Removing Rust.

Can you give a good recipe for removing rust from a stove and also from nickel plated material?

SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—A recipe for removing rust from iron which gives fairly good results is ground pumice, 30 grams; oleic acid 20 grams; tallow 2 grams; paraffine 4 grams. The last three ingredients are melted together and the powdered pumice is stirred in. Another method is to cover the rusted parts with sweet oil well rubbed in and next day cover with finely powdered, unslaked lime. Polish with this until the rust disappears. One-half ounce of emery powder mixed with one ounce of soft soap and well rubbed in will also remove rust from iron and steel. For nickel-plated articles cover the stain with oil or grease for a few days and then remove the rust by rubbing a little ammonia. If this does not remove it, try very dilute hydrochloric acid. When dry polish with whiting.

Selling a Horse.

A sells a horse to B, telling B, who is not much experienced in handling horses that the animal is not sound, he having been stifled when a colt, but it does not interfere with him doing any kind of farm work and he is a good free horse on the road and not afraid of automobiles. The horse was sold for $65 on a two days' trial and was delivered to B on October 13. On October 24 A sees B about buying the animal and B admitted he liked the horse when he drove it the night before better than he had during any time he had used him, but he wished to consult his wife before finally consenting to keep it. It was agreed between A and B that B and his wife should again drive the horse on the afternoon of October 24, and B mentioned that if his wife—who was not accustomed to driving horses—could handle him satisfactorily they would decide to keep him and let A know. As yet A has received no word, but believes that B has had every opportunity to prove the horse as represented, as, according to the neighbors he has been used practically every day. Can A collect the price of the animal from B?

W. P.

Ans.—According to the information given A can collect, as, by not returning the horse at the end of the two days' trial, B virtually acknowledges that he is satisfied with the horse.

Open Season for Fur-bearing Animals.

What is the open season for catching skunks, muskrats, raccoon, mink, weasel, black squirrel and rabbits?

J. M.

Ans.—The open season for muskrat is from the first of December to the first of May. Muskrats cannot be speared at any time, nor shall any muskrat house be cut, speared, broken or destroyed at any time. Open season for mink is from the first of November to first of May. We do not believe there is any closed season for skunk or weasel, and it is useless to hunt raccoons during the summer as the hides would be of no use. Open season for hares from first day of October to 15th day of December, both days included, and except that between the fifteenth day of December and the thirty-first day of December of any year, both days inclusive, the wood hare, or cotton-tail rabbit may be taken, killed or destroyed by means of snares, ferrets, or any other means than shooting. However, a wood hare or cotton-tail rabbit may be taken, killed or destroyed in any manner by the owner, occupant of leasee of any land upon which it causes actual damage to trees or shrubs, or by any member of the family of such occupant, or lessee, or by any person holding a written license or permit from such owner, occupant, or lessee, and any of these animals killed under this subsection shall be handed over to the nearest officer of the Game and Fisheries Branch. The open season for black or grey squirrels is from the 15th day of November to the first day of December in any year, both days inclusive.
