The Trend of Matters Political

Some Ten-minute notices of all Recent—

The Memorial Gold Mining Company intend having their machinery carried in place next week and operations commenced immediately.

Edgewood's carriage factory is again shut down. The men have no idea when it will be running again, and several have decided to leave for the States.

The ten years lumber leases which have expired, will be sold for a term of twenty-five years. The length of the term caused a warm discussion. Mr. Goggin, of Kent, voted with the government.

The ice in the river is getting very treacherous in places and parties traveling on it cannot be too careful, and should always go prepared for accidents, as several teams have already gone through.

Numerous petitions have been sent to the legislature from all over the province, in regard to the free school law. Several were presented Thursday by some of the members. The Bathurst school Monday will come before the house on Monday next.

The remark made by the Hon. Provincial Secretary to Mr. Pitts last week, on the floors of the house, in which he stated that "some parties not in the majority should be there," contained more truth than poetry. York has sent two more representatives there this week, and "all there is a room."

The St. Andrew's Bazaar in reference to the amendment to Dr. Atkinson's petition by the Attorney General says: "The amendment of Mr. E. H. Macdonell, in which he requires the petitioner to put up a deposit of $1,000 to be used to defray expenses whether he wins or loses." The petition did not reach the parliament and the government might lead the public to the erroneous conclusion that the matter of the petition was not important, a conclusion which would give additional influence to such utterances and endanger peace and good government throughout our province.

Mr. Devlin said that Mr. Wallace had no right to pledge assistance to treasonable movements in Ulster.

Mr. Devlin said that Mr. Wallace's speech was injudicious and unwise but as the motion was no confidence in the government he could not support it. (Grogan).

Mr. Devlin said that the government must leave it to the people to decide whether they will support Mr. Wallace or not. Mr. Wallace had taken an oath to serve the people, but now he was encouraging resistance to her authority.

Mr. Foster as leader of the house attacked the opposition and then admitted that Mr. Wallace had perhaps got no support from the amendment.

Sir Richard Cartwright said the government must either endorse Wallace's speech or leave it in open question.

Mr. McInerney said he considered Mr. Wallace's speech one which should not be approved by the house. It was calculated to provoke strife among British subjects. He would vote for the amendment.

Mr. McInerney created a sensation by saying that he agreed in the main with Mr. Wallace's speech, and that he would vote for the amendment. This announcement caused a commotion in government circles.

Spirited McLean, (York) and Constable, solicitor general, regretted that Mr. Wallace had not repudiated his utterances, or stated that he did not mean armed resistance to British rule if he were in power.

Mr. Grogan (Conservative) said the house was face to face with a question more fraught with danger to Canada than anything it had before it for years. Wallace had practically repeated his speech in the house, and the matter must, therefore, be dealt with. The British government had undertaken to take care of the men who were fronting resolution in Ulster.

Before the house met at half-past eight o'clock, the ministers had a hurried cabinet council to discuss the situation, but the result was not announced.

Dr. Bergin on the home remaining said the leader of the government should state at once whether the resolution was to be treated as a non-confidence or not.

Hon. Mr. Foster said that if the resolution passed it would not be by the aid of the friends of the government.

Mr. Bergin—That means that any man who votes for the resolution is not a friend of the government. He condemned the government for refusing to call its supporters together and explaining its position to them. Because of the reply given

TORY FAMILY JABS.

Vote in Censure of one of Their Colleagues.

For His Treasonable Utterances at a Public Meeting.

OTTAWA, March 22.—In the House of Commons yesterday there was a lively family row in the Tory party over Clark Wallace's disloyal speech at Kingston, and it looks as if the orange and green colors were not plying well together.

Mr. Casey rose to call attention to the speech made by Mr. Clark Wallace at Kingston advising the sending of assistance from Canada to the Ulster Orange Order.

Mr. Dawson, (Liberal member for Adirondack) expressed his regret at Wallace's admission. All lovers of free institutions should be prepared to submit to the rule of the majority, and in the United Kingdom the majority of voters had voted for home rule Mr. Wallace's speech was an incitement to rebellion against the queen's authority.

Mr. Wallace's speech was a violation of the highest principles of the Orange Order. He closed by moving a resolution requiring the King's House to republish his admission of its accuracy, and declaring to be the duty of all her majesty's subjects loyal to submit to the law; that the constitution provides a mode of redressing grievances; that no changes ought to be brought about by or other physical force; that any attempt to coerce her majesty in respect to any portion of her empire is an unparliamentary and treasonable act and should receive the uncompromising resistance of all loyal citizens; that the speaker is guilty of a violation of the highest principles of the Orange Order. He closed by moving a resolution requiring the King's House to republish his admission of its accuracy, and declaring to be the duty of all her majesty's subjects loyal to submit to the law; that the constitution provides a mode of redressing grievances; that no changes ought to be brought about by

HIT IN THE FACE.

Judge Clarke and Mr. Macmaster Exchange Blows.

The New York Police Before the Railway Committee. Mr. Haggart Asks a Redress—An Arrest and a Handshake.

Judge George M. Clark, of the C. P. R. solicitor, and Mr. Donald Macmaster, Q. C. of Montreal, had a stand up fight this week before the railway committee of the provincial council. Both gave and received blows. They were separated and finally apologized to the committee before shaking hands.

The case under consideration was the application of the Toronto Junction Street and Railway to compel the G. T. R. and city of Toronto to pay an equal share of the cost of the tracks crossing on the Danforth road. The committee some time ago ordered the Street Railway Company to bear the entire cost.

The matter lay dormant by way of appeal from the Street Car Company. Hon. John Haggart, minister of railways, presided. The other members were Hon. Messrs. Bennett, Foster, Daly and Clark Wallace representing the Street Car Company were looked after by Messrs. Donald Macmaster and A. W. Atwater, Montreal. Mr. Bennett had a large audience, including Mr. Wm. Waterbury, assistant manager of the G. T. R.; Mr. T. Delt, assistant manager of the C. P. R.; Mr. C. W. Newson, superintendent of the C. P. R., as well as a score of lawyers engaged in other cases.

Mr. Foster as leader of the house attacked the opposition and then admitted that Mr. Wallace had perhaps got no support from the amendment.

Sir Richard Cartwright said the government must either endorse Wallace's speech or leave it in open question.

Mr. McInerney said he considered Mr. Wallace's speech one which should not be approved by the house. It was calculated to provoke strife among British subjects. He would vote for the amendment.

Mr. McInerney created a sensation by saying that he agreed in the main with Mr. Wallace's speech, and that he would vote for the amendment. This announcement caused a commotion in government circles.

Spirited McLean, (York) and Constable, solicitor general, regretted that Mr. Wallace had not repudiated his utterances, or stated that he did not mean armed resistance to British rule if he were in power.

Mr. Grogan (Conservative) said the house was face to face with a question more fraught with danger to Canada than anything it had before it for years. Wallace had practically repeated his speech in the house, and the matter must, therefore, be dealt with. The British government had undertaken to take care of the men who were fronting resolution in Ulster.

Before the house met at half-past eight o'clock, the ministers had a hurried cabinet council to discuss the situation, but the result was not announced.

Dr. Bergin on the home remaining said the leader of the government should state at once whether the resolution was to be treated as a non-confidence or not.

Hon. Mr. Foster said that if the resolution passed it would not be by the aid of the friends of the government.

Mr. Bergin—That means that any man who votes for the resolution is not a friend of the government. He condemned the government for refusing to call its supporters together and explaining its position to them. Because of the reply given by Mr. Foster he would vote for Dawson's resolution even if his vote caused the government to resign.

Mr. Davis said there was a time when a man who spoke for Mr. Wallace did would be sentenced to penal servitude. The Irish Protestants of Canada did not regard the controller of customs as a representative man. Here Mr. Foster interrupted and Mr. Davis advised the finance minister not to rush, as his steps as leader of the house were not successful as they were when he was second man. If the house did not censure Wallace's words it must approve them. He ridiculed Wallace's pretensions and said he would soon have an utterly illiterate ministry. As he could not approve of such utterances he therefore moved a resolution that the government must vote for the resolution.

Several Tory members followed condemning Wallace's language but begging their friends not to help defeat the government in the room's absence.

Sir Hector Langevin condemned Wallace and said he would vote for the resolution.

Mr. A. Carron said the resolution was an attack upon a member of the government and therefore must be considered a motion of non-confidence in the minister.

Mr. Davin—But Mr. Constigan supports it. (Laughter).

After further discussion the house divided, and 106 Tories voting in favor of reasonable utterances; and 12 Conservatives voted with the Liberals against the resolution. The Conservatives were Messrs. Wallace, Curran, Kenney, Bernan, Langevin, Hearn, McInerney, Adams, Davin, Depina, Pelletier, and McDonald.

Mr. P. E. Island, voting with the opposition.

Before the house adjourned Hon. Mr. Laurier called attention to an interview with Sir Charles Tupper in which he stated that the government would have to carry the French Treaty through the house or resign.

Hon. Mr. Foster—I have not taken any notice of the statement nor do I intend to criticize it.

Hon. Mr. Laurier—Nor give any information.

Hon. Mr. Foster—No not at present. The house then adjourned.

Mr. Warren D. Wentz

Tells of His Perverse Sufferings After Gastric Fever and His Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla

All who know Mr. W. D. Wentz give him the heart of recommendations for honesty and integrity. For many years he has worked for Mr. D. P. Wilson, the harness maker and member of the Geneva Board of Health. He says:

"I was taken sick last October with gastric fever and my chance for recovery was considered almost hopeless. After 7 weeks the fever slowly left me, but I could not eat the simplest food without terrible distress. It seemed that I had recovered from the fever to die of starvation."

I took peppermint, licorice, phosgene, cod liver oil and milk with my physician, and found that his skill was almost exhausted. Everything I took seemed like gastritis, and I was unable to eat a single morsel of food. I had a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla sent me, and in a few days I was able to eat a little more than tea and toast and in a few days was able to eat my usual food without distressing me, even to eat the most delicate dishes. I had now recovered from my illness, and I felt that I had been wonderfully cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I would like to give it to anyone suffering with gastric fever, as it has cured me, and I am sure it will cure you."

A Good Voucher

I have known Mr. Warren D. Wentz for many years and can vouch for him as a man of honesty and integrity. I have taken a little more than tea and toast and in a few days was able to eat my usual food without distressing me, even to
