FARMERSVILLE, NOV. 7, 1887.
LOCAL AND OTHER NOTES.
From the Pencil of our Own News-Gatherer.

Those who desire to sell farms or farming stock should advertise in the Reporter, which circulates extensively in this county.
Educated heads and skilled hands are always in demand. Graduates of the Kings on Business College have found this a true saying.
There will be a tea-meeting on the 24th inst. in the Presbyterian Church, Westport. A select program of music and addresses will be presented.
Mr. Hart, of the Ontario House, Newboro, has just completed a commodious sample room, which will further increase the popularity of this favorite hotel.

The Quarterly Service in the Methodist Church on Sunday was largely attended. Four adults were baptized, and about a dozen were received into full membership.
Between four and five o'clock on Thursday morning last, the inmates of the "mission" were awakened in terrible fright by the burglar alarm going off. Several sprang out of bed crying "burglars," "fire," "dynamite" and "murder." The culprits, who effected an entrance at the front of the house, on hearing such an alarm ran and took refuge in some back yard while those who remained in charge of the house were heard going around the corner of Church and Victoria streets at a furious rate. Nothing was taken, the only damage being the rough manner in which some tinware was handled. A reward of $200 is offered for information which will bring the guilty parties to justice.

A story about a mean man is told by the Reporter's scribe. "The writer was on the road to Farmersville and had to wait some time at the Elbe toll-stake, which was blocked up by a wagon with a hay rack. As we finally drove up and handed over our four cents the old lady in charge of the gate said: 'If you wait long enough I'll tell you why that man was so long here. You see this morning he went part with a load of hay so large it would not go through the gate. To help him out of the trouble, my husband and myself got rails from the fence and fixed up the side of the road so he could drive around the gate and he got by without unloading. When he came back just now he refused to pay only one way as he said he had only gone through the gate once. What do you think of that?' said the old lady as we drove on."

The profession an absolutely accurate knowledge of the topography of this village is essential to ensure immunity from danger. In taking on a short walk it is necessary to climb up and down a dozen different steps. The former condition was bad enough, but the air-line walk laid down by the builders of the new block is a fitting climax to a bad system. At the principal crossing of the village—that leading to the post office—two high and very difficult steps have to be taken in order to reach the sidewalk. It is almost impossible for a lady to either ascend or descend it without either ascending or descending it without scratching her costume and dignity of bearing. There would seem to be a rivalry between the merchants as to who should have the highest walk. If this be true, we recommend that the pastry be presented to the north side merchants.

We take the following obituary notice from the "Strawberry Point News": "Philip Wiltse was born in Farmersville, Jan. 22nd, 1828. He lived in that vicinity until the age of sixteen when married Dr. Alexander Wiltse. In 1849 they moved to Sandusky, O., and remained one year and then returned to Canada. In 1853 they came to Coleridge, Ia., remaining two years—thence to Strawberry Point, Iowa, where they spent the remainder of their lives. Dr. Wiltse's death occurred Nov. 7th, 1879. He commenced the study of medicine in Ohio and received his diploma from Bennett Medical College, Chicago. His history in later years was an eminent and successful physician as well known to all throughout northern Iowa. There was born to Dr. and Mrs. Wiltse eight children, five of whom survive her whom we mourn to-day. Mrs. Wiltse has ever been a patient, loving, and devoted wife and mother, always ready to endeavor to relieve the wants, not only of her immediate family, but to impart a word of comfort and cheer to the suffering and afflicted. Her own sufferings were secondary; her first acts of kindness being to do for others, even to the detriment of feelings and health. She died Thursday, Oct. 6th, 1887, aged 59 years, 8 months and 8 days."

LETTER FROM A FARMERSVILLIAN.
EDITOR REPORTER:—Dear Sir, I must confess that your paper has been great company for me this season. I look for its arrival every week as eagerly as I would look for a friend. Louis Factory, owned by Miller & Ferguson, is located on the left bank near the station on the C. P. R. line in Edgewood-Long. This valley is settled by intelligent, industrious and wealthy farmers, whose zeal for temperance predominates over their zeal for party politics. When Richard, the temperance man, withdrew in favor of French, these men refused to vote. (That we had such in Farmersville?) After I closed the factory last season, the patrons returned the next day with the milk from their herds, and presented it to me as an expression of their good will. It was no small present I assure you.
Yours S. specifically

Convincing Argument
JONES.—Have you got your life insured?
SMITH.—Yes I have, with Mr. Halladay.
J.—He has been taking to me, but I fancy his company isn't as good as some of the others.
S.—What makes you think so?
J.—It's a mutual company, and I haven't heard so much about it as I have of the others.
S.—I don't see how that can be, and I really thought that it was an assessment company, which passed around the hat at every death. But upon looking into the matter I found that it was an old Limer, doing business on the cash principle, having the largest deposit of any on the same basis as any old Limer. This being the case, I decided to insure in it.
J.—Well, even that. What are its advantages over the stock companies?
S.—It has several, but the principal one lies in the fact that it has no stockholders to take the profits from the policy holders.
J.—Are not these men entitled to interest on their money?
S.—Yes, they are, and they get from eight to fifteen per cent. yearly; and you know the company can't lend it for more than six per cent. But in addition to this these men get from 10 to 20 per cent. of the policy holders' profits every three or five years, amounting to thousands of dollars.
J.—Do you mean to tell me that the stockholder of a life company gets from 10 to 20 per cent. of all profits no matter from what source, besides dividends on their paid up capital?
S.—That is just what I mean. For I investigated the Ontario Mutual and giving cheaper insurance profits go to the policy holders, because all the profits go to the policy holders.
J.—I thank you for the information—am well satisfied with it—will do as you have done, in sure with
