Whistler was once invited to a wedding of a mere acquaintance, and promised to be present. When the wedding party reached the church the artist was nowhere to be seen, but a telegram was handed to the groom, which read: "Am unavoidably detained. Can't get to the church in time. Don't wait."

Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Kentucky are officially styled commonwealths, although there seems to be no particular reason, except custom, as commonwealth has practically the same meaning as state.

AMERONGEN DIZZY WITH EXCITEMENT

Skittles the Only Thriller Before the ex-Kaiser Came—Now Obsessed With Menace of the Bolshevik

London, July 28.—(Correspondence)—Before the ex-Kaiser and the Bolsheviks came to Holland, writes the Daily Mail correspondent at Amerongen, skittles were the only distraction there. Now the quiet, centuries-old village is having more excitement than is good for it.

The local tobacco planters and rose-growers have been drawn into the vortex of high politics, for does not the morning barber visit the castle every morning to brush the hair and trim the beard of Wilhelm, late German emperor, now amateur champion wood-sawyer of Europe? And a most excellent barber he is.

The coming of the Kaiser to Castle Bentinck caused a political eruption among the 1,400 villagers who for the first time elected the first woman, who was also the first Socialist, to the municipal council. Then came whispers of Bolshevikism, and the whispers produced the Burgerwacht, or civic guard.

We are very proud of our Burgerwacht in Amerongen. Commanded by the town clerk, a mighty skittles player who stands 6-ft. 4 in. in his socks, with his brother, a still mightier skittles player of the same height, as second in command, the anti-Bolshevik guard is some ninety strong, and its members are proof against propaganda and intimidation.

Armed with rifles and wearing orange brassards, they drill religiously every Thursday, marching through the village to the tap of the drum, admired by the girls and idolized by the boys. It is said that the ex-Kaiser in his moated castle has shuddered at the tramp of the Amerongen Burgerwacht.

But the two dominating world problems—the ex-Kaiser and Bolshevikism—cannot distract Amerongen from skittles. Skittles has played in this village is not so much a game as an achievement. We have nothing like it in England, though I understand there are feeble imitations in Germany.

Imagine a long, narrow shed, with a polished plank about fifteen yards long and a foot wide, run-down the centre. The object is to roll bowls weighing fourteen pounds each and equipped with a hole for the thumb along the plank, and thus knock down all or some of eight skittles, and the difficulty is to keep the bowl on the plank.

A novice may play for hours without achieving more than a dislocated thumb and a swollen forearm, but an expert like our gigantic town clerk can work wonders with spin and bias. Like all good and ancient games, skittles has a ritual of its own. There is the solemn wetting of the right hand on a sponge, the gentle drying on a towel, there is the importance of the studied, poised, the swift spring, and the correcting contortion of the body as the heavy bowl rattles to the skittles, which is accompanied by an attendant who risks death and maiming for 2s. a night. The men of Rheine, the neighboring Rhine village, fancy themselves at the game, but so long as our town clerk and his colossal brother retain their form Amerongen will be known as the champion skittles village of the province of Utrecht.

Bored and Tired.

Meanwhile, playing at emperors in the moated castle, the ex-Kaiser is a bored and tired man. His chief ambition at present is to saw 10,000 trees into presentation logs. He shows as much pleasure in counting, arranging and inscribing these logs as a boy with a bag of new marbles, but the rest of the household do not share his enthusiasm. A log of wood is an embarrassing gift to treasure with any degree of sustained sentiment.

On fine afternoons he walks in the garden, where he has seen the roses bloom, the beautiful roses of Amerongen, blood-red now, but soon to fade and wither even as the ambitions of unworthy kings.

"What ails the car?" "From what father mutters, I gather that something is wrong with the blankety-blank."
