TORTURED FOR NEARLY TWO YEARS

Mrs. Poulin Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Rheumatism, Backache, and Headaches Were Her Portion But Now She is a New Woman.

McCREARY, Man., Jan. 20.—(Special).—"Four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new person of me." The speaker is Mrs. Oliver Poulin, of this place, and her numerous friends here fully verify her statement.

"For nearly two years," Mrs. Poulin continues, "rheumatism tortured me. My back and head also ached. My eyes were puffed and swollen. I am sixty-three years of age, and you can see I was a pretty sick woman. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me." Mrs. Poulin is only one of many who have had a similar experience. They were weak and run down, and sick all over. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured them. How? Simply by curing the kidneys. The diseased kidneys were the cause of all the trouble. They were failing to strain the impurities out of the blood, and the result was disease all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured the kidneys, the impurities were strained out of the blood. The result was pure blood and good health all over the body. The cause of the disease had been removed.

BRAILLE'S BIG WELL

It Would Have Worked Wonders Only It Was Never Dug.

Perhaps the most idiotic of all the many idiotic schemes with which Britons have been enamored in days gone by was that which was known at the time as Braille's big well. Mr. Braille was a Belgian engineer, residing temporarily in England, who, in 1848, approached the then prime minister (Lord John Russell) with a scheme for sinking a huge shaft, a mile in diameter and twenty miles in depth, that should tap the earth's internal heat and thereby render England independent of her coal supply when this gave out.

Lord Russell, always rather attracted by visionary projects, attentively considered the scheme and caused plans and estimates to be drawn up. The first difficulty was the rush of water, which would have been certain to occur sooner or later. This it was proposed to keep under by pumping, caissons being used for the purpose of further excavation, while the finished portion of the shaft was to be rendered watertight by a "jacket" of granite set in Portland cement.

Mad as the scheme was, it found plenty of advocates, and a provisional bill had been, it was said, actually drafted, when the overthrow of the government on the franchise question was announced, and the whole business was thenceforth consigned to a well merited oblivion.—Pearson's Weekly.

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

The Naval Court Was Polite With the Pushing Boston Attorney.

Courts martial are not infrequently held on battleships in the Charlestown navy yard. Sometimes a sailor will send for a Boston attorney to defend him, although this tendency is discouraged by the officers. Most attorneys know they have no absolute right to practice in a naval court and can do so only by permission of the court, but occasionally a lawyer goes aboard who does not realize this fact.

A sailor who was charged with gambling had retained an attorney to get him off. This attorney, who had never had such a case before, went briskly into the officers' wardrobe, where the court was sitting and without waiting on ceremony began to address the court in a blustering manner.

"Just a minute," interrupted the presiding officer. "Who are you?"

"I am Mr. Rudolph Smithers," the attorney replied, "and I am a member of the Massachusetts bar."

"Oh, you are Mr. Smithers, are you?" continued the officer. "Then you are a civilian?"

"He called the orderly."

"What does the orderly want of me?" asked the attorney in a superior tone.

"Nothing very much," replied the chief justice. "He merely wants to show you off the ship."—New York Herald.

THE WOMANLY TOUCH.

Adam was showing Eve through the cave.

"This is the living room," he said. "It is furnished as luxuriously as possible. I have spared no expense on it, and yet it lacks something or other, some final touch that I cannot name."

Eve took a swift look around. Then she pulled the magazine table out a little from the wall, gave it a morris chair, and kicked the tiger skin rug back a foot from the door.

"Wonderful!" cried Adam and gazed open mouthed at the magical transformation.

The cave was more than a cave now. It was a home.

There's no place like home.—Newark News.

Sinister.
A nonconformist clergyman in Manchester is chuckling over a letter he recently received from the vicar of a certain parish church. He had written to the vicar asking for permission to conduct a funeral in the churchyard.

"He immediately sent me a most courteous note," the nonconformist clergyman said, "and I could not help noticing that it would be possible to give to his words a sinister meaning. The note ran: 'You will, both tomorrow and any other time, be most welcome in our churchyard.'"—London Answers.

Getting Even.
"Oh, George, dear," she whispered when he slipped the engagement ring on her tapering finger, "how sweet of you to remember just the sort of stone I preferred! None of the others was 'ever so thoughtful!'"

George was staggered, but for a moment. Then he came back with: "Not at all, dear. You overrate me. This is the one I've always used."—London Stray Stories.

"Well, what of it?" "Well, he has pine trees and a terrace."—Judge's Library.

Woman's World

Policewoman a Great Hit at Suffrage Convention.

MRS. ALICE STEBBINS WELLS.

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, the woman policeman of Los Angeles, in an address at the suffrage convention recently held in Philadelphia had the following to say about the need for women in law enforcement:

"One or more policewomen should be connected with each police department for the sole purpose of receiving complaints from women if for nothing else. Women hesitate to go to a policeman for information and advice. This is easily understood, and as a result it hinders every municipality to provide women officers, who can render help in many ways where a man is almost powerless."

"The policewoman is particularly best fitted to handle juvenile offenders, for a woman has the motherly instinct that enables her to accomplish wonderful tasks. I believe that every city should have a woman attached to its least persons bureau. She is of great value in tracing missing persons who have become separated from their families."

Mrs. Wells told of her experiences in Los Angeles in preventing the sale of tickets to moving picture theaters or any other public amusement to children under fourteen unless accompanied by adults.

NEW YEAR GOOD CHEER.
A Little Chat on Open House During the Holidays.

A cup of tea and a box of crackers offered in a third story hall room to the half dozen people on the same floor is a hospitality which may have in it all the spirit of kindness which was demonstrated by the old time "open house." We are apt to grow supersensitive and self-conscious when we are surrounded by strangers.

We wonder if anything we can do will give pleasure. We stay alone and wish that some one would meet us halfway, yet we do not go out to meet them. We sigh for responsiveness and sympathy and are not conscious that the slightest indication on our part of a desire to be friendly might bring a cordial welcome from those whose coldness we have criticized.

"Open house" in its old generous sense may not be a possibility under modern conditions, but those of us who live in the city might touch the lives of the people who yearn for companionship and bring to sad hearts a glow of delight in the enjoyment of our neighborliness. There is scarcely a community or settlement where one cheery and neighborly woman may not rouse a spirit of co-operation if she exerts herself sufficiently.

It would be interesting if more of us would make the experiment during the gray winter days, especially the days between Christmas and New Year's, which hang so heavily on the hands of those who have no share in the merry-making of others. If during these days we would open our tiny apartment, or even our one room in a boarding house, to receive those less fortunate than ourselves for an hour's interchange of good will.

Accordion Plated.
Accordions are ubiquitous for girls' dresses, the more luxurious materials being, of course, more or less reserved for their elders. There are lovely little evening gowns, too, simply made of accordion or gaufréed pearl white chiffon, into which is slipped a panel of shadow lace, likewise applied to match. No other trimming but the lace is required unless it be the heavy silver or gold bullion fringe which so many dressmakers employ as a finish to the soft swathed satin belt.

Something Worth Knowing.
Sometimes white trimmings on a colored dress look dingy. Wring a white cloth out in this starch, place on the trimming, then put a dry cloth over that and iron with a hot iron, and the dirt will come off on to the starched cloth.

Points for Mothers

Your Daughter's Friends.

Here is a question that every mother of a growing girl should consider very carefully: How can I have more good times with my daughter and her friends?

Have you made friends with your daughter's friends? Do you know who her friends are and who are their friends?

It would seem from a study of social conditions that more than half the mothers in this country pay little attention to their children's associates outside the home. Perhaps your plea for this neglect—for it is a neglect, a neglect of duty—is that the housework and the care of younger children will not permit you to spend any time getting acquainted with young Ethel's friends.

Ethel enjoys their company, and you would not wish to hurt her feelings by suggesting that she should not associate with them. Ethel must have her fun while she is young.

Five mornings a week ten months in the year Ethel has to get out of bed early, dress, have breakfast and hurry off to school. Perhaps she returns at noon for a hasty lunch, perhaps not, but after school hours she must practice her music, study her lessons for the next day and attend to some small duties at home.

The evenings are long in winter. As a rule, there are few amusements at home, and the young boy and girl seek pleasure at some neighbor's house or get permission to attend a moving picture show.

On the way to either place Ethel meets a boy friend or several boys and girls, who suggest a walk or a visit to some boy's or girl's home where they can "rough house" unrestrained.

Very often a dance hall claims the boys and girls of fifteen and older. Surely there has been enough written about the dangers of the public dance. The boys Ethel knows come to your home frequently. They are at by awkward age, when the thought of meeting you and Ethel's father is most distasteful to them.

Ethel knows how they feel and courts their favor by arranging meetings outside her home—on the corner or at some girl friend's house where there is less supervision by parents than at her own home.

You, however, are really relieved by the thought that you do not have to meet and help entertain these young people. You say to yourself: "Oh, well, if she likes to be at Anna's house let her go. I suppose they do have a better time there, where they do not have to take care not to waken a baby." And so Ethel is allowed to go out in the evenings according to her own sweet will.

She forms the habit, and few are the evenings spent at home with mother and the other children.

If trouble comes to Ethel she is to blame. She is reprimanded, upbraided, and if she is a girl of spirit the chances are she leaves home entirely to join the army of working girls—or comes to "water barn."

Care of Children's Eyes.
One of the most important organs in the human body is the eye. Yet parents constantly jeopardize their children's eyesight by allowing them to read or study in insufficient light or light that is harmful to the delicate mechanism of the eye.

Light should always fall over the left shoulder of the reader. By so doing the rays of light follow the line on the right page, and the vision also following the line from left to right meets with no resistance in the way of light waves, but, on the contrary, is aided in its work chair back, then when they do lean forward to write they will instinctively move forward on the seat and retain the erect position of back and shoulders.

This is a most important matter for many persons have had to sit through life with a distressing curvature of the spine simply because in early days they have been allowed to sit with bent backs over their books.

When Baby Travels.
There are all sorts of fitted baskets for all sorts of purposes, but the one that most appeals to mothers is dedicated to baby on his travels.

Some of these are wonderfully elaborate
