The War.

Despatches of Thursday, 16th, are as follows:
In a fight at Telissu on the railway about 80 miles north of Port Arthur, the Russians lost 500 men killed, 300 taken prisoners, and 14 guns. The casualities on the Japanese side are estimated at 1,000 killed

Niu Chwang, June 16-Firing has been heard distinctly in the direction of Kai chou since 10 o'clock last night. Two batteries of artillery rushed through town at midnight. The second division of General Kuroki's army was reported to be marching towards Kai chou yesterday afternoon for the purpose of taking the enemy in the rear. It is positively known that the Russian forces in the vicinity of Kai chou are divided. Half are at Kai chou and the remainder about twenty miles east of there. The entire force numbers 35,000 me including 600 Cossacks.

A private letter from Mukden says the press correspondents there are not hopeful of getting news from the Russians, who give every indication that the correspondents are not wanted. Many of the correspondents are preparing to leave.

Che foo, June 16—Noon.—From a reliable source it is learned that the Japanese had sixty thousand men on the Liaotung peninsula ten days ago. It is believed that it is their intention to use 10,000 men in the attack on Port Arthur. Possibly it will be a fortnight before they

The Russians admit that two batteries were cut to pieces at Telissu by the enemy's superior artillery fire. They deny that the [Victoria, B. C., Daily Colonist, June 14.] retreat was a "rout", as Oku calls it, but when a force starts out with sixteen guns and brings back only two we fancy "rout" is rather a better word than retreat. The practical effect of the battle is to put an end to all the talk of relieving Port Arthur. The fortress is as good as

It is not certain, in spite of the appearance of the cruiser Novik in the roadstead, that the entrance to Port Arthur harbor is open. The Novik is a shallow draught vessel and may pass in and out of a channel which larger vessels could not navigate. It is doubtful therefore if the Russian Port Arthur fleet could as yet get out of the harbor to assist or Join the Vladivostok squadron, supposing the latter manages to get near Port Arthur, a feat which appears to be humanly impossible.

One of the troop laden transports first reported sunk by the Vlad ivostok squadron has been towed into a home port disabled, but with all on board safe. After the non-combatants had obeyed the Russian order to take the small boats, a number of shots were fired at the transport and she was left, as the Russians believed, in a sinking condition She does not appear to have been damaged beyond repair. A third transport is still missing. She was homeward bound and would probvast northern territory is of the greatest ably have no soldiers, or only invalids on board, and no munitions of importance.
