

we now would write indelibly upon your minds is the fact that the power in Methodism is the power of holiness. It is not the power of a doctrine, though that is something, but it is the power of an experience. Our fathers, coming to the cross, tarried by it, "and drank the healing streams of bliss, and washed them white as snow." They testified not only that Christ could save from sin, but that He did so save them, and they said—

"What we have felt and seen
With confidence we tell,
And publish to the sons of men
The signs infallible."

And this experience of a salvation as full as it is free, is the life and hope of our Church, and let us hope that we shall bear the mantle of our Elijah and continue to preach Scriptural holiness throughout the world.

T. M. CAMPBELL, President.
W. J. YOUNG, Secretary.