Young Men's Clothing.

Among the tashionable young men of the day there is a prevailing idea that one canor suit of clothes in a ready made clothing house. Now the is I use y mistaken idea, as a visit to Oak Hall, King street east, will prove. The Oak Hall people have now on hand a very large stock of goods, and the young man who is contemplating the purchase of a suit or overcoat, and who wishes a nobby, well made garment, cannot do bet-

The Grand Trunk v. a Newsboy. Last fall a newsboy named Owens while running through a Grand Trunk railway car in the Union station, picked up a purse containing about $70 in coin. He handed the money to a G. T. R. official, who in turn paid it over to the company, who were to hold it till claimed. It never was claimed, and the newsboy, considering he was the lawful owner, brought an action in the division court, a d obtan d judgment for the amount. A motion for a certiorary to remove the case to a superior court was to remove the case to a superior court was made at Osgoode hall yesterday by the company who say that they are not suxious to contest the boy's right, only in so far as to ascertain their legal rights in cases of this kind. It is more than probable that the application will be refused, and the money ordered to be refunded to young Owens.

The advance sheets of the twelfth annual r port of Miss Jennie Collins of Boffin's Bower, the institution devoted to the welfare of the working girls of Boston, has just come to hand. While every one may not agree with the theories of political economy expressed by Miss Collins, surely no one can but deprecate with her the evil effects on the working girls of the ruinous competition in the clothing and other business. The meagre sum paid shop girls in not a few of the large and small establishments doubtless frequently results, as she intimates, in the demoralization of the purest and best. One prepossessing young woman some two months since is said to have related her case as follows: "I came to make you a little present of $10. Use it to help some one else before they get where I am. I had to earn my living. I tried housework first, The family's washing was beyond my strength. I then procured a place in a shop, commencing with $3 a week, with the promise that at the end of three months it would be increased according to my ability. At the end of that time I was discharged and another novice taken with the same inducement. My next place was in an office for $3 a week, and from that I went to do up packages of grooeries, with the promise that when I got used to the business I could make $6 or $7 a week. It was the same old story: I was discharged and another novice taken fare of the working girls of Boston, has mies and place-names. Some of them belong to existing trades, like those quoted above, while others represent obsolete trades, or at least obsolete trade terminology, like the Fletchers, or arrow-makers, the Arblasters who manufactured cross-bows or arblasts (arcubalistæ), and the Tuckers who worked in the tucking mills where cloth was prepared for market. Tuckers who worked in the tucking mills where cloth was prepared for market. Those who wish for further information upon these subjects cannot do better than turn to Mr. Bardsley's excellent and systematic work on English surnames. A man who bakes is called a Baker; but in earlier times a woman who baked was called a Bakester, or Baxter. So a man who brews is a Brewer, while a woman who brews is a Brewer, in mediæval English the termination "ster" was a feminine one, and it still survivives with its primitive signification in spinster. A huckster was originally a market woman, but the word has now come to mean anyhuckster was originally a market woman, but the word has now come to mean anybody, male or female, who hawks about goods in the public streets. The same change has come over maltster, throwster, and many other analogous words. But sundry surnames will show us the two forms side by side, as in Webber and Weber have we may conclude that the snew way conclude that the snew way consuled that the snew way was the snew was the snew way was the snew was the snew was the snew way was the snew way was the snew way was the snew way was the snew was the snew was the snew was the snew way was the snew was ster. Hence we may conclude that the an cestor of all the Baxters was a woman who kept a bake house, Why her descendant should take their name from her rathe than from their father is easy enough to understand on a number of natural hypoth-eses. Joan Baxter may in one place have been a widow woman, whose children wou'd, of course, be called atter her; in another place she might be a person of some character, while her husband was a some character, while her massact was a field laborer or a ne'er-do-well, and in an-other, again, there might be two Piers Gar-diners or two Wat Carters in the same vi:lage, so that it might be more convenient to describe the youngsters by their mother's calling than by their father's.

A Married man Makes Love to and Elopes
With His Cousin.
From the Dutton Enterprise.
On the 4th July last a young man by the name of Stevenson arrived in this village. He called on Edwin Humphries and lage. He called on Edwin Humphries and said-his name was Jacks, and that he was his uncle. Consequently he was recognized as one of the family of that name that they had not heard from for some time. He explained to them that he had got inta difficulty in buying and selling some cattle at home, and called himself Stevenson, but he now went by the name of Jacks, and told them he was a single man. He worked about the place til a few days ago when he met accidentally with some parties who recognized him, and for fear they would inform the people of his neighborhood, which is only about seventy miles from her, he left and went to Port Stanley, But as he had passed for a single man, he had done considerable fliring with different young ladies during his sojourn here. Among these he had won the affections of one, a young lady in the family in which he was received, his own cousin, Miss Susia Humphries, and when he found his whereabouts was likely to become known he persuaded her to elopa with him to Uncle Sam's dominion. It was subsequently learned that he has a wife and two children in western Ontario, Immediately search was instituted for the runaways, but so far without success. It is not known for certain whether they are married yet or not. It is presumed the young lady does not know he has a wife and family. said his name was Jacks, and that he was

Jay Gould's New Yacht. From the Philadelphia Record of Oct. 1.

Jay Gould has invited estimates from three shipbuilders—the Cramps of this cit, John Roach of Chester and Steers of New York-for an ocean yacht which sha!! eclipse anything sfloat. Mr. Gould intends to make a cruise around the world, and wants to man a craft that will show every body a clean pair of heels. Mrs. Gould particularly desires some contrivance that will prevent seasickness, and to accomplish will prevent seasickness, and to accomplish this point no expense will be spared. The general build of the vessel will resemble the models of the American steemship line, and will cost not less than $550,000 All the equipments will be on a scale of elegance never before attained. A statement was made yesterday with positiveness that the Cramps had been given the contract by Mr. Gould, who had been pleased with the two yachts built by them a year ago for Messrs. Osborn and Morgan of New York. When questioned on the subject last night, Mr. Charles Cramp denied that the contract had yet been awarded.

Willie Winter at Shakespeare's Home.

From the New York Tribune.

Night, in Stratford-on-Avon—a summer night, with large, solemn stars, a cool and fragrant breeze, and the stillness of perfect rest. From this high and grassy bank I look forth across the darkened meadows and the smooth and shiring viver, and see the little town where it has askep. A few great elms, near by, are medding and rustling in the wind, and once or twice a drowsy bird note floats up, from the neighbouring thicket that skirts the wecant. It was the same old story: I was discharged and another novice taken in my place. I next got a position to tend in a cheap variety store with an advance to $4 a week on this stipulation, that I must 'dress as well as the other young ladies.' To do that I was obliged to live upon one meal and a part of a meal a day. Half starved, disheartened, and depressed, I drifted where I am now."

The Baxters belong to the same class as the Masons, the Carpenters, the Taylors, the Smiths, the Gardiners and the Fullers. In fact, the surnames derived from trades or occupations are more numerous than those of any other class, except patronymies and place-names. Some of them belong to existing trades, like those quoted

A North Carolina correspendent of the Atlanta Constitution writes: "I suppose Moorehead city is the only city in the world without a wheel in it. I do not world without a wheel in it. I do not think there is a wagon or a buggy horse in town, and a very few in the country. Everything is done in boats. There is not a house in the country that a boat cannot at within a mile of. Not a doctor nor a lawyer in the county owns a horse; they practice in boats. The people g to funerals in boats, and when they arrest a man they carry him to jail in a boat."

The difficulty that has arisen over the extradition of Phipps, the Philadelphia embezzler, who is now under arrest at Hamilton, revives the suggestion that there should be a revision of the extradition treaty between the United States and Canada. Interesting Items. The explosion of a kerosense lamp at Plymouth, Me., did not hurt Mrs. Miles much, and the loss of the dress which she wore was of small account; but in a burned pocket was $1,300 in paper money.

One result of the new acts compelling the factories and bakeries of London to consume their own smoke is that the bees, which are arranged around his hen house, and when he hears a thief fooling round that establishment in the darkness, Paul's and the fuchsias at the Charter house have also become superb under the new conditions.

all. St rting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parisites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the catarrh is practically cured and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him two years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being oured at ene treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Mr. A. H. Dixon, 305 and 307 King street west, Toronto, Cynada, and enclose stamp for his tr-atises on catarrh.
