A Silly Argument. The Stratford Herald says that if the factories of this country were closed our imports of foreign goods would increase by leaps and bounds. Then why not close them up? What's the use of Canadians toiling and moiling when terest the company must be subjected can get what they want from other good, kind countries without working at all? All that Johnny Canuck has to do is to become a gentleman of leisure, and let John Bull and Uncle Sam keep them in su-lies. Wouldn't that be neighborly of them? We know that in a spirit of philanthropy the nations of the earth sent money and suggest some regulations, the necesshiploads of food to India to relieve the sity of which the council may not famine. Of course, India's imports went up by leaps and bounds. With denies that it is asking for a 25-year our factories closed and our workmen franchise. "Franchise" may not be unemployed, Canada could no more pay the technical term, but the profor such imports than India did; but posed agreement would amount to the we have the assurance of the Strat- same thing, as it would hold good unford Herald that the goods would come til the expiry of the London Street ail the same, Other countries would Railway Company's franchise 25 years deluge us with their products from hence. charitable motives. What a beautiful epectacle that would be! Few Canadians suspected the existence of so much benevolence in the world. It must be a comparatively recent growth. The Herald and other newspapers of the same political stripe are fond of telling us that times were very bad In Canada around 1878-79; that many factories were closed down, and thousands were unemployed. It is true that Canada suffered at that time from a world-wide depression. Did the imports "increase by leaps and bounds"? No. they touched the lowest point in nine years. How does this square with the Herald's theory? Does the Herald expect to deceive its readers with such balderdash? It professes alarm because our imports from Germany, France, Great Britain and the United States have increased $87,-000,000 since 1897. It is a matter of "grave concern" that we purchased $187.510.456 worth of their goods in

The action of the Mother Superior of the Mount St. Joseph Orphanage, in asking the Children's Aid Society to assume as wards the children placed by the orphanage in fosterhomes, is a tribute to the efficiency of the society's officers and the unsectarian breadth of its work. Under the arrangements entered into between the orphanage and the society, the orphanage children will be visited regularly in their foster-homes by the society's provincial and local inspectors, and will be entitled to the protection exercised over children by the society under authority of the wise legislation passed by the Provincial Parliament. Heretofore the orphanage has had no redress against those who neglected foster-children or those who enticed them from good foster-homes; but under the new system the society will be always ready and in a position to look after the welfare of these little ones.

The invaluable work being done by the Children's Aid Society, under the direction of the Provincial Secretary's department, is one point upon which citizens of all shades of politics and religion seem to agree. The wisdom of the legislation is now recognized by all, and no greater proof of its efficacy is needed than the fact that other provinces and various states of the American Union are adopting enactments upon almost similar lines.

The Historical Society.

The London Historical Society is doing good work in collecting data relating to the birth and growth of the city. Papers such as those prepared by Dr. Campbell and Hon. Freeman Talbot have a great educational value, and should be permanently preserved. They give a better insight into the pioneer conditions of the country than the regular histories and text-books, which deal mostly with stitutional developments. Canada is not very rich in literature of this class, and there is a wide and attractive field for the antiquary. The Ontario Historical Society deserves every encouragement in Its efforts to promote the spirit of historical research, and the preservation of records and materials which serve to throw light on the early days of the country, and on the lives of those who hewed out their homes in the wilderness, and laid the foundations on which Canadians of today are building. Many interesting relics are loaned for the Ontario Society's ex-

The Lambeth-London Line.

We have no quarrel with the Southwestern Traction Company. The promoters have shown their bona fides by the actual construction of the line, which we hope to see in operation at the earliest moment possible. Radial railways are to be heartily encouraged as they will all bring business to the city. We should be the first to condemn any disposition on the part of the council to impede unnecessarily the entrance of the Southwestern Traction Company, but in the public into a number of regulations which should be very carefully framed. While the council is engaged in this a temporary arrangement could be made, to spare the company the loss of being shut out of the city all winter. In fact such an arrangement would be an advantage, as the experience of the radial road in working order, moving traffic over the city streets, might foresee at this moment. The company

What He Wanted.

"I desire an audience with the manager," remarked the dignified, smoothfaced person as he approached the box office of the theater.
"Step right in," replied the man in the box office. "I think he's looking for a few audiences himself."

A Genuine Englishman.

[New York Mail and Express.] Joseph Chamberlain has made mistakes of tact and of policy disastrous enough to have destroyed a lesser man. But he has survived them, and the events of every day disclose him stronger in the opinion of his own countrymen and gradually winning continental opinion to a respect and partial understanding, if not a liking, for his peculiar qualities. Those qualities at bottom are those of all Englishmen, and that is Mr. Chamberlain's strength at home.

If You Look at It That Way.

The Herald is read about that woman out in Denver talking utter rot, and, as an intelligent journal, knows it. Our imports three times in one election?" of raw material and manufactured goods have "gone up by leaps and years wouldn't you try to make up for it when you got a chance?"

A Threadbare Statement.

[Brantford Expositor.] At the London banquet, Mr. Whitney repeated the threadbare and wholly untrue statement that the Conservative party polled 7,000 of a majority of the popular vote in the provincial general elections, and Messrs. Foy and Hanna told the same story. The facts are far otherwise, as the Expositor has time and again, from the official figures, conclusively established.

The Late Frank Norris. [London Academy.] Again and again during the past few ears has it been our sad duty to bronicle the deaths of writers who, ough famous, were quite young. This year hardly a month has passed without the record of some loss to etters. Mr. Frank Nerris, who died the other day in San Francisco, was only 32, and just at the commencement, as it seemed, of a brilliant ca-The Octopus, the first volume of projected trilogy, "The Epic of the Wheat," showed the fine stuff that Mr. Norris had in him, though he had published promising work in fiction before. Harcourt's Ready Wit.

[New York Post.] Sir William Harcourt's aptness in had frequent illustration in recent Parliamentary debates. Apropos of an amendment to the Education Bill, referring to "the tenor of the provisions of the trust deed" of a given school, concerning the exact meaning of which there was dispute, Sir William cited

'Along the cool, sequestered vale of They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.'

He is accurate, it will be observed. as well as apt not having fallen into the ordinary misquotation of "even tenor." Mr. G. W. E. Russell gives several examples of Sir William's happiness in poetical citation. One of them is about the late Sir Rainald Knightley, who was once "expatiating after dinner on the undoubted glories of his famous pedigree." The company was getting a little restive under the recitation, when Sir William was heard to say, in an appreciative aside, "This reminds me of Addison's evening hymn:

'And Knightley to the listening earth. Repeats the story of his birth." It was Sir William Harcourt, again, who, meeting Tennyson out for a smoke before breakfast, greeted him

Literary Notes.

THE DECEMBER CENTURY.

For a year Dr. S. Weir Mitchell had sent to him from one of the clipping agencies all the reports that could be found in the American daily papers of heroism in everyday life. Dr. Mitchell has written an article for the December Century giving the results of this search. One of the surprising with the ballot, madam. Have you facts is the many instances of heroic acts by children. Of 53 trustworthy who was arrested for voting two or statements of children under fifteen who have tried to save others from "Yes, sir, and I don't blame water, fire or other danger, twelve her one bit. If you had been deprived concerned girls who tried to save of the ballot for more than a hundred drowning persons previously unknown In three undoubted instances little boys of four, five and six years of age respectively risked their lives in saving others at fires.

SMART SET FOR DECEMBER. The Smart Set fer December is on the bookstands again. The number is, as usual, simply crammed with good things. The opening story is a bright little tale entitled "Winning Him Back," by Anita Vavanti Charters. Perhaps one of the prettiest and most bits of verse is whimsical Scollard's "Hanging the Holly," a poem which is highly appropriate for a Christmas number. Among other contributors are to be found such well-known names as those of Nannie Byrd Turner, Mary Tracy Earle Charles Hanson Towne, Frank Demp ster Sherman, Molly Elliott Seawell, E gar Saltus, Albert Lee, Le Vicomte J de Beaufort and Charles G. B. Roberts. Taken all in all the number one of the best the Ess-Ess Publishing Company has so far issued.

Mine Manager Shot.

Denver, Col., Nov. 20. — News has reached here of the shooting of A. L. Collins, general manager of the Smugglers' Union mine at Pandora, near Teluride, Col., by an unknown person, who fired through the window of the company's office at Pandora. The charge struck Collins in the back, making a wound that is likely to prove fatal. Mr. Collins was manager of the mine during the strike of 1901, when a riot occurred in which several men lost their lives. There is no clue to the man who fired the shot.

HALF A MAN.

When a man is sick and can only work half the time he is practically half a man, It requires his whole physical energy to do half a man's work.

In general the weak run down con lition which cuts the strength and energy in half is due to disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. You could not expect a half starved man to work more than half the time. The condition of the man with weak stomach is that of the half starved man. He is weak through lack of nutrition Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables of the body and so re-stores the strength. "I had stomach troub-"I had stomach trouble from birth," writes

JUDGE GRAY REBUKES LAWYER

Rev. Peter Roberts Describes the Conditions Under Which the Miners Labor.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 20. - At yesterday's session of the coal strike commissioners, when Mr. Ross, counsel for the D., L and W. road, concluded, Mr. Mitchell was cross-examined by former Congressman Wolverton, for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. Mr. Mitchell said it would be impossible for him to give in depoetical quotation is famous. It has tail the conditions at each mine or even under each company. He also declared that it would neither be possible nor desirable to divide the United Mine Workers into two separate or-ganizations, one bituminous and the other anthracite. "The anthracite miners," he said, "have had independ-ent and separate organizations in the past. They have had several of them: They have gone. They do not want any more of their organizations to go the same way."
Mr. Mitchell's statement excited

some interest because of the fact that this was a suggestion made by Carroll D. Wright in his report of the strike to President Roosevelt.

James N. Torrey, of Scranton, representing the Delaware and Hudson Company, followed with a number of inquiries on the subject of the riot at

Mr. Mitchell was emphatic in saying that the reports sent out were grossly exaggerated and that but one life was lost. The sheriff's appeal to the governor for aid, he said, was overdrawn. WILL ABIDE BY COMMISSION'S DECISION.

Mr. Mitchell declared with emphasis that the miners will carry out to the letter the decision of the commission "or go out of our union. Judge Gray announced the decision of the commission in the matter of the application of John T. Lenahen and John T. O'Brien, attorneys for the non-union men, to appear in the case. In the light of all their caims, said Judge Gray, they would be allowed to appear, but the commission could not consent to the withholding from the public the names of the non-union men, as their attorneys had desired. After Mr. Lenahen assented to this, Judge Gray announced that the commission would see that no unfair use would be made of its names.

Mr. Darrow, attorney for independent operators, insisted that Messrs. Lenahen and O'Brien really represented the operators and not the non-union men. "Whether they be here in that way or not," Judge Gray quickly replied, "they represent an important element in the investigation, men who work for their living, and who are inter-ested in the findings of this commis-We have considered that very carefully from all sides."

CHILD LABOR. After a brief re-direct examination by Mr. Darrow, Mr. Mitchell, in reense to a request by Commissioner Watkins as to what should be don respecting child labor, said that a law should be enacted providing that after a certain time children under 14 years of age should not be employed in breakers. The only way now that the operators could prevent the evil would to refuse to employ children until they are 14 years of age. It frequently happened, he said, that parents swore falsely regarding the ages of children. The miners' president, after being under trying cross-examination w more than half a dozen lawvers for four and a half days, then left the witness stand. John J. Murphy, counsel for the union, read the Pennsylvania statutes equiring the measurement of coal by weight, which he said he wanted to put in the record The Rev. Dr. Peter Roberts, of Mahanoy City, author of a book on the anthracite coal industry, took the stand just as recess was taken luncheon. MOST DANGEROUS WORK. At the afternoon session Mr. Roberts described the anthracite regions, and then under the direct examination of Mr. Darrow, he described the condiions under which the mine workers labor. He took up the sociological conditions in the anthracite fields and followed this with statistics to show that the occupation of the mine worker is more hazardous than that of workers in any other large industry not excepting railroading. Mr. Roberts was still on the witness stand when the commission adjourned for the day.

THE SOVEREIGN LIFE

The Stock Being Advanced-Last Opportunity for Investors-A Good Showing.

At a meeting of the directors of the Sovereign Life Assurance Company, held in the Temple building, Toronto, on Saturday, the 15th inst., the remaining capital stock unsold was advanced to a premium of 33 1-3 per cent. The general meeting of shareholders for permanent organization and for the election of officers will be held early next month, at which time the company will make the necessary deposit with the Dominion Government, secure its license and be ready for business Jan. 1. The actuary of Sovereign Life has been busy for several months preparing new and attractive plans of insurance and the directors announce that they have adopted the strongest and most solid reserve standard of any life insurance company in Canada.

Absolute security to policyholders has been the first consideration. The management of the Sovereign Life will be vested in the hands of experienced men who understand the business — there will be no mistakes or inadequate rates to apologize for and the shareholders and policyholders will have the satisfaction of a substantial realization upon their investment.

A SURE CURE FOR HEADACHE .-Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated.
