HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

A Column Specially Prepared By The Planet For The Busy Housewives of Chatham and Vicinity.

The short coat of the season is not cut off above the waist line, as the Summer ones have been. They are beited in with leather or cloth. They are single breasted, fastened in a conspicuous manner with large bone buttons or with loops and braid out tons. The tails are often circular and attached. Sometimes they are part of the pleats that make up the coat. Four inches is quite enough length at front and back. The sace are usually shorter. These are heavily stitched, or if of light-weight cloth are finished with a bias fold of the material.

The beits, by the way, are narrow. There inches is quite the widest. Two finch ones of soft patent leather are very stylish.

All the coats will probably button the front quite close to the collar bone. The long revers with notched collars are not as popular as they have been. Three-inch turnover ones of exquisite embroider are prettier. These have frills of fine lace at the edge, and are often finished in favor. The newest trimming for Winter will be Broderie Anglaise. Of course it has been used on everything for years in the Summer, but its use with cloth and velvet for Winter frocks is a novelty. It will be dyed to match the color of the fabric, possibly a shade off, to give a better effect. Wide panels will be used to decorate the skirt, and boleros of its are to be used over Empire frocks of sik or velvet.

R. L. Borden Had Not The Slightest Interest In Purchase

LIVES UP TO HIS IDEAL

Ottawa, Oct. 3.-Yesterday, R. L. Borden, K. C., in a statement issued concerning the mention made of his name in connection with the Fowler-and-others' land speculation scheme, says:

"I never had the slightest interest in or connection with the purchase of these lands or any other lands in the west of Canada. Messrs. Pope, Fowler, Bennett and Lefurgey, or some of them, told me of their proposed venture and asked me to join them. My discussion of the proposal with any of these gentlemen was during our trip to the west in 1902 before any details of the purchase had been made. The discussion was of a very casual and general character, and I was so much occupied with political matters that I gave it very little consideration. I returned to Halifax from the west about the end of October, 1902, and on the 7th of the following month Mr. Pope telegraphed to me that he was longer for the west and that he was leaving for the west, and on the same date I replied by tele-gram that I would not take any inter-

ON THE SPIKE

Thrilling Incident In the Life of James Freeman Clarke.

When James Freeman Clarke was young man he visited Salisbury, ingland. Here the beautiful cathe-England. dral lifts its spire 404 feet into the air. The spire is topped by a ball, and on the ball stands a cross. From the ground the ball looks like an orange, but its diameter is really greater than a man's height. Workmen were repairing the spire. Mr. Clarke saw them crawling round the slim steeple in the golden after-noon like bugs on a bean stalk. The impulse came to him to climb the spire and stand on the horizontal beam of the cross. Accordingly at dusk, when the workmen had left, the young American slipped in and made his way up the stairs to the little window which opened to the workmen's staging. To run up the scaffolding to the ball was easy. Then came the slightly more bulging curve of the ball. A

Makes short platform gave him foothold. He reached up, put his hands on the base of the cross and pulled himself up. To gain the cross arm was merely "shinning" up a good sized tree, and soon he stood on the horizontal timber and, reaching up, touched the top of the cross.

After enjoying his moment of exaita-tion he slid to the feot of the cross, and, with his arms round the post, slipped down over the great abdomen of the ball. His "er's teuched nothing. The little plank from which he had reached up was not there!

Here was a peril and one for a cool head and sure eye. Of course he could not look down. The hugging hold that he had to keep on the bottom of the cross shortened the reach of his body and made it less than when he had stood on the plank and reached up to the cross with his hands. He must drop so that his feet should meet the plank, for he would never be able to pull himself back if he should let him-self down at arms' length, and his feet hung over empty air. Now his good head began to work.

He looked up at the cross and tried to recall exactly the angle at which he had reached for it, to make his memory tell him just how the edge of that square post had appeared. A few inches to the right or to the left would mean dropping into vacancy.

Bending his head away back, he ctrained his eye up the cross and fig-ured his angle of approach. He cau-tiously wormed himself to the right and made up his mind that here directly under his feet must be the plank. Then he dropped. The world knews that he lived to tell the tale.
