

Christian Science denies the fact of death. No one ever died. The grave does not contain a single corrupting corpse. The concept of death is the delusion of false and mortal mind. There is no death, for there is no sickness. Disease, sickness, pain and death are imaginary, they (exist?) only in the false and unreal mind of man. Repudiate them, deny them; they do not exist. He who has tuberculosis, or typhoid fever, or an inward cancer, need call in no physician; let him recognize that sickness, like sin, is a lie, and he shall be delivered and be wholly well. Sin, sickness and death, do not exist because there is no matter. Nothing we see is real. The tree, the flower, the mountain, the sea, the round earth, the whole wide universe, these are the mere creations of the mind, and no more real and existent, than our own deluded thoughts. Our very body is a delusion and a snare. The way to largest and fullest life is to recognize that these so-called bodies do not exist at all. We are all spirit, spirit is God, God is not an eternal person, but an eternal principle of good. We are all good because we are all spirit and are equal to God. We have existed as such from the beginning. None of us has ever been born. No woman ever gave birth to a child and no man has the right to be called a father; what is called material existence is no more real than imagined sin, sickness, pain and death. There is no personal God, and there
