A. Young Hero Does Some Plucky Work in New York-He Fainted After it.

New York, Feb. 16. - Michael Mc-Quaid, a young man from Bangor, Maine, made a brave rescue of a woman and her two children from a tenement house fire yesterday at 1,988 Second avenue. McQuaid, who was employed in the building, started to arouse all the people in it when the fire was discovered. He found Chas. Bossis' printing shop locked, but knowing that the printer's family lived in the rear, helbroke in the glass of the door. He found Mrs. Bossis dysterical from fright, and with her night dress in flames. McQuaid carried her to the open air, where she cried that her children would perish. McQuaid took off his coat, wrapped it around his head, and plunged into the flumes and smoke. He returned in a few moments. His coat was not over his head this time, but around the two infants held in his arms. His face and hair had been exposed to the fire, and he came out minus his eyebrows, his hair singed and his cheeks blistered by the heat. He staggered to the sidewalk, put the babies down at their mother's feet, and fell in a at their mother's feet, and fell in a

A GREAT MISTAKE.

A GREAT MISTAKE.

"It seems to me," said a citizen, "that the city council is very shortsighted in some ways. Here is Mr. Shackleton, who knows every sewer in the city and understands the conditions so as to lay the sidewalks to the best advantage, and yet the city council are ready to dismiss him and engage a stranger who knows mothing about the city. We had an outsider here once and he made plenty of mistakes. Then why should Mr. Shackleton be deprived of his office because he is accused of making a petty mistake. I don't admit that he was to blame at all. The city had an inspector looking after the laying of the William St. sewer. The council will make a big mistake if they let Mr. Shackleton go and bring a man here who knows nothing about the city. Things will then be worse than ever."
