and association in all countries. A system of unemployment insurance shall be set up in every country. All workers shall be insured by the state against industrial accidents.

A special code of laws for the protection of seamen shall be established.

Regarding immigration, which shall not be prohibited in a general way, the charter, according to the correspondent, recognizes the right of any state to restrict immigration temporarily in a period of economic depression or for the protection of public health, and recognizes the right of a state to require a certain standard of education from immigrants.

ALCOHOL HAS A SPECIFIC AFFINITY FOR THE HIGHEST BRAIN CENTRES

Toronto, March 8, 1919.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir—"Drink flies to the brain." Sir Thomas Clouston says, "The first thing alcohol does in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred is to affect the mental working of the brain of the man who imbibes."

Alcohol is the anarchist among drugs. It strikes at the seat of self-government—the power to inhibit. Moderate drinking weakens self-restraint and excites the lower impulses and desires, while immoderate drinking frees a man's passions from control and explains his violence and lust.

Every movement of every part of the body is directed by a brain centre containing its nerve cells. The brain centres which control our organs of movement and our desires are as follows: viz., heart-centres, lung-centres, locomotion-centres, knowledge-centres and inhibitory-centres which restrain and control. This is the actual order of cell development, the centres of inhibition being formed latest in life.

Brain and body are much like a telegraphic system. The brain issues the orders to the body. The wires are the nerve-fibres which run from the brain to every part of the body, carrying messages to the bodily organs. The brain directs, the body obeys. Hence the supreme importance of a healthy brain to character, intellect and physical well-being.

Alcohol is a brain poison and when a man takes a glass of alcoholic liquor the alcohol reaches the brain through the blood vessels, widening the bore of the smallest of these, so that more blood is let into the tissues of the body, causing the flushed face that so soon follows the taking of a glass of whiskey. The next effect is on the brain cells. Certain substances have affinity for the different tissues and organs of the brain.

The brain-cells have this affinity in a special way for alcohol. Its effect on them is intense, and directly on coming in contact with them it first irritates or excites, and then paralyzes them.

In the case of heavy drinkers, alcohol attacks all the brain centres in turn, speaking broadly, in the inverse order of their development. Here we have the explanation of the characteristic, crime-producing influence of strong drink. With the first glasses, reserve is lost. Speech is free from restraint, but not from imprudence, and the actions show that desire and passion are breaking loose. Alcohol begins by paralyzing the brain-centres of inhibition.

Continuing to drink, speech and actions show him to be out of touch with fact. He counts his friends, enemies and wants to fight. His words are slurred. His hand is unsteady. Alcohol is paralyzing the brain centres of knowledge. Further doses paralyze the inverse order of locomotion. The muscles get no orders from the brain and therefore he staggers, reels and falls. In acute and frequent intoxication, the final tragedy may be reached and the brain centres of the lungs and heart attacked and death follows. The steadily extending assault on the powers of the brain explains why strong drink undermines character, intellect and physical health, adding enormously to the store of human misery.

Yours faithfully,

J. H. HAZLEWOOD.
