GLAD TO WORK VACANT LAND

Onetime Gardener, Now Out of Job, Would Like Land To Till.

WHY NOT CALL MEETING?

Discuss This Question-Many People Glad of Opportunity For Such Work.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Regarding vacant land for the poor: Being a gardener of twelve years' continuous experience, I should be glad to see this idea come o maturity. I have not followed my trade for the past year, having worked in another line, which threw me out of work last September "on account of the war," in which state have continued up to present time. should be indeed glad of the oportunity to obtain some land, an acre or more, with which to follow my vocation. Same would be properly worked and taken care of, if only it is possible to secure some. I

London, Feb. 5, Cartwright street.

Why not have a meeting called to discuss the question of devoting the vacant city-owned lands between the city and Springbank Park and the unoccupied building lots to vegetable growing for ose who are either unemployed or wish to economize on their food sup-

The Advertiser yesterday has attracted wide notice, and the letter printd above indicates the willingness ome people to take advantage of the nance to find employment and a living. The writer of the letter appearing esterday stated today that for some time he had cultivated half an acre of rented land in South London, south of Grand avenue. There were many acres of the same kind of land that could be used, and hundreds of acres between the city and Springbank. He suggested that the city could plow the land and then turn it over systematically to cultivation by citizens. The soil to the south is lay and fine for vegetables.

George Mathewson, of The Advertise ousiness office staff, believed that chil dren should be taught to grow vegetables, and the matter had been discussed by the Horticultural Society some time go. There are scores of acres that ould be used and the living expenses of many families cut down. leved that prizes would cause the dren to take a great interest in garden
