ADVERTISEMENTS. FOR EACH LINE OF NON-PAYABLE. Financial statements of various companies.

Home news in Hamilton. Things happen in Hamilton occasionally as well as elsewhere. The World is indebted to the Spectator for the report of a lecture delivered in that city.

The subject was "The Irish Question," the lecturer was the Rev. Dr. Burns, of the Methodist Ladies' College, and the vote of thanks was moved by the Rev. S. J. Hunter.

Rev. Dr. Burns took high ground in favor of Home Rule, and we should judge from the report of his lecture he took it with a will.

It is not often that The World has the happiness to endorse the sentiments of the esteemed Mail, but when the chief Tory organ takes this attitude we feel that job getting is a secondary consideration.

Both Washington and Downing street might profitably inquire whether or not the people of Canada can be disposed of in this manner. This is not a party question. It rises above party. The World is prepared to lend its moral support to any party paper which stands up for Canadian rights.

Notwithstanding Dixon's "Camp Life in Muskoka," the World inadvertently stated that it was published by Hunter, Ross & Co. The volume issued from the press of C. Blackett Robinson, and is a credit to the printer.

These three and hostile displays are already more than enough for the Sultan's treasury; and unless Greece hold her hand, it is evident that Turkey cannot much longer hold hers.

The President of the Philadelphia Street Car Company is said to have taken of the night cars when the conviction was brought home to him that the taking in and out of beams at night distributed the dreams of the other horses in the stable.

King Ludwig, of Bavaria, is reported to have taken to "swilling brandy." A good way to foretell rebellion or assassination.

A Methodist Paper's Answer to the Presbyterian Review. The Presbyterian Review, of last week, under the caption "Whether are we drifting?" indulges itself in a somewhat wholesale denunciation of the methods adopted in the services in the Pavilion Hall, in which instances are made against the pastor, Rev. Hugh Johnston, which, aside from the somewhat unorthodox which they contain, are strictly in accordance with what might reasonably be expected from a religious weekly purporting to represent a great denomination like the Presbyterian.

The street market was very dull today. The market for wheat was quiet, and prices were therefore nominal. Fall wheat was quoted at 100 to 105 cents per bushel.
