A sad story comes from Muskoka. Two bright little girls, daughters of Mr. Alexander, of Rousseau Falls, started last Monday with their uncle to visit his house, three miles from their house. Their path lay along the bank of the river. After walking some distance the uncle suggested lay along the bank of the river. After walking some distance the uncle suggested that as the little girls were cold, perhaps a run would do them good, whereupon the children ran ahead of him and soon got out of sight. When the uncle arrived at his house the little girls had not reached there. He immediately went in search of them, assisted by the neighbors, but up to the present time no traces of the children have been found. It is supposed that they ran down on to the thin ice on the river, and falling through, got drowned.
